Revolting Convicts Meekly Surrendered

Nine Convicts and Two Prison Guards Were Killed in Pitched Battle.

FOLSOM PRISON, Calif., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Hopelessly beleaguered by a force of national guardsmen and civil officers equipped with weapons of war revolting convicts at the state prison here meekly surrendered today, ending a mutiny in which eleven men were killed and more than a score wounded.

Threats by Warden Court Smith that the cell house in which 1200 of the prisoners were barricaded would be flooded and that the rebels would be starved out contributed to the collapse of the mutiny, by the deadly accuracy of rifle men stationed on a hill overlooking the prison was the principal factor in the capitulation.

Nine convicts and two prison guards lost their lives in the pitched battle waged yesterday between the rebellious prisoners and the besiegers. Seventeen convicts were wounded and four guards injured.

Six convicts declared by the warden to have been the ring leaders in the uprising were placed in solitary confinement. Murder charges would be filed against them, Warden Smith declared.

Only a few of the 1200 prisoners in the cell house were actively involved in the outbreak, which started late yesterday morning, the warden said. The others were intimidated by the leaders.

The surrender came this morning after Warden Smith had communicated over the telephone with two spokesmen for the mutineers.

With 500 national guardsmen, equipped with machine guns, tanks, sawed off shot guns, tear bombs and one pounders, and 200 heavily armed civil officers commanded the cell houses, the convicts surrendered their weapons to four guards who had been held as hostages.

The guards had not been injured and came out of the building alien with weapons, including two pistols, an axe and a number of knives.

In quick order the convicts then were sent to their cells.

Ray Singleton, assistant turnkey, was stabbed and shot to death when the revolt leaders made a break for the door of the cell house yesterday, apparently in an attempt to effect a wholesale delivery. The fact that the door was locked and the key outside prevented the convicts from gaining the yard.

Charles Glass, gate-keeper, dropped dead in the first excitement of the uprising.

The Work of Advertising.

When the pianist's fingers strike the first notes of Chopin's Ballade in A-Flat, a thousand people in the audience recognize it. How many people in an average audience would have known it 20 years ago? Very few.

We all know that music has come into our homes. First it came through the ordinary piano, then through the player-piano, then through the talking machine and now through the radio. But what brought the music producing mechanism itself? If you stop and think a moment, you will realize that the greatest agency in this work has been advertising.

Advertising today brings us the very latest news about the things which enable us to have better music in our homes. And it brings us the same kind of news about thousands of other things that will make our lives happier and easier. Read The Bulletin's advertising regularly.

Executed Priest Was Buried As a Martyr

Great Crowds Lined the Route of the Cortege in Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, Thursday, Nov. 24—(AP)—(Delayed)—Miguel Augustin Projuarez, Catholic priest, who fell before the bullets of an execution squad on Wednesday, was buried with his three executed companions today as a "martyr."

The men, who were executed on charges of being responsible for the attempt to assassinate former President Obregon, November 13, were carried through great crowds that lined the route of the cortege, weeping and at times crying "Viva the martyrs."

Then they were lowered into separate graves without ceremony or rites, except for the praying and chanting of thousands that lasted until night came and the cemetery gates were closed.

Probably the greatest crowds that ever gathered for the funerals of private persons in Mexico saw the bodies of the four men carried to their last resting places. At least 20,000 persons must have gathered along the line of march and at the cemetery.

Everyone carried floral offerings of some kind, even if only wild flowers plucked along the roadside, and reined these flowers upon the caskets as they passed while they prayed and chanted for the dead "martyrs" and for Christ the King.

It required more than three hours for the cortege of the priest and his brother to pass from the home of their father to their grave. All along that distance of about five miles was awaiting a crowd that prayed as the coffins passed.

CHICAGO DETECTIVE IS MARKED FOR ASSASSINATION

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(AP)—William E. O'Connor, chief of detectives, who believes the pistol is a better weapon than the jury in ridding Chicago of gangsters, was today for the second time within a week, marked for assassination.

Three men, one of whom had asserted, after an encounter with the chief "No cop can take a crack at me and get away with it," were found loitering outside O'Connor's home.

School children later said they saw the men hide a bundle beneath the flooring of a portable school building, near O'Connor's residence. The bundle contained three pistols loaded with "dum dum" bullets.

Since the recent outbreak of a gang feud here, the detective chief has had a guard of two detectives to and from his home, and these men with O'Connor picked up three suspects who declined to talk.

O'Connor, at the outset of the bootlegging and gambling flare-up, advised his men to "shoot it out" with the racketers, afterwards complimenting an officer who shot a beer solicitor.

Several days ago, one of the first men caught in O'Connor's dragnet pulled a pistol out of his pocket as he was being searched in the chief's office. O'Connor disarmed him.

William Clifford, one of the trio arrested today, last month engaged in a pistol duel with detectives who had gone to arrest him in a hotel. At that time he threatened O'Connor and other detectives, who he said mistreated him.

"You've got your pals with you now," Clifford is said to have told O'Connor, "but some time you won't have them and I'll get you, for this."

Forty eight of the suspects, the detective chief rounded up this week today assured a municipal judge they were hard working citizens and obtained their release. Pete Genna, the last of the six Genna brothers, bootleggers, was among those released. All of Pete's brothers either were killed by rival bootleggers or left the city to escape such a fate."

Two bombings and the murder of A. G. Hartz, who was taken for a ride because he was suspected of giving prohibition agents information have not been cleared upon.

MOURNING IN BUCHAREST FOR PREMIER BRATIANU

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Amid every sign of national grief and mourning, the body of Premier Ione Bratianu was removed today to the Athanaeum palace where it will lie in state until his funeral Sunday.

Despite wintry weather, the public flocked reverently to view the remains of the dead patriot, for he is recognized as a great patriot even by newspapers that opposed his general policy. The press of all shades of opinion have voiced their profound grief over the death yesterday of the man who dominated Rumanian politics for so long a time.

Tranquility remains undisturbed everywhere, a sort of political truce being tacitly observed until after the funeral. This means only that no active steps are being taken to reorganize the government, but this does not prevent many informal talks and conferences by the various party leaders and organizations on the subject of the future government which seems to be shaping in the direction of a coalition.

HELD IN $500 BAIL FOR ANNOYING REV. STRATON

Charles Lee Smith, Defendant, is Alleged to Have Annoyed the Pastor With Un-Godly Literature—Smith is President of the American Association For the Advancement of Atheism—Defense Claimed the Object Was to Convert the Rev. John Roach Straton to Atheism.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Doubting that any man could be sincere in an effort to shake the religious convictions of the Rev. John Roach Straton, a magistrate today ordered Charles Lee Smith, held in $500 bail for annoying the pastor with un-Godly literature.

The defendant, who is president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, said repeatedly that his object in sending the various publications, pamphlets and letters to the fundamentalist pastor of Calvary Baptist church was to convert him to atheism.

But Magistrate Gottlieb said, "I do not believe that they were sent with any innocent purpose. I believe that Dr. Straton is a firm unalterable believer in Christianity and that any attempt to move him in that belief is like trying to move the rock of Gibraltar."

The magistrate said the question was not one of theology but one of whether the penal code had been violated, and found it his duty to send the case to special sessions where three judges will determine the case.

The pastor was silent throughout the proceeding. He had testified at a previous hearing. Sitting on the edge of a front seat in the court room he clutched a little, black leather-bound volume as he heard himself assailed by Leonard Snitkin, counsel for Smith as a "humbug," and a "mountebank."

Smith said the action had its genesis more than a year ago when Dr. Straton was advertising Uldine Utley, 14 year old evangelist, as possessed of divine power. He wanted to see profiteering in religion stopped the witness said.

The pastor particularly objected to a publication called "Sex" and while Mr. Snitkin pointed out that it was not banned by the postal authorities, the magistrate said it might still be particularly offensive to Dr. Straton.

Explaining that the "Truth Seeker," atheist publication, was sent to Dr. Straton because his name was mentioned in it and it was a policy to send the publication to all persons whose names appeared in its columns, Mr. Snitkin said it might thus even be sent to Magistrate Gottlieb.

"No, thanks," replied the court. "I have no desire to read the stuff."

Mr. Snitkin objected to the word "stuff," but the magistrate refused to recant.

A FLOATING THEATRE SANK IN CHESAPEAKE BAY

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 25—(AP)—With only a few inches of her deck house visible above water, the James Adams floating theatre is sunk in 16 feet of water near Thimble Shoals, in Chesapeake Bay. The craft probably will prove a total loss, coast guard officials said.

The show boat was in tow of the tug W. H. Hoodless, which had brought her as far as Thimble Shoals from Philadelphia, when she sprung a leak today. The tug also had two barges in tow but she tried to get the floating theatre in shallow water to prevent her from sinking entirely. She found the task too difficult and requested the coast guard to send assistance. The cutter Carrabassett and two patrol-boats were dispatched, but the show boat was practically filled with water when they arrived.

The tug left Philadelphia Wednesday with the theater in tow, but the show boat began leaking Thursday and today her pumps could not free her of water.

EDISON SEES MOVIE OF HIS RECENT INTERVIEW

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 25—(AP)—The wizard of West Orange tonight saw and heard himself as others see and hear him.

Thomas A. Edison, attending the first showing of a talking movie of his recent radio interview, sat back in his chair, watching and listening, as the film flashed his likeness on the screen and as a radio loud speaker changed into words and sentences the tiny lines impressed on the celluloid by his voice.

The picture was the work of the General Electric company, which showed it to the inventor in his laboratory. Only members of the Edison household and a few friends were present.

A dexterous synchronization of two electric motors made possible this realistic appearance of Mr. Edison on the screen, picture and voice were recorded nearly 300 miles apart, the former in the Edison library where the interview was held, and the latter in the General Electric research laboratory at Schenectady.

WORKING TO END STRIKE IN COLORADO COAL FIELD

DENVER, Col., Nov. 26—(AP)—Gov. W. H. Adams is working on several plans designed to end the I. W. W. strike that started in the Colorado coal fields six weeks ago but said today he was not ready to announce what headway he was making in his efforts to end the controversy.

In the meantime two of the largest coal operators in the state frowned on the suggestion that they meet with the strikers to try to arrange a settlement. The Colorado Fuel & Iron company takes the position that there is no strike and that its miners who are not working are idle because of intimidation. Officials of the National Fuel company said they would meet their men direct if they had any grievances and that a general conference such as had been discussed would "lead in a circle and get nowhere."

Officials of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, owners of the Columbine mine where five strikers were killed by state police Monday, are reported as willing to agree to any plan suggested by the governor.

The coal fields were quiet today. In northern Colorado mines were planning to reopen next week under the protection of the national guard and in the southern field all of the mines reported increasing working forces.

COL. CHARLES R. FORBES LIBERATED AT MIDNIGHT

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., Nov. 25.—(AP)—With freedom only a few hours away Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans' bureau, put prison cares behind him tonight and looked forward to rebuilding a career as a civil engineer.

Midnight was the hour for the release of Colonel Forbes, who was sentenced to the federal penitentiary here for a term of two years and fined $10,000 upon his conviction in Chicago in 1925 on charges of defrauding the government in awarding contracts for veterans' hospitals.

Completing his term on October 29, with an allowance of 144 days for good behavior, Forbes took an oath that he was unable to pay the fine and began serving the thirty additional days required in such cases. He applied for a parole several times but was denied clemency.

In a fight to be best from his penitentiary experience, the 45 year-old former government official revealed he intended to go back to his old profession as an engineer after visiting his 83-year-old mother in Plymouth, Mass., and making a trip to Washington.

YACHT VIDOR ESCAPES UNDER BLANKET OF FOG

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 25—(AP)—Under a blanket of heavy fog, the American yacht Vidor was thought tonight to have slipped away from four Canadian government craft through the strait of Canso, Nova Scotia, and out into the Atlantic.

The minister of customs received word that a large white American yacht passed through the strait at about 3 p. m., and officials believed it was the Vidor, said to be owned by R. C. Durant, son of William C. Durant, American financier.

The yacht has been sought by the government craft since it left Montreal Monday. The Canadian National Railways sought to attach the vessel for damage done to a bridge over the Lachine canal and in addition the Vidor has been charged with failing to comply with port clearing regulations, pilotage and harbor rules.

DANIELSON

EDDIE JOHN GOES BACK TO NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 25—Eddie John took an automobile ride this afternoon that started at the state police barracks on North Main street as was scheduled, to end at the Norwich State hospital for the insane. He was taken away in charge of Dr. F. S. Wilcox of the hospital staff and a guard from the institution.

As told in this morning's Bulletin, John was arrested here Thanksgiving evening after being found near a home at Killingly Center where he had been shot at about two years ago when trying to force an entrance. He had been drinking when picked up last night. He was locked up at the police station and held there today until near the time for him to be returned to Norwich.

It appears that hospital officials were not favorable to allowing the release of John, which was brought about after long effort through legal channels a few days ago, the man being let out under bonds.

John is not a vicious character when sober, but is given to drinking heavily at times and when he does his discretion departs. He is well known to both local and state police in Danielson through affairs in which he has been involved and which has resulted in his arrest in this territory in the past.

Danielson has the building bee in its bonnet, this applying particularly to business buildings. The spring of 1928 will witness the beginning of some important developments along this line in Danielson. In addition to new buildings already announced, consideration is being given to plans for remodeling others and bringing them up to date. One hears it rumored that Danielson may get a new theater building. There are those who are also insisting that the time has come for the government to give Danielson a postoffice building, a matter that has been urged more or less intermittently for more than a decade. Then, of course, there is always the prospect of a new hotel. Danielson has all of these things in mind. Two fine new buildings in the business district are certainty for 1928. In a little more than three months buildings will be making ready to construct them. Meanwhile some of the other plans are expected to mature. There is ample confidence here in Danielson's future, a confidence that appears very well founded.

After spending a pleasant Thanksgiving day and be a guest at a dinner party in her home town, Miss Victoria C. Howard, died during last night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lucinda Cole, in Foster, with whom she made her home. Miss Howard was born in Foster 69 years ago, a daughter of Arnold and Susanna P. Round Howard, and always had lived in that town. In addition to Mrs. Cole, Miss Howard leaves another sister, Mrs. Clara Hathaway, resident in Delaware, a brother, Irving of Providence, and the following nephews and nieces, all resident in Centerville, R. I.: John Phillips, Willard Knight, Arthur Knight, Elizabeth Knight, Stella Knight and Hattie Knight. A cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of Miss Howard's death.

No personal canvass for the sale of Christmas seals will be made in Danielson this year, Mrs. James M. Paine announced today. Instead Christmas seals will be sent through the mails to local people and from the Danielson postoffice. No such seals will be mailed into this territory from Hartford, as has been done in some other years. This system will localize the work and prevent duplication of effort.

Incident to the Christmas seal sale, which is in the interest of eradicating tuberculosis in Connecticut, it may be mentioned that children already are going about Danielson selling certain varieties of ornamental seals. That the sale of these seals may not lead to confusion, mention is made this early that they serve no earthly purpose other than a decorative one and a chance for children to earn a fat commission for selling them.

In the past many have purchased these ornamental seals with the idea they were sharing in the famous Christmast seal work only to find later this was not the case. Children will not be selling the real Christmas seals in Danielson this year, so there can be small reason for buying other seals mistakenly.

Anent a recent discussion here of taxation and the unquestioned value of a town having a low tax rate, for many reasons, including the particularly important one that industries are attracted to towns where the rate is especially low, an interesting point was made today by a local man who is very much interested.

Clinton, Mass., has been named as a happier low-tax rate town of Massachusetts with an assessment as low as $21.50 per $1,000. Killingly, during the current year, is paying $25 town tax per $1,000, but that happens to be abnormal and will not be permanent. However, Brooklyn, just across the bridge from Danielson and in whose territory one of the largest of this communities manufacturing plants is located has a town tax lower than Clinton's, i. e. $20 per thousand, to which in the case of the West Side is added a 2 mill fire district tax.

If the Killingly rate at present should seem high to owners of an industry that might be induced to locate a plant here, Killingly, with good grace, could hand said industry over to the West Side, a part of Brooklyn. Should such a thing come about, it is pointed out, Danielson would still benefit, though not through tax income. The benefits would accrue from the trade of the people that such an industry might employ and from revenue sources always associated with a live organization.

Many Killingly people have a very wholesome fear of a general re-valuation just now, though it is a matter that cannot be delayed beyond 1930.

Roofs of freight cars rolling through here from the north today were blanketed with snow, a promise that winter is lurking not far away.

P. J. Sheridan, owner of Wildwood park, has closed the dancing pavilion there for the season, he announced this afternoon. Likewise, Elmer Brindamour, owner of Kum-Along-Inn, on the West Side, has closed that dance hall for the winter months.

At Kent, where the new mammoth reservoir for the Providence city water supply is located, 37 billion gallons of water are now stored, the capacity of the reservoir, which has been one year in filling, whereas the estimate was that two years would be required to bring the water up to the spillway.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was in Willimantic on business today.

With the prospect of lower water at Wilsonville and points below this week and another effort will be made to determine whether a young woman's body is somewhere along the stream and to establish, if posible, whether Jerome Vincent Sheldon had a companion when he lost his life through his car plunging into the mill pond on the eve of Armistice day.

Chief John McFarland is calling the attention of motor vehicle operators to the fact that they should not drive at night with only sidelights or dimmers showing.

Reconstruction of the Paine bridge that was wrecked in the flood of November 3, is underway in the neighboring town of Foster, guards being maintained there day and night to protect traffic from accidents.

An evidence of the good behavior of people hereabouts over the holiday is that there was no business for the Killingly town court this morning.

Killingly high school's basketball team will begin a schedule of games during December, playing home games in the gymnasium of the high school building.

JEWETT CITY

VANDAL BREAKS BOTTLE ON WORLD WAR HONOR ROLL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 25.—The World War monument, which stands on the Slater Library lawn, was desecrated Wednesday night, an empty hootch bottle being smashed upon the stone. The lawn is covered in glass and the bronze lettering on the honor roll is filled with splintered glass.

BIG FLOCK OF WILD GEESE PASSES OVER THE BOROUGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 25.—Just before noon today a flock of fifty-four wild geese flew over the borough. They were flying low and when first seen were honking loudly, and in two nearly horizontal lines, with five greatly in the lead. Before passing out of sight, off to the southwest, they had taken up their usual "V" formation.

It has often been noted by local observers that flocks of geese passing over this section, are almost always sure to lose their regular line-up when coming over the big Tadpole ponds. Some have thought that this irregularly is caused because a few of them are inclined to drop into its inviting water, for food and rest. Some years ago, the late H. M. Miner and W. C. Bliven were on a fox trail above Stone Hill, near where the Jewett City water company's reservoir is now located. It was just approaching early dusk and when two long lines of geese passed over the hunters, the two men let go both barrels into the low flying flock. One of the great birds was wounded, but kept on the wing until over Darville pond. Here men were at work filling the late G. A. Haskell's ice house, with a gang plowing and sawing a little further down, near G. F. Lewis' two houses. In front of the Haskell house was a considerable patch of open water, the frightened flock circle over the pond, and then the wounded bird dropped into the open place, where he was caught by "Pet" Geer.

Early in December, the three banks in Putnam will send out checks to the amount of $56,000 to members of their respective Christmas clubs. This total saved systematically during the past twelve months is a substantial amount and while a part of it will find its way back into the savings account, the greater part of it will be put into circulation through the stores of Putnam during the holiday buying season which has already begun. It is anticipated that there will be a great deal of buying in Putnam this year, and few have been idle during the past year as is evidenced by the amount saved in the Christmas clubs. The local stores are ready to serve holiday buyers.

On Friday evening, December 9, Yembo Sanctorum of the Ancient Order of Samaritans, a branch of the Odd Fellows lodge, is to be instituted at Willimantic.

Two nights will be given to the installation and Putnam will be represented both nights. Korum Sanctorum of Hartford will have charge of the program. Following the institution there will be a public installation an hour later. There will be many distinguished visitors in attendance as well as officers and past officers of Samaritans. Willimantic is regarded as fortunate in securing the lodge there.

When Miss Larose, who conducts a dressmaking and tailoring establishment in the Stoumbelis block on Main street left her shop on Wednesday evening among other things left three fur coats, a seal skin, a mink and a raccoon. This morning on going to her shop, she found the three fur coats missing with no evidence of the place having been broken into. It is evident that the door had been opened with a key. The police are at work on the case but as yet have not found sufficient evidence on which to make an arrest. Several weeks ago several offices in the same building were entered but no arrests were made at that time.

THE TUBERCULOSIS SEALS

With an institution in our midst which has been doing so much for the cure and relief of those afflicted with tuberculosis, Norwich has the best reasons to be interested in the annual campaign for the sale of the tuberculosis seals. But it is not solely here but in all the other sanatoria of Connecticut that equally impressive results are being obtained in the fighting of the white plague.

A work that has produced such fine results deserves the heartiest support. There is an excellent opportunity to put to work all the funds that may be received through the local committee, whether it be in the local field or elsewhere.

There is a chance to extend a helping hand to suffering humanity. Few there are who do not know of the ravages of tuberculosis and in view of the large number suffering from it stress needs to be laid upon the prevention as well as the treatment of the disease. This calls for education, and the persistent advocacy of preventive measures, while devoting every possible attention to the care of those outside as well as those within the institutions.

Because appreciable contributions have been made in the past does not mean that there is no need for similar or greater responses in the future. The fact is that the fight against consumption has only served to bring to light far more cases than would otherwise be known, which in itself provides an opportunity to give greater protection to others.

Through the purchase of the seals there is an opportunity for each and every one to participate. They can be bought in small or large amounts according to the size of the pocketbook, but there must be the realization that inasmuch as it is for a most worthy cause the small contribution ought not to be considered as meeting the situation if a larger one is possible.

Norwich has done well in the past but as long as there is the need for doing more it ought to be fully and promptly met. Bear in mind that it is not simply the stickers but the purpose back of them that bids for your dollars.

THE COLORADO STRIKE

Undesirable from many angles is the coal strike situation which has developed in Colorado. It was bad enough before violence was resorted to but with that development its seriousness was greatly magnified. The resort to force encountered an opposition that indicates that Colorado has no disposition to tolerate violence and is prepared to take the necessary steps to prevent it.

Just now much reliance is being put on the petition to the governor from the miners to get the operators to meet in conference with them. The purpose is to accomplish a settlement of the strike and bring about a resumption of mining. It is a position in which the governor will doubtless be willing to help but where he is powerless to do anything other than extend the invitation. Colorado would like to see the strike ended.

The loss of life in that state can be attributed to the methods which have been followed by those who have been advising the miners. While the soft coal strikes in other states were ending the I. W. W. precipitated trouble in Colorado and so guided the strike as to receive a warning from the governor that picketing which had been resulting in intimidation would not be permitted henceforth. The warning was disregarded, their way was forced into mine property past the guards. This defiance of the governor's orders resulted in the calling out of the state police and when they advanced upon these new guards bullets flew and a casualty list resulted. It was thus demonstrated that the orders of the governor really meant something and that the state cannot be defied without serious consequences.

If the raids upon the mines was the method relied upon to win the strike even those radicals who had taken control of the situation must realize the futility of it by now. Many of the miners at least regard other methods preferable. They are therefore ready to meet with the operators in an endeavor to come to terms. The operators may be no more willing to come to an agreement with the strikers than they have been in other fields.

RUMANIAN UNCERTAINTIES

Inasmuch as it has been considered that uncertainty prevailed in Rumania the death of Premier Bratianu adds to it. This powerful leader, for nearly three decades regarded as the uncrowned king of that country and whose leadership brought about the enlargement of that country as the result of the war, had just been figuring prominently in the efforts to frustrate the alleged plot to bring back the former crown prince. In the prosecution of one of the government officials for conspiracy to upset the government and put Carol on the throne the dead premier was greatly disappointed at the unfavorable outcome. That it had its effect upon the state of his health is not improbable. The depressing effect of anything that might indicate to him a dwindling of his influence can be imagined.

Now that he has gone and the country is without his influence the situation becomes even more uncertain than it has been. With his brother named to the premiership it is to be anticipated that the policies of the past will be continued. He is to be regarded as the best selection for that purpose but it will remain to be seen whether he can command the control that his brother has in the past. There is the name for effect, and the presumption is fair that the brothers thoroughly understood each other. The choice of Vintila Bratianu is of course calculated to maintain the government as it has been.

That the opponents will look upon the change as an opportunity for advancing their cause is inevitable. If the regency regards the continuance of the Bratianu policies as desirable they must look upon it as undesirable, and the time opportune for renewing their efforts in behalf of Carol or someone else.

Probably Rumania feels that it has been experiencing troubles and uncertainties enough without having them increased, but having no choice it is a case of facing them. The new premier has a chance to show whether he has and can use as effectively the power which his brother exercised.

HEADING FOR A MIDDLE GROUND

From the time that the question of federal tax reduction has been considered it has been evident that there has been a wide range of opinions concerning just what should be done. All agree that there should be a reduction in taxes. Some have had the courage to claim that the tax cut ought to be as much as $500,000,000 because the last year produced a big surplus. The United States chamber of commerce through a referendum fixes the amount at $400,000,000 and wants the most of the tax cutting done in the corporation tax. Others have figured that $300,000,000 should be the amount. The ways and means committee of the house has indicated a programme that would mean a cut of $325,000,000 while the treasury department has placed the limit at $226,000,000.

It would be interesting to know whether the chamber of commerce in its referendum upheld the $400,000,000 tax cut because under similar conditions they would apply that very reduction in their own private business, or just because it is a government proposition and that plan would serve its members best.

Attention is called to the large surplus of the last year and the surplus in previous years quite as if the use of that surplus had not resulted to the lasting benefit of the entire country through the reduction of the huge debt and the annual interest account.

Opinions will always vary as regards the best way in which to handle the financial problems the country faces. In the highest terms has the work of the treasury expert been praised. His advice cannot be wisely ignored in view of what he has done and the benefits the country has received. What the congress will do with the tax bill is problematical. In all probability neither extreme will be favored.

AMBASSADOR TO CUBA

Last month President Coolidge picked as ambassador to Mexico a man who had never been in the diplomatic service. He has made a most auspicious beginning at his post in Mexico City. The fact that he had never been engaged in such service before has handicapped him in no respect. The fact that he has not had training does not mean that he is not a diplomat.

In the choice of an ambassador to Cuba the president has again selected a man who has not been in the diplomatic service. This must indicate that he has confidence in him and picks him for the purpose of making good. Noble B. Judah of Chicago is a business man and a lawyer of prominence in the middle west and he made a most enviable record during the World war. He will go to Cuba to succeed Ambassador Enoch Crowder.

The post at Havana differs from that at Mexico City in many respects. Ambassador Crowder has made a signal success of his years at Havana, and it is to the regret of officials of both countries that he is retiring. Judah must be fully aware of the responsibilities that rest upon his shoulders in stepping into the shoes of General Crowder for there are big problems to deal with. He is nevertheless picked to meet the situation. The opportunity is an unusual one and his appointment is made in the belief that he is not only equipped to but will fill the bill.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

If anything is needed to prove even to the most obtuse the immensity of our land area the very fact that in the northern part of middle west section of our vast country they are having blizzard conditions, while here in the east average summer temperature prevailed. That in itself shows the size of our mileage. But that is not evidence of real greatness. If the size of territory is a basis by which we measure greatness then the United States is not so far ahead of the Sahara. According to this measurement the United States is just a bit ahead of Russia and China. But if we take another unit of measurement, that of the great diversity of economic problems and the manner in which we are able to deal with them, it is one evidence of our material bigness. But the greatest evidence that any nation can have of real size is the disposition and ability to relieve the sufferings of any other nation.

How true it is that struggle for continued existence is inherent in every form of organized life. How true it is that strength for continued existence is found in plant life as well as in the human field. The grapevine is unable to stand alone, but must be lifted up from the ground in order to get sunlight and air, hence it shoots out little tendrils here and there that will cling to anything that will give it light and air which means adequate support. When a child I used to wonder why it was that English ivy was able to cling to the stone or brick walls of churches. It was the persistency of life to continue. In seasons of drought how deep down do the roots of some grains go to strike moisture! During the recent balmy days rhubarb has been poking up its red nose above the soil, so tenacious is its hold upon life. Wherever you go you will come into contact with this hold upon life.

One great element of success is to make every stroke count. Failures come from making flourishes that don't count. It is one thing to swing your hands and other to grip a shovel or pickaxe. When a long-eared animal opens his mouth he only brays, when a Coolidge, a Briand, or a Stresseman opens his he says something. Saint Paul climbed all over this idea when he wrote "so fight I not as one that beateth the air." That was a lesson that he may have learned from a boxing match at one of the Olympic games. Have you not known people who seemed to be everlastingly at it but who did not seem to get anywhere? They were frugal, saving and industrious but did not seem to have anything to show for it. I once knew a mill superintendent who was all the time fuming and fretting, scolding and swearing, but he was a failure as far as manufacturing cloth was concerned. The really potential man is the quiet one who without any show and frills manages to produce something.

I suppose if it were possible it would be the tendency of human nature to just slump along with as little expenditure of energy as possible. But it has been ordained that we should struggle. Evidence of this is seen in the fact that this earth does not spontaneously produce what is necessary for the wants of man. It may be in the equatorial belt of the earth that the rich soil and the hot climate supplies the primitive wants of the people. But what do the regions of the equator amount to? What have they done to advance the mental or moral or even the economic and political life of the world. Name if you can any great, outstanding nation that borders the equator! Have not the great forces that have advanced civilization come from those nations that have had to strive and strive hard to live?

Is it not evidence of a controlling power back of life in its manifold forms that it can provide for emergencies? The scientist has always been surprised at the tenacity of life. Nature produces for a distinct purpose, therefore she does not propose to be thwarted in those purposes if possible. Whatever be the form of life created it is bestowed with the power of continuance. It can, however, be overthrown by some superior power. For instance how long the human body can stand without food has been told again and again by the survivors of shipwrecks. What the human constitution can endure along the line of disease is being brought to our notice repeatedly. Did you ever hear this said about someone who had been ill for a long time, "how long does he (or she) hang on!" Do not some of the survivals from accidents really border upon the miraculous? It all goes to show that God wants us to live as long as possible.

The keen eye of Secretary Hoover, during his brief visit to Vermont, saw the condition of things about the same as it has impressed the people of New England generally. He is reported to have said as follows: "I have nothing but profound admiration for a people who have grappled with a difficult problem so intelligently and courageously." It is exactly what we would expect of an intelligent and hardy people. Had such a calamity come to a pagan community how different would have been their mental and moral reaction! Incantations would have been sung, sacrifices offered, with "wailing and gnashing of teeth." Not so Vermont—with fixed purpose and no lamentation, they have set to work heroically to repair their losses. However it behooves New England to furnish clothing, and other things that may be absolutely needed. Evidently in the lexicon of Vermont "there is no such word as fail."

Two events occurred in the latter part of November that are deservedly important in the annals of American history. Ninety-six years ago James A. Garfield was born, whose tragic death was such a shock to the country. When the noble Lincoln was slain, the whole country was seething with bitterness, and his brutal assassination, April 14, 1865 was a logical outcome of this great political upheaval. But with Garfield it was entirely different. We were not rent asunder by any insurrection at home, nor were we at odds with any other nation. Instead of anger there was profound grief that the president had been smitten by a degenerate. This season also is the anniversary of Lincoln's Gettysburg address in 1863. It was an immortal document. The set oration for the day was delivered by Edward Everett which was a polished oration consuming two hours in delivery. But Lincoln's short speech is still ringing around the earth.

Three hundred and seven years ago the first white child was born of pilgrim parentage in America. That was the beginning of the wicked English propaganda in America. The most effective of all propaganda is the giving of a child to the world. And that is just what the shrewd English did for several generations. As a matter of fact we must keep a watchful eye on the countrymen of King George, they may still be up to something sinister. I hope the following will not frighten anybody, yet it ought to be told. The other day I saw a man on North Main street, closely withching the United States Finishing Co. He evidently was an Englishman. I thought nothing of it till I crossed the Greeneville bridge. Here I saw another Englishman looking at the plant from the water side. This made me think. He was planning a water attack and the other a land attack. My patriotism made me rush to the telephone to notify the police—in doing so I nearly fell out of bed.

SAVES COUNTLESS LIVES AT SEA EACH YEAR.

If you were going to plan a garden in your backyard, you wouldn't worry because the garden lay on a curved surface—the surface of the earth. But if you were confronted with the job of surveying an entire continent, or 3,000 miles of coast line, the earth's curvature would be an important factor. Imagine, then, being pals with a giant globe, 25,000 miles in circumference, that is whirling at the rate of four miles a second. Imagine a surveying job so big that the curvature of the earth must be taken into account. That's the job of the engineers of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, writes Commander N. H. Heck.

Now, the Coast and Geodetic Survey has sometimes been called "The Government bureau with the name nobody knows." Briefly, its scientists and engineers make the charts which guide the mariner upon the high seas and also they make the control maps upon which all detailed mapping is based.

Ships in Dangerous Places.

So it happens that the survey's fleet of ships sail ahead of the mariner and make the charts which are later followed in the commerce of the sea. This brings about a somewhat peculiar situation. The United States Coast Guard is charged by law with protecting life and property along the coasts of the United States and its possessions. Nevertheless, the ships of the Coast Guard cannot be everywhere at the same time and because the Coast and Geodetic Survey ships are usually in more or less dangerous waters, these ships are frequently called upon in the saving of life and property. They are obeying the law of the sea in this work—a higher law than any man-made statute.

During the World war the British admiralty sent out an order commanding all ships to refuse to go to the aid of any disabled vessels. This was because of the submarine menace, which in the opinion of the British high command would result in larger loss of life than to refuse aid to distressed ships. The order, given in good faith and with the best of intentions, was one of the hardest things the British sailormen ever had to contend with. As a matter of fact, there are at least rumors to the effect that the order was disregarded in more than one instance because the commander of the ship had to choose between the mutiny of his crew and the breaking of the order.

Just recently the Canadian Pacific liner Princess Charlotte, southbound through Alaskan waters, ran aground in Wrangell Narrows. Her S O S calls were picked up by the Coast and Geodetic Survey ship Explorer, working in the vicinity. The Explorer got under way immediately and after an all-night run through a dense fog reached the Princess Charlotte at 4 o'clock in the morning. Two hundred and sixty-seven passengers were removed and taken to Wrangell, Alaska.

Surveys Save More Lives.

This is just one instance in the everyday life of the engineers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Many other instances might be cited, but they all sum up into the one fact that the government agency charged with charting the coasts of the United States and its possessions is, because of the very nature of its work, a most efficient life-saving agency.

This matter of saving lives on the high seas appeals to the imagination. Saving 267 passengers from the steamer Princess Charlotte sounds like an achievement, yet, in its every day work of surveying, the Coast and Geodetic Survey saves more lives in the aggregate every year than could be packed on a thousand steamers such as the steamer Princess Charlotte.

Twenty years ago navigation in Alaskan waters was a decidedly hazardous undertaking. Up there murderous pinnacle rocks poke their spires up through deep waters, lying in wait to tear the entrails from unwary vessels. And twenty years ago the majority of these rocks were not charted. The mariner had to take his chances.

Those pinnacle rocks, many of them, are named. They are named after vessels which have been wrecked on them. Today practically every one of those rocks is placed definitely upon the charts of the United States, and ships are safe to traverse Alaskan waters as a consequence.

The marine losses in Alaska during the last five years were only $481,000, although Alaskan commerce is more than four times greater than a few years ago. Yet, from 1916 to 1920, a four-year period, the marine losses in Alaska were over three and a half million dollars, to say nothing of loss of lives.

Ocean Travel Now Safe.

In the old days going down to the sea in ships was an undertaking only a little less hazardous than attempting to cross the Atlantic by airplane. Today, with larger boats and improved navigational instruments, ocean travel is less dangerous than a ride in a flivver. But these improved conditions call for improved charts—and the Coast and Geodetic Survey today is bending every energy toward producing the sort of chart which will be of the greatest value in connection with improved methods of navigation.

On the Pacific Coast, for instance, vessels now and then run ashore in spite of modern aids to navigation because in darkness and fog they are at the mercy of the changeable currents.

The new automatic echo sounding device makes it possible for a ship at full speed to measure the depth of the water. In this way the mariner can recognize every hill and valley in the bottom though it may be half a mile below him, and if these are correctly placed on the chart he knows as definitely where he is as does the traveler on land when he recognizes familiar land marks. This can only be done, however, if the charts are complete and correct and during the last 10 years the Coast and Geodetic Survey has been busily engaged on the Pacific Coast in making charts which will meet this test even out of sight of land.

Think what modern navigational charts mean to the United States. No country is so rich that can afford out-of-date maps and charts and it is because the United States has probably the finest marine charts of any nation in the world that commerce proceeds safely and passengers and freight are brought into all the great seaports in greater safety than passengers and freight are brought into any railroad terminal in the world.

It is not merely one kind of ship which benefits from this work, but the needs of all are provided for from the great battleship, the swift destroyer, the submarine, the great ocean liner and the coasting steamers, down to yachts, pleasure craft and the small motor boats used for fishing.

It would be possible to go on almost indefinitely telling of the achievements of this, the oldest scientific bureau in the United States government, but to detail 111 years of progress is something hardly possible in a short article. In my office I have a large bookcase filled with about 90 weighty looking books. Those books give in detail the work of the survey from the time President Jefferson first authorized its formation in 1807. It is a long story, and one of fascinating interest, but for the present, we need only remember that Uncle Sam's Coast and Geodetic Survey is saving lives and saving property yworth millions of dollars.

YOUR HEALTH

HOW HIGH IS HIGH IN BLOOD PRESSURE?

By Hamilton Stillson, M. D., Seattle, Wash., Member Gorgas Memorial.

What may be high blood pressure for one person may not be high for another. For this reason it is very difficult to estimate tables of average pressure that will be of any particular value in telling if one's blood pressure is high.

There are times and conditions in which persons must be able to run their blood pressure high in order to maintain health, or at least to live and carry on. The warrior, the poet, the lover cannot be expected to maintain a placid pulse and be a warrior, a poet, or a lover. One should be able to return to placidity, of course, but he should be able to flare up if the occasion demands.

Then, too, an increasing pressure is sometimes a necessity. As age advances, there inevitably occurs a thickening of the arterial walls. The heart must increase its force in pushing the blood stream out and on through the arteries. In these cases if there has not been an increase in the blood pressure the heart has become too weak to increase it. A so-called normal pressure in these cases indicates disease rather than health.

These remarks are made because blood-pressure instruments are being used carelessly, incorrectly, and sometimes fraudulently to frighten patients. Patients themselves are beginning to apply blood-pressure instruments to their own arms to estimate their own pressure and are often alarmed unwarrantedly. Several checks must be applied to the tests to make them at all valuable. One must eliminate the elevation of pressure due to the excitement of the test itself. Merely thinking about having a blood-pressure test will sometimes run the pressure up beyond normal. Taking the pressure after a hearty meal or after walking fast will run the pressure up. The reading of the instrument must be checked by taking the pressure several times under different conditions in order to be able to tell if the pressure is abnormally high.

One should know, if his pressure should not be relatively high. He should know if the pressure returns to normal soon after necessary exertion has caused it to rise.

Moreover, it is just as necessary for you to know whether the low point of pressure (diastolic pressure) is too low or too high as it is for you to know whether the high point of pressure (the systolic pressure) is too high or too low. For the diastolic pressure has to do with the elasticity of the vessel walls. And the elasticity of the vessel walls has to do with the circulation of the blood in the capillaries where the nutrition of the tissues takes place. "How high is high" is thus not more important than "how high is low?"

So do not let anybody take your blood pressure who is not thoroughly competent to take it; who will not take sufficient pains to take it correctly, and who will not be thoroughly honest about estimating its importance in your particular case.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, U. S. N., the new chief of naval operations, is well qualified by experience for the duties of this position. Admiral Hughes was born in Bath, Me., and graduated from Annapolis in 1888. As a junior lieutenant he saw active service in the battle of Manila Bay. He was at Vera Cruz during the Mexican revolution in 1912 and again when the city was captured in 1912. During the World war he commanded the battleship New York and served with the British Grand fleet in the North sea. After the war he was commandant of the 4th Naval district and the Philadelphia Navy yard. Later he went to sea as commander of a battleship division of the Pacific fleet in 1921.

Sunday Morning Talk

Prayer.

There is a prayer of the mind, a prayer of the heart, and also a prayer of the will. The act of praying should have an effect on the will. It takes us into communion with a Friend which will lift our minds up to higher and nobler things.

The lifting of the human will to the divine has always been regarded as the supreme aim of prayer. Clement of Alexandria put it thus: "Just as men at sea attached to an anchor by a taut rope, when they pull at the anchor draw it not to themselves, but themselves to the anchor, are bringing themselves toward God."

The mental calmness of the man of prayer is proverbial. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." St. James, with what impressive simplicity advises those who lack wisdom to "ask of God, who giveth liberally and upbraideth not."

As the boy in Nathaniel Hawthorne's story grew in the likeness of the great stone face he daily regarded, so daily walks with God result in God-likeness. The person praying becomes one with the One to whom he prays.

Little Talks on Thrift

SAVE FOR DEFINITE OBJECT

While not in any sense minimizing the value of saving money, we are all learning more and more that it is not the part of true thrift to make savings the supreme object in life.

It is not thrift to save simply for the sake of saving. Economy in money matters should be merely the means to an end. Saving money just to hoard it, suggests too strongly the processes of the miser.

Save for a definite object. This means that thrift will have a different meaning for each of us. Within the circle of our own friends and acquaintances, we can note the various objectives. A father and mother are saving to give their children an education. A young couple are saving to buy a home. A man well on in years is saving so that he can some day live on the income from his investments. A young man is putting away every available dollar, hoping that by the time he is thirty he can embark in his own business.

The fact still remains, however, that an appalling number of people are simply drifting from one day to the next. Because they have no definite objective in life, they have no incentive for saving. If it so happens that you, the reader of these lines, is one of these, let this message come as an earnest suggestion that you get yourself organized. Make plans! Select an objective! Adjust your sails to the friendly winds that are blowing toward all the Ports of Success.

You will need to make the start by saving money, but only as a means to a propitious end.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Rusty Hands.

Alice came home from school one afternoon and when she walked in her bedroom she found her little sister evidently trying to conceal the fact that she had been playing with her big sister's cosmetics. She hastily picked up the bottle of hand lotion, which she had often been permitted to use, and remarked casually, "I just thought that I would use some of this on my hands, they are so rusty."

CHILD TRAINING

CONTROL OF THE MUSCLES

Minerva Hunter

"Are you glad to be back?" Elliston Brewster asked his wife when she returned from a visit to her people in the country. "I am afraid you will feel the little apartment is noisy, after the bigness and quietness of the country."

Lucia smiled. "Quietness, Elliston? It is the noisest place I have ever known. Poor little Sonny-boy did not get a full nap the whole time we were there."

"There is no quiet with Evans. He always was noisy, but now that his voice is changing it is hard on one's ears to be in the house with him. His arms and legs are so long he has difficulty in controlling them, and he races awkwardly about the house, slams doors, jumps down the stairs whoops and yells, and bumps furniture until other people are thankful when he goes out."

"Wait until Sonny-boy is older, Elliston suggested.

"Do children have to be noisy to be healthy? I somehow doubt it. Couldn't they be trained to make their noise out of doors?" Lucia asked anxiously.

"That reminds me of Aunt Rebecca and her boys," Elliston answered smiling. "She trained them to make their noise out of doors and they never guessed she was training them."

"Tell me about it."

"She started when they were mere toddlers," Elliston explained. "Practically everything she did with them had a quieting influence. Of course reading to them and telling them stories naturally would have had that effect, but she made up games, that gave them something to do quietly.

"One of the games she called 'The Mouse.' As the boys grew older they changed it somewhat and renamed it 'The Spy.' It involved going from one part of the room to another, opening and closing doors and picking up and putting down articles, without making a noise. If the one blindfolded could tell where you were and what you were doing, you had to be blindfolded in his stead.

"Another game was called 'Secrets.' In this game the child went into the kitchen and, without whispering, told his mother three things he would like for dinner. The door into the next room was closed and the brother listened from that side to hear what was said. If they could tell what was said and either of those articles appeared for dinner, then the boy who spoke so loudly received only one spoonful of the favorite dish. Unconsciously the children learned to speak softly.

"Still another game was called 'Sword's Point.' Each piece of furniture was the point of a sword and the aim of the game was to walk all around the room without getting 'pricked' as much as a scratch.' The boys liked to put the chairs close together and pass safely between them. Thus they learned to balance themselves and watch out for furniture.

"These games delighted me when I visited in the home and it was not until I was fully grown that I suspected why Aunt Rebecca had invented them. She did not prohibit noisy games, but required the boys to play them in the yard or in the barn loft which was given over entirely to them."

New French Formula Ends Rheumatic Pains

A remarkable new discovery of French Chemistry for the relief of Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia and Sciatica is securing remarkable results. This marvelous formula seems to drive out rheumatic pain just as quickly as aspirin drives out headaches. And the relief gradually tends to become permanent.

Swollen, painful, creaky joints lose their pain; stiff muscles become flexible again; agonizing twinges cease as the rheumatic poisons are neutralized and driven out of the system.

This formula is known in this country as Dr. Beaupre's Rheumatic Treatment and can be secured at any good druggist.

CONNECTICUT MOTOR LIGHT DRIVE STIRS UP MASSACHUSETTS OFFICIALS

Reprisals against Connecticut motorists who get caught in Massachusetts with defective lighting equipment on their machines is threatened by the Massachusetts registrar, Frank A. Goodwin, whose attention has been called to the rigorous campaign in this state which has resulted in 620 arrests by the state police in four nights.

The attention of the registrar, who is in charge of the Massachusetts motor vehicles department, was called to a recent case where a Holyoke motorist was stopped in Berlin by a state policeman because his car's taillight was out. The motorist is said to have at once replaced the defective bulb with a new one which he carried with him but was ordered to appear in Berlin court. As a parting shot, it was said, the trooper warned him to present himself at the date and time designated or his Massachusetts driver's license would be suspended. That is the story the automobilist told to R. J. LaPorte, secretary of the Holyoke Automobile club who communicated with Registrar Goodwin. The latter said he was "astonished that such drastic measures should be used against an out of state motorist," and he asked the automobile club of Holyoke to advise him of details of the outcome of the case with the intention of taking some action through his department, if necessary. The case referred to has not been tried as the Berlin prosecutor, following a plea by the Holyoke club agreed to continue it for a week.

Mr. Goodwin in a statement to a Hartford paper declared that if this campaign is to be continued in Connecticut then his state, out of necessity will have to take it up. "We never felt that anyone should be held up and arrested if a bulb on his automobile burned out," said Mr. Goodwin. "Any-one's automobile bulb," he continued, "is likely to go out, and to order a man into court for such a thing and to charge him with court costs, is, in my belief, the right thing to do. We will have to follow the same procedure, if it is continued in Connecticut, although we have never introduced such stern measures in any campaign of this nature and we don't want to. We hope they'll lay off in Connecticut."

Mr. Goodwin said that if such a campaign were started in Massachusetts, of course, the police would not discriminate. It would be aimed against Massachusetts drivers as well as those from out of the state, he concluded.

The Connecticut motor vehicles department Friday morning said that the position of the Massachusetts registrar had not been called to its attention, and even if it had nothing could be done about it. State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley also said that he was not aware of the Massachusetts registrar's attitude. He had no comment to make other than the declaration that he has not yet discontinued the drive against automobiles with defective lights.

Massachusetts automobile clubs claim that the treatment accorded Massachusetts motorists in this campaign is a violation of the reciprocity agreement between the two states. They point out that when the Massachusetts state inspector recently instituted a campaign against defective automobile lights and many Connecticut operators were caught, these violators instead of being summoned to court received only a ticket warning them to have the defects remedied. They contrast this treatment with that accorded their automobile drivers during the present campaign. Massachusetts papers are advising motorists to "keep out of Connecticut" after dark.

SEEKING ANNULMENT ON ALLEGATION OF FRAUD

Mrs. Louise Donati Baraqua of Groton, who married John Baraqua of this city, on Oct. 19, 1927 at New London, has brought suit in the superior court for annulment of the marriage. The suit is returnable in December.

In the complaint it is alleged that at the time of the marriage, and for a long time prior thereto, the defendant, Baraqua, was suffering from an ailment of which he was fully aware, and he fraudulently and falsely entered into the marriage contract well knowing his condition, and yet in order to induce the marriage designedly and deceitfully concealed the fact of his condition from the plaintiff, who was ignorant of it and who had no reason to know or suppose it existed, and had she known of it would not have entered into the marriage contract.

PUMPING ALL NIGHT TO KEEP EXCAVATION CLEAR

Two employes of the water department were to be busy all night Friday running a hand pump to keep the water from filling a manhole at the Main and Shetucket street corner where there was a leak in the 10-inch water main that would have filled the manhole by morning unless the pump was kept going.

The leak was located Friday when an excavation was dug alongside the manhole.

RECOVERING FROM INJURIES; WAS HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. George W. Rathbun is recovering at her home, 32 Dunham street, from injuries she received when she was knocked down last Monday night by an automobile when state policemen were stopping cars at Dunham street to examine them for defective headlights and taillights. At the same time as she was hit her small son was knocked over and another child was pulled out of the way just in time to save it from being crushed against a pole which the automobile hit.

The driver of the machine, who was said to be a prominent New London man, had such poor control of his car that it mounted the curb and hit the pole before it stopped. He was allowed to proceed by the state policemen and no report of the accident was made here as far as could be learned, although those who were caught with defective lighting equipment were summoned into court.

BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

Since the annual meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of the Backus hospital, the principal business of the auxiliary has been the membership campaign, which opened by five minute talks by Henry A. Tirrell and Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, chairman of the membership committee, at the dinner of the Woman's City club in October, and 50 memberships were secured that evening. Great hope was entertained of increased interest, and larger membership. With this end in view every effort has been made by the committee —the suburban committee working in Occum, Baltic, Yantic, Leffingwell Town, Franklin, Colchester, Gales Ferry, Hanover and Bozrah. To date 500 members have enrolled; the campaign is still going on, and every one who has not already sent the fee of one dollar to Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, is urged to do so now. Surely the women of Norwich should be proud to belong to so valuable an organization as the Woman's auxiliary.

Meanwhile the regular work of the auxiliary has been carried on. Many magazines and books have been taken to the hospital by the literature committee, which supplies the nurses' home as well as the patients with reading matter, includnig the daily papers, and are very grateful for books or magazines which will be called for, if those having them to spare will notify Miss Jane Bill, 81 Lincoln avenue.

The production committee has been at work since September 28th, meeting as usual in the sun parlor of the nurses' home. This committee has some very faithful workers and hopes for more, as the year goes on. Three lots of sewing work have been given out to sewing circles, 1,400 dressings have been made. These were of six different kinds and most of them were packed and worked for the sterilizer.

The finance committee have very definite objects for which they are planning to raise money, these plans to be revealed later.

During the summer the power chimney had to be cleaned and partially rebuilt, to insure safety, and the boilers were retubed.

Those in charge are proud of the fact that the average expense a day has been cut down. The annual report which is being prepared will give a full account of conditions.

Affiliation with the Yale School of Nursing which has been started is most gratifying. Three nurses are now taking the five months' course.

Donations of linen have been gratefully received, and Mrs. Charles Saxton will collect any which may be given as there is always need for this material.

On Friday evening, Oct. 28th, the nurses held their annual Halloween frolic and dance. The assembly room was very festive, being gaily decorated with autumn leaves, corn stalks and lanterns. Each nurse was attired in masquerade costume for the march. Games were played, fortunes told and refreshments peculiar to Halloween were served. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour, music being furnished by D'Atri's orchestra.

Halloween was noted by decorating the supper trays with bright colored paper napkins, appropriate to the occasion, and the flower committee furnished flowers for that week end.

The holiday and flower committees arranged for Thanksgiving with plans under way for the Christmas celebration.

The United Congregational and Park Congregational churches have had charge of visiting during November—the United Congregational church providing music rendered by the B Natural club on November 13, with Park church choir responsible for November 20th.

During October and November generous donations have been received including books and magazines, flowers and plants, linen, cold cream jars, bath towels, dish towels, baby clothes, a subscription to a weekly newspaper for one year, favors and napkins for trays, from the following donors:

Mrs. James A. Bidwell, Christ church, Mrs. Park Smith, Mrs. Agnes Leahy, Mrs. Flint Brayton, Mrs. Tongren, Magazine committee, Mrs. L. O. Smith, Mrs. Lucius Briggs, Mrs. Gardner Green, Miss Williamson, Miss Armstrong, Mrs. H. Randall, G. H. Francis, Mrs. Hilderbrand, Mrs. Sayles, Mrs. John Tarrant, Mrs. Retkowski, Harold F. Burgess, Mrs. Allis, Mrs. Charles Spicer, Mrs. Cohnen, Mrs. Gilman, Mrs. L. A. Bowers, Miss Helen Perkins, Mrs. A. Chamberlain, Mrs. Lester, Mrs. Ricketson, Needlework guild, Mrs. J. M. Neil, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Christ church, Mrs. L. O. Smith, Home Service guild of Park Congregational church, Miss Ella Norton, Mrs. Roy Judd, Mrs. Driscoll (Ladies' auxiliary), Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Clinton E. Lane, F. L. Wodka Vs. Austin Suit Withdrawn

The $11,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Kamilla Wodka of Montville against Malcolm Austin of this city has been withdrawn from the superior court without costs. The suit was assigned for trial in the superior court, but it was reported that a settlement was reached out of court. ARMY-NAVY GAME TODAY BRINGS EASTERN FOOTBALL SEASON TO A CLOSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A powerful, seasoned squad of football stalwarts in army gray and a young band in the navy's blue encamped tonight on the outskirts of this city in readiness for their thirtieth annual "private fight" at the Polo grounds tomorrow.

Legions and battalions of supporters drawn by the prospect of one of the most colorful spectacles in sport meanwhile were converging on the city and taking it by storm. Of the estimated 700,000 persons who sought seats for the service game this year only 76,000 can be served and pasteboards were reported selling from $75 to $150 in the Sub Rosa marts along Broadway.

Although far from matching the gigantic spectacle at Soldier Field, Chicago, last fall, tomorrow's battle will rank with the most colorful of these service classics. President Coolidge will not attend but Secretaries Davis and Wilbur will be there to represent the rival war and navy establishments, along with scores of high service officials, and prominent figures in national state and city life.

On its record of only one defeat this year and that at the hands of Yale as well as on its imposing array of veterans of last season's 21 to 21 tie, the Army ruled a decided favorite. Odds which at one time were quoted at 2 to 1, however, showed a tendency to shrink.

Comparative scores of the games played against Notre Dame—the only opponent met this season by both service elevens—added to the paper margin in favor of the Army team.

While the Navy was trampled by the light cavalry of Notre Dame by a 19 to 6 score in its third game of the season, the Army astounded the forecasters just two Saturdays ago by spilling the same mighty eleven 18 to 0.

Army's defeat by Yale and the setbacks of the Navy by Notre Dame and Michigan will rob the 1927 classic of any championship bearing but can take away none of the glamor of this service fray which rings down the curtain upon the eastern football campaign.

While Navy's attack is built for the most part around fullback "Whitey" Lloyd who weighs close to 200, the Army backfield has three big guns with Wilson and Cagle leading the running attack and Murrell doing Howitzer duty against the line.

Both teams put in workouts this afternoon but the Cadets alone had their drill at the Polo grounds. It was a secret practice even newspapermen barred. Afterward, however, Head Coach Lawrence "Biff" Jones declared it consisted only of light work and signal practice.

"The team is in good shape," Jones declared. "Naturally, we hope to win but we expect a hard fight. I don't take much stock in the Army being a favorite."

The Midshipmen worked out at the Westchester-Biltmore Country club, Rye, N. Y., where they will spend the night, but Head Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram was non-committal about the game or his team's chances. The Army will stay over-night at the New York Athletic club's location on Travers Island.

The Cadet corps and brigade of Midshipmen will arrive shortly before the game, leaving West Pont and Annapolis tomorrow morning.

Tentative starting lineups for the Army-Navy football game at the Polo grounds at 2 o'colck tomorrow afternoon were announced as follows by the coaches of the institutions tonight:

Army		Navy
Hall	Center	Hardin
Seeman	Right Guard	Woerner
Perry	Right Tackle	Giese
Born	Right End	Smith
Nave	Quarterback	Hannegan (Capt.)
Cagle	Left Halfback	Lloyd
Wilson (Capt.)	Right Halfback	Ransford
Murrell	Fullback	Clifton

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON AT ARMY-NAVY GAME TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Many a government office here will be deserted tomorrow—all because of the Army-Navy football game in New York.

President Coolidge will not attend, but at least four cabinet officers, among them Secretary of War Davis and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, will watch the fray. In addition, many other high government officials, members of congress, army and navy officers of all ranks and foreign diplomats are joining the trek to the Metropolis which got under way today.

So many supporters of the Army team are feeling the football urge that it appeared probable that there would not even be an acting secretary of war on the job here tomorrow. That would be almost unprecedented.

In the West Point stands, in addition to Secretary Davis, will be his two war department aides, Assistant Secretaries MacNider and Davison, as well as Major General Summerall, chief of staff, and practically every high ranking officer stationed in Washington.

Across the field, backing up the Navy, will be Secretary Wilbur, Assistant Secretaries Robinson and Warner, and Admiral Hughes, the new chief of naval operations.

Secretary Hoover will be Mr. Wilbur's guest at the game, while Secretary Davis of the labor department is the other cabinet officer who has made definite plans to see the spectacle.

There will be the usual turnout of football-loving senators, and house or representatives members in the stands will include Speaker Longworth and Representative Britten, of Illinois, a member of the house naval committee who was instrumental in having last year's Army-Navy game played in Chicago.

President Coolidge who will have an opportunity to listen in on the play on the radio, has seen one football tussle between the service academies—the game at Baltimore three years ago. Last Saturday he saw the tilt here between the All-Marines and the All-Army teams and presented the president's cup to the victorious Marines.

THREE INTERSECTIONAL CONTESTS THIS AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Three major intersectional battles, headed by the Notre-Dame—Southern California game at Chicago, and several traditional tussles, featured the Army-Navy classic in New York, furnish a climax to the national college football season tomorrow.

The intersectional contest also include two on the Pacific coast, one between Drake and California and the other between the Oregon Aggies and Carnegie. Other traditional affairs include the game between Holy Cross and Boston college at Boston.

The prospect is that only the championship races in the southern and Pacific coast conferences will remain to be settled after tomorrow. Four already have been decided while a fifth, in the Rocky Mountain conference, likely will be settled when the two leaders, Colorado Aggies and Colorado college, meet. Here are the situations:

Championships Decided

East—Pittsburgh and Yale at top, each with strong claim to mythical sectional honors.

Western Conference—Won by Illinois, with five straight victories.

Southwestern Conference—Won by Texas Aggies with four victories and one tie.

Missouri Valley Conference—Won by Missouri with five triumphs and one defeat.

Rocky Mountain Conference—Two leaders, Colorado Aggies and Colorado college, meet tomorrow.

Pacific Coast Conference—Stanford, Southern California and Idaho all undefeated; final standing hinges on game between Southern California and Washington on Dec. 3.

Southern Conference—Georgia leading with best record, winning nine straight games from all opponents, but meets Georgia Tech on Dec. 3.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED AT CHICAGO TODAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(AP)—The University of Southern California, undefeated, and with only a tie with Stanford to tarnish its brilliant record this season, will engage Notre Dame on Soldier Field tomorrow, in the first eastern invasion of a California team.

The battle will be witnessed by another throng of 110,000 spectators, thus equalling the football attendance record for all time set when the Army played the Navy on the same field a year ago. The demand for tickets has been just as great as for the spectacular service clash, and if Soldier Field could accommodate a quarter million persons, all of them would be trying to squeeze into the stadium.

Weather indications tonight point to a mild afternoon with a temperature considerably above freezing. The gridiron therefore will be dry and fast, assuring a firm footing, the field has been well protected for a week with a coating of hay.

The Trojans, perhaps, the strongest team on the coast, and possessing individual stars as well as a powerful machine, are actually engaging in more than a football game with Notre Dame. They are, pioneering among California elevens, in coming into mid-western territory to play.

Previous intersectional games, involving California teams and those on this side of the Rockies, have been confined altogether to engagements in which the burden of lengthy travel and climatic changes have fallen on California's opponents.

Tomorrow Southern California reverses that procedure to play the return engagement of the home and home series with Notre Dame. Twice in recent years the Notre Dame teams have made long jaunts to the coast and twice they have returned victorious. A year ago, Coach Knute Rockne's warriors snatched a 13 to 12 victory from Southern California after a terrific battle.

These Trojans, possessing power and more power, will attempt tomorrow to wipe out that one point victory scored over them last fall. With Morley Drury, their contribution to All-American fame, acting as the spear-head of their attack, the Californians believe they can add another victory to their season's string, defeating Notre Dame, after the fashion that the Army ran over Rockne's Ramblers.

Notre Dame, while grimly confident, refused to make any advance claims to victory. All Rockne would say was:

"Tomorrow's game certainly is not going to be a peanut rolling contest."

HOLY CROSS WILL SEND FULL STRENGTH AGAINST B. C.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 25—(AP)—Holy Cross will face Boston college tomorrow with every member of its football team ready for duty with the exception of Sammy Drais, right. Drais is in the college infirmary with a bad cold.

Cervini and Daly, the two injured stars, will both open the game, Coach O'Donnell announced after today's lengthy indoor blackboard session. The Purple's starting lineup includes four sophomores, three of them at backfield posts. It is: Karpowitz le, Mahaney lt, Cervini lg, O'Connell or Phelan c, Mikelaski rg, C. F. Connors rt, Alzorini re, Ryan qb, Donovan lhb, Clancy rhb and Daly fb.

CANADIAN RACETRACKS MAY DISCONTINUE

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 25—(AP)—Racetracks at Hamilton, Windsor and for Erie may not conduct their annual meetings next year unless reduction of the daily license fee of $5,000 and decrease in the five per cent tax levied on the pari-mutuel machines is granted by the Ontario government W. M. P. Fraser, secretary of the Canadian Racing association, said today.

This decision was reached by representatives of these horse racing establishments at a meeting of the racing association, Mr. Fraser said.

RISKO BEATS PAULINO IN FURIOUS BATTLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—In one of the most furious and bruising heavyweight battles ever staged in Madison Square Garden Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, battled his way to the front ranks of title contenders with a clean-cut ten round victory over Paulino Uzcudun, of Spain. Uzcudun weighed 198; Risko 192.

For almost every minute of the struggle, a slashing, bruising combat that found both exhausted at the close, Risko, the baker boy, met the Spaniard at his own game and outslugged him. There were no knockdowns, but Paulino, victor over Harry Wills, Tom Heeney and Knute Hansen during his American invasion, was groggy and reeling at the close.

In each of the ten rounds, Risko chose to stand head to head with the Spaniard, pouring in a steady volley of rights and lefts to the head while Paulino concentrated his fire on the body and 15,000 fans rocked the Garden with their roars. There was no question of the winner at the close, a majority of the ringside critics crediting Risko with seven rounds with two for Paulino and one even.

The Preliminaries

Yale Okun, New York light heavyweight, won a bruising ten round bout from Harold Mays, of Bayonne, N. J. Okun weighed 174; Mays 180.

Rosy Boutot, a huge fellow from Portland, Me., knocked out Andre Tastano, Spanish heavyweight, in a single round of a scheduled six rounder. Tastano was down twice before a right hook finished him. Boutot weighed 217 1-2; Tastano 196 1-2.

Willie Zeigel, 130, of New York, knocked out Billy Kennedy, 137, of New Orleans, near the close of the opening four round match.

Jack Gross, promising youngster from Philadelphia and one of the few left-handed heavyweights in competition, clearly outscored the veteran Sandy Seifert, of Pittsburgh, in a ten round semi-final. Gross won every round with solid southpaw smashes to the head and body. Gross weighed 195; Seifert 188 1-2.

WALKER GAINS MOST GROUND IN BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(AP)—Frank Walker, sophomore halfback on the champion Illinois football team of the Western Conference, led the Big Ten this year as the most consistent ground gainer, averaging five and one-third yards every time he took the ball, according to figures completed today. Perfect interference started Walker off on several long runs, and he managed to get away for at least one big gain in each of his five games.

Judg Timm and Fritz Humbert, the line-smashers of the Illini, gained the highest total of yardage among Big Ten ball carriers, 318 and 344 yards respectively. Herb Joesting and Shorty Almquist of Minnesota, ranked next to the Illinois pair with 305 and 310 yards. Walker was fifth with a total of 283. Paul Armil, Iowa's fullback, hit the line even more than Joesting, responding to his signal 95 times, compared with 86 for the Minnesota captain.

Paul Harrell, Indiana quarterback, had the highest average yardage, 7.19 yards for 21 trips with the ball in four games, but all these plays except four occurred in the Northwestern game where he got away for one 74-yard run.

Minnesota and Illinois, the two undefeated teams of the conference, rolled up the most yardage, 1,004 for the Gophers, and 1,256 for the champion Illini.

JERSEY CITY CLUB SOLD TO MONTREAL INTERESTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Negotiations for the purchase of the Jersey City Internationals by a million dollar Montreal corporation have been completed, John Conway Toole, president of the league, disclosed today. The transfer of the franchise, effective for the 1928 season, is expected to be ratified by the league club owners at their annual meeting here next Monday.

George T. Stallings, "miracle man" of the Boston Braves of 1914 and manager of the Rochester Internationals this year, is a prime mover in the new Montreal organization, which will put the Canadian city back in the league after an absence of eleven years. Stallings will be manager and a member of the board of directors.

Nobility will have a hand in the Montreal club's affairs, Mr. Toole revealed, in announcing that Lord Shaughnessy will be a director. Athanase David of Montreal, is president of the corporation, which, Mr. Toole said, had acquired park facilities and obtained a charter.

Purchase of the Newark, N. J., club by Paul Block, publisher, already has been ratified by the International league but Mr. Block will attend his first annual meeting here.

Industrial Meeting Postponed

The meeting of teams for the newly planned Industrial basketball league was put over from Friday night to the coming week. Notices will be sent out today by W. C. McKean, the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. sponsors of the league and things are expected to get started in earnest during the coming week for the opening of the season the second week of December. It is planned to have eight teams.

Notices for a meeting of the two church leagues will be mailed today also by the Y. M. C. A. This meeting will be held Tuesday night, Nov. 29.

To Have Split Season

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 25—(AP)—The Southern association will inaugurate a split season next year, the first half starting April 10.

Baseball club owners decided upon this innovation at their annual fall meeting.

WALKER HANDS BERLENBACH TOUGH BEATING IN TEN SAVAGE ROUNDS

COLISEUM, Chicago, Nov. 25—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, failed to knock out Paul Berlenbach, one-time world's light heavyweight champion, but had no trouble winning the decision in ten savage rounds tonight.

The match, fought in the Coliseum, drew 9,000 with gate receipts of $52,000.

Walker, conceding 11 1-4 pounds in weight, gave Berlenbach an unmerciful beating, winning every round.

He floored Berlenbach in the fourth, falling on top of him, when he followed through on his terrific left hook to the chin.

From then on, Berlenbach was on the receiving end. Walker rarely missed left hooks to the body. His rights cracked against Paul's chin with distressing effect.

Paralyzing Paul made occasional flurries, for the most part he blindly plodded forward, absorbing those terrific wallops without batting an eye.

The Preliminaries

Joe Guinan, Philadelphia lightweight, clearly outpointed Jerry "Red" Dolan of Chicago in six rounds, but the judges thought otherwise.

They gave the verdict to the Chicago boy and then the crowd gave it to the judges, greeting the verdict with boos.

Patsy Pollock, Canadian welterweight, won the decision over Heavy Andrews, of Erie, Pa., in six rounds.

Billy Light, St. Paul, 174-pounder, won the verdict over Jack Silver, of San Francisco in eight rounds. Silver was dropped for a count of nine in the third. He did not win a round.

BALTIC MAROONS LOSE FIRST GAME OF SEASON

The Baltic Maroons lost the first game of the 1927-1928 season to the Assumption Collegian five at the Baltic club gym on Friday night, 27 to 17. The Collegians proved to be fast passing boys and their floor work was too speedy for the Baltic team. Individual honors were divided between Wilcox of the Maroons and Valade of the Collegians. CENTENARY ISSUES CHALLENGE TO GEORGIA FOR GAME

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 25—(AP)—Coach Homer P. Norton of Centenary college today issued a challenge for a post season football game with the University of Georgia.

In issuing his challenge to the potial southern conference champions, Coach Norton declared that the record of Centenary entitled the team to a chance against Georgia "before any southern championship is awarded."

Centenary was undefeated and untied this year. The team ran up 216 points in ten games. Centenary is not a member of the southern conference.

HARVARD ATTENDANCE NOT HURT BY BROADCASTING

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Harvard's gate receipts have not been affected by the radio broadcasting of football games at the stadium, university officials said today. During the past season each game was "put on the air" and the attendance of each of these games, except that with Brown, was greater than last year, it was pointed out.

ACADEMY-ALUMNI GAME TODAY

The Academy's football season closes this afternoon at the campus with a capable Alumni team providing the opposition. The game starts at 2:30. The graduates are favored to win for in addition to being big, strong and experienced, they also boast probably more teamwork than has been the case with the ex-men in the many years of the rivalry between those local factions.

The postponement from Thanksgiving has helped both teams. No doubt the Alumni will be possessed of a bit more coordination today than would have been the case a few days previous while the two day's interim may send Freddy Fox, chunky, little, capable guard back into the fray.

The Alumni will hold a final practice this morning at the campus at 10:30.

The field will probably be in the best shape in some time for today's game. The rain of Thursday seems to have left it in just the right condition for plenty of the hard, aggressive football so familiar with this annual classic. The fact that the varsity has not won since 1923 and only twice since 1913 will spur both teams on to greater efforts. There is also the thought before the Academy that a win today will give the team six victories for the season, the largest number compiled by a Red and White grid machine in many years. Last year's strong team came mighty near that mark, winning five and then battled to no score with the graduates.

It is expected that eight of last year's team will see service today against the present defenders of the Red and White and they, no doubt, would like nothing better than to smear a defeat and a bad one onto the 1927 edition's record. The record of this year's team is the same going into the final clash as was the case in 1926 but this time the Alumni seem to be better and the flashing figures of Jack Hinrichs, Ed Brewer, Pete Labenski, Pheno Tombari, Marty Gilman, Dan Polsky and other of N. F. A.'s favorite sons may work havoc with a lighter Academy team that, however, is full of fight.

Today will be the last Academy grid appearance of Ingalls, Kahn, Shea, LaCroix, Tirrell, Kelly and Vitliano of the regulars. Johnny Greene, who is also slated to leave in June, will in all probability not see service because of an injury.

Both team's lineups are practically the same as announced Thursday, namely, N. F. A.—LaCroix, le; Shea, lt; Mish, lg; Ingalls, c; Fox, rg; Kahn, rt; Berghinzo, re; Tirrell, qb; Vitliano, lhb; Kelly, rhb; Capt. Marks, fb. Alumni—Tombari, le; Polsky, lt; Gulomb, lg; Schwartz, c; Gilman, rg; Paul McNamara, rt; Hussey, re; Williams, qb; Hinrichs, lhb; Labenski, rhb; Brewer, fb.

ALL-COAST TEAM HAS BEEN NAMED BY COACHES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25—(AP)—Morley Drury, Southern California backfield star, was unanimously chosen a member of the 1927 all-coast football team announced today by The Associated Press after a border to border poll of coaches, officials and sports editors along the Pacific slope.

Seventeen authorities, making their selections for The Associated Press, agreed on Drury, 18 placing him at quarterback and four naming him for a halfback position. The Trojan captain was the only candidate receiving recognition from all.

Washington and Stanford each placed three men on the honorary eleven.

Jess Hibbs, Southern California tackle, fell one vote short of unanimous choice while Larry Bettencourt, St. Mary's great center and captain, was selected for that position by twelve critics. Several of those naming teams picked their candidates from the Pacific coast conference teams:

Position	Player	College
End	Phillips	California
End	Schuh	Washington
Tackle	Hibbs	S. Calif.
Tackle	Coltrin	California
Guard	Wright	Washington
Guard	Post	Stanford
Center	Bettencourt	St. Mary's
Quarterback	Drury	S. Calif.
Halfback	Carroll	Washington
Halfback	Hyland	Stanford
Fullback	Hoffman	Stanford

DONOHUE MAKES FIRST MOVE IN AMATEUR BOXING

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 25—(AP)—State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue was an interested spectator at an amateur boxing card here tonight and after the Billy Taylor-Pinky Kaufman bout which was won by Taylor, notified Kaufman that he would be called to a hearing at the commissioner's office for boxing on amateur role.

The commissioner told The Associated Press that he had positive information that Kaufman had fought a man named Burns at Columbus, Ohio, on October 28, in the semi-final bout of 8 rounds on a professional card.

"I announced recently that I would clear up boxing in this state and see to it that amateur boxers were really amateurs, and I intend to do it," the commissioner said. "Kaufman's is the first case that has come to my attention but I intend to take in amateur cards at New Haven, Bridgeport and other places about the state and see for myself just how these boutsare being run and who is appearing in them."

Donohue did not say when he would give Kaufman a hearing but he did say that the hearing could hardly change the information which he already has in his possession.

BOSTON COLLEGE TO USE FULL LINEUP TODAY

BOSTON, Nov. 25—(AP)—Boston college will have its full varsity strength for the first time this season when the Eagles clash with Holy Cross in their objective game here tomorrow. Captain Tom O'Brien, whose absence was feared because of injury, was reported tonight in perfect physical condition.

Supporters of Boston college tonight were looking for a fast passing and running attack. Reservations at Braves field indicated a record crowd of 45,000 for the game.

The Boston college squad of 20 players practiced twice today at the Sandy Burr Country club in Wayland where they will remain until tomorrow before game time.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Lumine Ballard and daughter, Onalda, have been visitors in Occum.

A whist party was held at the home of Miss Onalda Ballard Monday evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Laura Knabe and Miss Lucinda Houle. Games, instrumental music and singing were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostess and favors were distributed to the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Barstow left Wednesday for Windham, where they will spend the winter with Mr Barstow's son, Cassius.

Plainfield Rod and Gun club held a game supper at the Lawton Inn early in the week. The decorations were notworthy. Mr. Reardon, of Putnam, furnished game from his large collection, wildcat, some fine hawks, also pheasants and woodcock being featured. The Indian feather caps that each guest found as favors at his place, were novel souvenirs. About seventy sat down to the table among them guests from Hartford, Canterbury, Wauregan, Moosup, Danielson, Jewett City, Sterling, Putnam and Hampton. Rev. William C. Prentiss said grace. The menu included fruit cocktail, soup, rabbit pie, olives, celery, lobster salad, with hot roast venison, mashed potato, mashed turnip, cranberry sauce, boiled onions, apple pie, ice cream, punch, cider and coffee. An orchestra furnished music. Joseph Williamson, chief game warden of the state, was the principle speaker. His interesting address was on the work of the state in stocking game, setting aside reservations and efforts to enforce the game laws. It drew forth questions and discussions. Owing to lack of time, only a few other guests were asked to speak. Rev. Father John Landry spoke of his hunting experiences in Maine, as did Rev. George H. Brown. Mr. Selley expressed his pleasure in being present. The committee in charge was George Babcock, T. J. Driscoll and Lester Salisbury. Dr. Arthur A. Chase was toastmaster and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Smith had charge of the decorations and service.

The annual union Thanksgiving service was held this year in Wauregan, at the Congregational church. Rev. W. H. Dunnack, pastor of Moosup M. E. church, preached the sermon. The invocation was by the Wauregan pastor, Rev. William Williams. The President's proclamation was read by Cecil Butler, of Plainfield. Rev. George Reese, of Central Village, led the responsive readings. Rev. William C. Prentiss read the scripture lesson. Rev. C. S. Nightingale, of Moosup, offered prayer and Ira Libby read the Governor's proclamation.

State Trade School.

Interesting phases of the training at the State Trade school are shown in the type job work performed by boys and girls in the various departments. The major undertaking this year is the building of a Dutch Colonial house on School street for Henry J. Dubois. This work is being done by the carpentry students with electrical and masonry departments co-operating. The considerably increased enrollment this year has been very favorably handled by the extra space provided by the recent addition and also by the new equipment which has been added throughout the past summer. Drafting and related subjects are very important and interesting part of the work being arranged on the basis of what each trade particularly requires in the way of academic training. It is felt that a definite treatment of each trade

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

AUNT JEMIMA'S PLASTER.

Aunt Jemima she was old, but very kind and clever,
She had a notion of her own that she would marry never.
She said that she'd live in peace and none should be her master;
She made her living, day by day, in selling of a plaster.

Chorus

Sheepskin and beeswax made this awful plaster;
The more you try to get it off the more
it sticks the faster;
Sheepskin and beeswax made this
awful plaster;
The more you try to get it off the more
it sticks the faster.

She had a sister very tall, and if she'd kept on growing
She might have been a giant now; in fact there is no knowing.
All of a sudden she became of her own height the master
And all because upon each toe Jemima put a plaster.

There was a thief, night and day, kept robbing of the neighbors,
But none could find the rascal out, with all their tricks and labors.
She set a trap upon the step and caught him with a plaster;
The more he tried to get away the more he stuck the faster.

Her neighbor had a Thomas cat that ate like any glutton.
It never caught a mouse or rat, but stole both milk and mutton.
To keep it home she tried her best, but ne'er could be its master,
Until she stuck it to the floor with Aunt Jemima's plaster.

Now if you have a dog or cat, a husband, wife or lover
That you would wish to keep at home, this L plaster just discover.
And if you wish to live in peace avoiding all disaster,
Take my advice and try the strength of Aunt Jemima's plaster.

THE WILLOW-PATTERN PLATE.

Betty in the kitchen broke a willow pattern plate,
I spoke to her severely, but I spoke a moment late
To save those little people from a very dreadful fate,
Whose fortune's told in blue upon the willow-pattern plate.

Two blue little people come running together,
Across a blue bridge in the sunshiny weather,
They run from a garden where stands
a blue tree
Above the blue house of a wealthy Chinee.
The one is a maiden, the other her lover—
A blue weeping willow hangs half the bridge over,
Behind, in pursuit, comes papa, with a whip,
But they're over the bridge and aboard the blue ship
That her lover has moored by the strand of the sea—
With a shove off the shore from his wrath they are free.
Now deep in the water the oars they are plying,
While high in the heavens the blue
doves are flying,
To his blue island home her lover will waft her,
And there they will happily live ever after.

This is the story of the willow-pattern plate,
So please be very careful though it's only one and eight—
And remember that you have in hand
a very precious freight,
When you carry from the kitchen a willow-pattern plate.

BELOW DECEMBER SKIES.

When you are dust, and I am dust,
Below December skies,
Will other hands touch clingingly,
And eyes glance into eyes?

When you are still, and I am still,
And snow flies through the air,
Will slim flakes melt upon warm lips,
And nestle in bright hair?

When you are dust, and I am dust,
Will other hearth fires, gleaming,
Make Winter evenings all a-thrill
With joyous dreaming?

When years have passed—dim lin - of them,
Each with its white December,
Will you and I, so long asleep,
Remember?

RECALLING OTHER DAYS

Dear Social Members and Editor: Thanksgiving has come and gone once more. Each time some one is missing from the family circle, either passed on, or gone to some other field. The saying is true, time and tide make great changes. But of those of us who are here I only hope they were able to have a happy gathering, and had many things to be thankful for.

Caring for cut flowers seems to be a great problem among many who are not familiar with them, especially those which comes from the florist, for they always keep them in an ice box in the dark. This explains why they so readily begin to wilt. Try adding a little salt, soda, or vichy and clipping the stems a little. It is best not to set them where strong light falls upon them, and if the room is rather warm, try putting small chunks of ice into the vase. Do not be afraid of changing the water, and daily clipping the stems a little, then note how much longer your cut flowers will remain fresh and beautiful. These are secrets that do not go with the flowers when they are purchased from the florist. I hope they may be of some help to those who have to purchase cut flowers in the winter time.

Historian: So you at last have come out of your reverie, or trance, and want to know why I did not tell what caused the Lindleys to choose such a death. There are perhaps enough who remain willing to do that, but I will say, the old rope still remains on one of the beams in the cellar now in this village. I well recall when that special meeting was called in Union hall, and they voted to discontinue our outside school districts, and promised the people if consolidation of the schools did not prove a benefit to the town they would be reopened. Instead, first we knew, the town was bonded for $30,000 and here we are, struggling on. Some of the school houses gone to ruin and only the foundation remains.

Are our children who are under supervision today, when they leave our town schools as qualified as they were a few years ago? Back in my day in the village school, when the children were through they were fitted for the second year at the Free Academy. In our town today, we have a teacher as capable as you can find anywhere, and has always been highly recommended by all of the supervisors, giving the most perfect satisfaction. She obtained her education in the school house where she now teaches, and at one time was one of Historian's pupils, as well as myself. I am proud to say that the first lady principal of our grammer school still lives in our village, but she taught here before my time, which was more than 40 years ago. This brings to my mind, that Grandma Gray, also at one time taught in our town also her husband, and she has two daughters who also were teachers in our township.

Historian and I perhaps, as we turn the pages of the years backwood, could write many interesting articles upon my home town, but will let it rest for a while.

Best wishes to all.

DOING SATURDAY'S WORK

Dear Sisters I thought I must write a few lines this week as I saw the page was short of letters. This is a very busy week with Thanksgiving and all but think if we tried hard we could get a few minutes to write a few lines any way. So I hope to see the page this week good and full. I don't think we are half thankful enough for what we have to enjoy. If we would just stop and think as we go along and count our blessings compared with many others that are not so fortuna e as we are, we would not find any fault. So let us stop and think for a moment. I have heard people say sometimes, speaking of others, how they seemed to get along so smoothly but we don't know the situation of each one. People need not think they are any better off than we are. It doesn't make any difference if we live in a hut or a swell place, if we are not contented we are not happy. I have often thought what a blessing work is. I certainly do enjoy working. I think there are a lot of people that would get along a lot better if they just would get interested in some kind of work.

Now I am going to tell you how I plan my Saturday's work. I suppose some sister will say. "I don't like her style a bit but she can do just as she has a mind to, of course." Well in the first place, if I am to make apple pies I pare the apples the night before so as to have them ready and after breakfast Saturday morning, before I wash a dish, I sweep the kitchen and wash the floor. Do I hear someone pooh at that? I wash it in the morning before I get too tired. That is when you have the most vigor. I do love to cook in a clean kitchen and while the floor is drying I go in the sitting room and read a few lines and then after it dries I go about my other work and I don't see but the floor looks just as well as if it was washed later. Does any one thank you for washing it when you are tired out with doing the other work? I try to plan my work each day and have a little time to myself in the afternoon to do as I please. Now let us hear from other sisters as to how they plan theirs.

Primrose: I will try to write you a few lines soon. Why can't you come down? I don't seem to get up to see you. Don't wait for me. Just as glad to see you.

Historian: I am just putting on the finishing touches to my scarf. Thank you for thinking of me.

Ma of Greene Gables: I would like to taste your squash pies. They all tell about your making so many.

Nonesopretty: How would you like to be playing tag on the old Bear rock? Think it would be rather cold just now. Have you been to a Social Corner picnic lately? I don't think that I will get down south this winter but would like to very much. Can't leave home very well. Hope you are feeling well this winter.

RURAL AUNTY.

SOME RECENT TRIPS

Dear Editor and Everybody: As I am alone again this afternoon (the Mr. and Mrs. have gone to Willimantic for a little drive) I'll entertain myself by conversing with my friends in the silent language of the pen. It seems to be company for me when I'm alone. Armistice day morning we went to a neighbors to see the lifeless remains of little Lorraine Henault, 9 years old, who died in a Massachusetts hospital. Truly, I never saw anything that was dead that was so beautiful. She looked like a wax doll, in fact, in all my long life I never saw one so young before that had passed away.

We had dinner, then watched the parade which was said to be a mile long After that we started for my old home town, saw the flowers on Mrs. Covell's grave. Sorry we could not attend the funeral. The flowers were many and beautiful. As I looked upon them I could not believe that she was there lying under them.

Saturday we went into Massachusetts, went through Wilsonville, where they were searching for the body of a young woman supposed to have lost her life in an auto accident the previous Tuesday. We didn't get as far as "Purgatory." It is said it goes far ahead of "The Devil's Hop Yard." (I think the name spoils it for me.) Sunday, we went down the road. Called on a friend and invited her along, went through Sterling, Central Village and Moosup saw the damage done by the recent flood along the way. Then we went as far as Fairbanks' bridge, which was entirely wiped out. Some sight! On our way home we called on a friend in Central Village, left the lady in Wauregan, who went with us, having greatly enjoyed the entire trip.

Now hoping everybody will have a most bountiful Thanksgiving, and you all will have real cause for being glad, I will close this hasty letter.

ANN TENNA.

THE VISITING DRESSMAKER.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Among the occupations that have passed or are passing is that of the visiting dressmaker or seamstress who formerly went from house to house carrying a bag containing fashion books and implements of her trade. One of the faithful women of a past day. I remember well. She was almost as much of an institution in our little village when I was a young woman as was the library or post office. From 8 a. m. till 6 p. m. she toiled, taking only a little rest at the noon hour. Her stipend with $1 per day with dinner and supper. Her services were so much in demand that we had to engage her about six months in advance and her visits to us were really quite some events in our quiet life. Some of these visiting dressmakers have been credited with dispensing choice bits of scandal to attentive listeners as they served or fitted garments. But this could not be said of the quiet little lady who made our best dresses. No family skeletons were ever exposed by her nor any gossip retailed save that of a perfectly harmless nature. No dress could be made in two hours when I was a young woman. Button holes, for instance, required time as well as skill and I am confident no finer ones were ever made than those done by our Miss E.

One of the things to be thankful for in 1927, I guess is that button holes, for the most part, have gone out of fashion The only ones I ever produced were of the kind not to be shown. What contraptions we did wear way back yonder! Basques and polonaises, for instance. I'm not sure I have spelled the names correctly. I confess I wore the things but never made any. Our little seamstress never lost patience and we knew when we selected the style we wanted from the illustrations in her fashion books that the finished product wou'd be O. K.

This sewing in the village homes was Miss E—'s life work—literrally from "glossy tress to thin gray hair," believe she worked until the very end—retiring as usual one night and before morning passing on to the Great Beyond. I shall always revere her memory.

Such excellent advice is given in a few lines in my home town paper of last week that I want to pass it on.

"Build for yourself a strong box,
Fashion each part with care,
Fit it up with clasp and padlock,
Put all your troubles there,
Place therein all your heartaches,
And each bitter cup you quaff,
Fasten the top down securely,
Then—sit on the lid and laugh.
Tell no one of its contents,
Never its secrets share,
Place therein all your worries,
Lock them forever there;
Hide them from sight so completely,
The world will never dream half;
Fasten the top down securely,
Then—sit on the lid and laugh."

With friendly thoughts for you all and with thankfulness that our Corner is still growing seeds of kindness.

TELL US ABOUT STATE PARKS AND LOOKOUT STATIONS.

Dear Editor and Sisters: A subject for your attention, dear Sisters. No doubt you all noticed the short article on State Parks in Saturday's Bulletin. Now can anyone tell me how it is known as to how many visit the various parks? Is there any place at the parks for visitors to register?

We drove through the Devil's Hopyard this fall and I did not see any place for visitors to register or anyone who appeared to be checking up on those present. There must have been a hundred people there that day. Now how do they get counted? It certainly is a lovely place, a good objective for a picnic party.

Now what I wanted to suggest is this—will those sisters who live near the state parks or who are well acquainted with them, take them for subjects for letters, tell their history, their position on the map and how to get to them, and all the facts about them they can find.

To begin with, Ann Tenna spoke of the Mashamoquet Meadows. Please tell us all about them. I think it would be nice, also, if we could be told about the various fire lookout stations in the state.

Rose Lee: You served us a wonderful dinner at this month's meeting, and especially the macaroni that some one said you made was so delicious that I wish you would tell us how it is made. Do tell us in next week's paper, don't wait till I see you again.

CHATTY LETTER FROM COMFORT

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have not been napping for the past ages, but have been busy doing and going from one place to the other, but now my harvesting is completed. I am more at leisure. My pop corn is all husked and is hanging on a hook over my kitchen stove, my vegetables are all gathered and in their winter quarters, so are my gladiolus and dahlias. Our Indian summer and this beautiful weather is still with us. How much we have to be thankful for. Just one week ago today we were meeting with Club No. 2 at Buckingham, but not so many as usual were present. Our tables were not full and running over with guests as they usually are. I should think Calla Lily's patience would get exhausted, for she has so much planning and so many changes to make. But she seems to be equal to it every time, and every place. They say it is not always what you say that keeps the wheels rolling smooth, but the way you say it. Was glad to see Joan at our last meeting. Glad she is improving, but I look and look for Arice, when I get on the bus to go to the Social Corner, but I look in vain. I suppose she is doing her harvesting. She has to do her planning, and then execute it the same as I do. That is a very independent way. I often hear Phuller Phun's phone ring. I sometimes pass her house, but never see her at the window. I could see her house from my veranda only for the large brick house that intervenes.

Was glad to hear Kochia carried off so many blue ribbons at the grange fair. I think it would make him feel as though the top on one shoe was thicker than the other. I think I used to go to school with Kochia's uncles. One little fellow came to school and as it was customary when the little ones were through reading to ask them their names and where they lived. This little one would say when asked his name Oh! Oh! dear me suz I am George Cleveland. There was a brother older. I think his name was John, and a sister younger than the brothers. As I remember her name was Ella, but she was too young to come to school. I think she is Kochia's mother. But this happened in the days when Palmleaf taught school in the Thomas Tyler district.

I want to thank the sisters who sent me cards on my birthday, although it was some time ago. Best wishes to all who are sick and in trouble.

COMFORT.

BREAK IN FAMILY CIRCLE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here I am once more to see how you all are. I am sure I have thought of writing a good many times but have been so unsettled in mind as I just lost my dear mother. I wrote before in my letter of her breaking her kneecap but we never dreamed that she had heart trouble until one morning she passed away and left us so quickly. We could not understand why we had no warning of anything new being the matter. Dear Mother, her sufferings are over but her going left an awfu. vacancy in our family circle which gathers every Christmas. It will be a sad time for us this year but we shall all gather with our dear old dad as we know he misses her far more than we, as he is entirely alone, and we all have other dear ones with us all the time to take up our time and minds.

At this writing Thanksgiving is almost here and dear sisters, though we may have our sorrows we still have so many things to be thankful for. Hope Rosy Posy is feeling better as she was a good friend and neighbor to dear mother in her last ll ness. We all have our trials but they say God knows best so we must abide by His will and trust in His goodness and strength so we may do our best to meet the dear ones waiting for us.

BECOMES CORNER MEMBER.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I attended the meeting of Club No. 1 and would like to become a member of the Corner. Will take for my pen name—FREELOVE.

CLUB NO. 6 MAKES APPROPRIATION

Dear Social Corner Members: Here it is Thanksgiving once more. I suppose many of you are planning for large parties and will have a nice time. This year we will be by ourselves. We all have much to be thankful for if we stop to think about it and it seems to me health is about the best thing we can have. Although a little late I want to say what a nice meeting we had on the 15th. There were about 60 in attendance and much praise is due Tish and Topsy as it was their first time at entertaining in the Social Corner and every thing went splendidly. It was voted to give $15 to the Westerly chapter, Red Cross, $15 to the flood sufferers of Vermont, $5 to the People's mission in Westerly both at Thanksgiving and Christmas. Our next meeting will come the second Tuesday in December so it will not come so near Christmas and two more of our newer members are to be hostesses. Notice will be given later.

B. Natural: Where were you? Thought you were coming.

Cosmos: Mr. B has gone, said he would liked to have seen you again.

Y. Y.: Oh yes, flat came my way too. Drove five miles on a flat Sunday then bought a new one. That's only three new ones in a month and the fourth is ordered.

Tafts: You see I guessed right about the cook, for Black Eyed Susie says so too. Have made a loaf of your brown bread today.

Calla Lily: I had to laugh over your letter but it might be a good thing to check up the food brought in. In our club we are very fortunate to have generous givers. Hope to meet with you before long.

REDUCING CALORIES

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have had several requests to write about calories. As I did not feel well acquainted with them myself, I have been studying them up with my favorite doctor.

These are calories for reducing and I have just arrived to the point where I understand what they mean and how to take them.

I will review it briefly, for it is important: 150 to 200 calories of vegetables, part raw; 200 calories of fruit, part raw; 160 calories of skim buttermilk, or cottage cheese; 200 calories of potato or whole wheat bread, or cereals or some other starchy food, and 150 calories of high protein food (meat, eggs, fish, etc.) This comes approximately to 900 calories daily.

The reason I say 900 calories of these foods, for the doctor says they will supply the necessary vitamins, mineral elements, protein and part of the carbohydrates. All of these are highly essential. This amount of food, however, the doctor says, is not sufficient to supply our energy needs so our own excess fat will be called upon to do the work.

We can have each day, 800 calories more than the doctor outlined and still be on the 1,200 calories which will reduce almost any adult from one to 2 pounds a week. If you are very active, and especially if you have a large frame, you can probably reduce one to 2 pounds a week on a daily allowance of 1,500 calories or even more. If you do not wish to reduce so rapidly as one or two pounds a week we can have a more liberal diet. The doctor tells me the-eat-and-grow-thin menus written by laymen who know nothing of dietetics, which tell you to cut out all fats and all starches, thus making an excessively high protein diet, will bring on a state of acidosis and auto-intoxication which may be worse than the original condition of over-weight.

I am going to tell you how to distribute your calories. You can take them during the day in any manner which you find most convenient. Take them all in one meal then drink water the rest of the day, take them in two meals or take them in five meals.

The doctor said the most of the patients find the best results, 400 calories for breakfast and a dinner at night of the balance of the 1,200 calories.

A good menu: Breakfast, which consists of one cup of coffee, with 100 calories of cream and sugar (1 1-3 ounces heavy cream is 100 calories; 2 cubes of sugar are 100 calories) or a cup of clear coffee and 100 calories of coffee cake, and then have 600 to 800 for lunch and the balance of the calories for the evening meal.

A very satisfactory lunch is a glass of milk (160 calories), a slice of whole wheat bread, one-half inch thick, or a shredded wheat biscuit (100 calories), and a large apple (100 calories). This totals 360 calories, as I count it. One pint of milk alone is 320 calories, this makes quite a satisfactory lunch. Another is a large plate of any kind of greens (50 calories), with a slightly rounding tablespoon of mayonnaise (100 calories), a heaping tablespoon cottage cheese (50 calories), and a slice of wheat bread (100 calories).

If it is inconvenient for you to obtain these things, you could have fruit for lunch. At tea, if you do not feel the need of anything to eat, you can make it up at dinner time which is 100 calories. Sometimes the doctor says a big glass of water will satisfy the hunger contractions. Hunger is supposed to be caused by the contractions of the empty stomach. Try a tiny bit of lemon or orange peel, or a clove will have the same effect.

The commercial vegetable and meat extracts make good broths when mixed with hot water, a cupful of such broth is practically calorieless. It is best to take a liberal supply while reducing. It is not fattening.

I have studied quite a bit about calories the past two weeks in order to find out about them, and I am to find out a daily foundation reducing diet.

I made up my mind at first I would not bother myself with it but I commenced studying and I am really interested and shall surely try it as I found in order to write menus for a paper I had to understand that part.

WHY I GIVE THANKS

Dear Sisters: At 40 I made a discovery that I was an old fashioned woman

When the knowledge first dawned upon me, I was almost as much shocked as I was surprised. All my life I had prided myself upon being broad, upon forming my ideas and standards and regulating my conduct without any sentimental regard for old ideas or convictions. My friends have sustained me in my conception of myself. To this day Carrie's admiring eyes carry such pictures of me in their depths, and one who has known me all my life, has never ceased to exercise over me, a sort of restraining watchful care. To them, and to all my other old time friends, I am a free soul, brave and beautiful, but daring. They tremble lest I be misunderstood and censured by a conventional world.

I have youth too, in their eyes, and it is true I had shaken the wings of my years carelessly, as they came, and never felt their weight. There had always been plenty of time for love, for ambition, for rest, for surcease, for completion. There had been youth in my smile, in my eyes, in my figure, in my springing walk, in my hopes and aspirations.

Now, all at once, I was 40 years old. It's really an odd feeling, this suddenly belonging to a new life, and listening to a door close behind one.

Nor is all this just because I had passed the formidable 40. It was that I had suddenly seen, and recognized myself, as an old fashioned woman and the surprise had done what all the birthdays had failed to accomplish.

I was an old fashioned woman.

It seems incredible, yet three months of a big city had sealed my claim to the title, and the involuntary rebellion it first awakened in me had given me place, to first, a wondering acceptance and finally to a real thanksgiving.

For I am glad at last and give thanks from the bottom of my heart, that I have continued to be an old fashioned woman.

All sorts of clever people I met, most of them very young, who accepted me as if I, too, were as young as they, charming young women, who interpreted the Spring song and Asa's Death terpsichorically; smartly groomed young men connected with this or that institution. Don't mistake me. They were real people, little more seriously then, than a sense of humor would seem to warrant, still some excuse might be found in the very creditable achievements to which they could already point.

Things seemed so different to me. It was about this time I began to have a curious sensation of something missing, wherever I went. At last I was able to give it a name.

It was mother.

Nobody had one, that is, not a visible one. They were located here and there in various states. But why were there no mothers?

I became a person with one idea, one puzzle to solve. Didn't anybody want a mother?

It was inevitable. I must ask somebody so I chose Miss E. I didn't attempt to cushion my question. I added, "Don't you ever want your mother?

"Of course, said Miss E., aged 25. It would be nice, but mother never enjoys the things I do, or quite understands my work." After all you know we are each individuals and must have individual lives.

I see now that I was only theory, they are practice, and I do not like the way the problem works out.

Back in the old grim days when the first Thanksgiving was held in a New England forest, the family was a principality, a little kingdom. Love or family was almost another form of patriotism. I have always accepted my family quite cavalierly as something every one had in duplicate, but it has taken a big city to make me realize that I am the fortunate possessor of a real antique.

I give thanks that I am.

FINE TIME AT IRMA'S.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Well, here I am again. What a lovely time we had last Thursday at Irma's beautiful home. Such a dinner too. It was fit for a king, and it was a very enjoyable day for us all, I am sure.

Irma: I hope you are feeling all right. Expect you were very tired, but hope you feel all rested up and ready for this hard week getting ready for Thanksgiving.

We will all be busy this week, and I hope everyone will have a pleasant Thanksgiving day. We all have so much to be thankful for.

Butterfly: I hope you are feeling fine. Wasn't that a fine dinner?

Had a nice call from Moses' Wife Friday morning. Of course she caught me cleaning, all dressed up in my sweeping cap.

Bay State: I think it is up to you now to fill the orders. I was glad to see Daisy Dean and Kentucky Wonder at the meeting Thursday. Haven't seen them in a long time. Was like old times to have them with us again.

Lotus: I saw you going home from church Sunday morning.

Well I guess I will have to sign off now. With best wishes to all.

BLANKET PROTECTORS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have any of the housekeepers had trouble with blankets or quilts getting soiled at the top? Sometimes the top of bedding which comes in contact with the hands becomes soiled from perspiration and all the rest of the blanket will be as good as new. The heavy bedding, especially the eider-down quilts, are costly. They cannot be washed and if the top is soiled the niceness is gone from them. This can be avoided by tacking a piece of white cloth across the top and letting it come down about six inches on both sides. This cover can be easily removed for washing and replaced.

In case of young girls who are unusually particular, linen, embroidered very prettily, can be used, and the outer edge can be hemstitched. Then when the bed is pulled apart, "the little lady" cannot complain that there is anything about the bed not dainty.

Joan: Was glad to see a letter from you as I always look for one.

Double Fuschia and Windham Blue Bell: You both have my sympathy in your bereavement.

Canterbury Bell: How are you getting along? It's a long time since I saw you. Thought perhaps you would be at the gathering of Club No. 5. Mary France and I were there and had a very good time. Sorry we had to miss the entertaintment, but we had a long ride before us.

Effie M.: Don't you think I am good to take your advice. Just in from a walk, and a letter to the Corner. I missed the last meeting in Willimantic, but hope to be present at the next one.

A happy Thanksgiving to all.

PLEASANT MEMORIES OF DECREASED MEMBERS

Dear Social Corner Folks: In the first place I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip received for my September letter. Then to extend to all who are ill or in sorrow, my sincere sympathy. I shall always have a pleasant memory of a number of those who have recently left us. Gadabout was the first Social Corner sister I met, and with a mutual friend where she was visiting, we had a jolly time together. If I mistake not, Amy was one of the sisters who welcomed Saturday Eve and myself, when, in the early days of our membership in the Corner, we used to go to Willimantic to visit Club No. 1, and find out "who was who." Then our own Lydia of Club No. 4, will be remembered as one who brightened our little Corner when able to be with us.

Now I am glad to say that I attended the Hallowe'en picnic at the home of those who are now our sisters, Corena and Lily Pad. Also the meeting last week, with Sister Irma. The weather on the former occasion was as perfect as a day in June and a little rain on the latter did not keep any one at home. Too much credit cannot be given the sisters who have opened their homes to us this fall, whereby the membership of Club No. 4, has been considerably increased. A special collection was taken at Irma's and it was voted to send $5 to the Red Cross for the flood sufferers.

With best wishes,

PRIMROSE.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER.

Dear Editor Social Corner: I have visited the meetings of Club No. 1 of the Social Corner of Willimantic, and like it very much. I would like to become a member. Will take for a pen name

COMMUTER'S HOURS AND AUTO TRIP.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: This has been such a lovely autumn it's hard to believe it's almost Thanksgiving. Petunias in the porch box not yet hurt by frost (Nov. 21st). Last week had a lovely old rose aster in full bloom, in a sheltered spot. I wonder how many of the sisters enjoy flowers as well as I? It is hard work, but one is well repaid. This year I had about 40 kinds, besides dahlias, hollyhocks, iris, roses and the house plants. The latter are a comfort during the long winter, especially the petunias which bloom so freely. The Jerusalem cherry is a beauty, and easily raised from the seed. This is the first year I have raised the blue eyed African daisy. Have two cuttings of Dr. Van Fleet roses under 1-quart glass jars which, if nothing happens, will remain fresh and green all winter. A little later shall cover them over with burlap, with a box over that. It was my good fortune to have another delightful auto trip of five days with the same kind friends who took us to Cape Cod in September. This time we went to New Rochelle, following the old Boston Post road with its lovely scenery all the way. Stopped in Bridgeport for lunch. New Rochelle is very lovely and represents much wealth. We had some delightful rides and saw several residential parks being opened up all over beautiful Westchester county. Some corporation buys up acres of wood land, a handsome stone entrance is built into the grounds, streets are laid out, leaving all the lovely trees they can, a few model homes are built, then they have an "opening day," with some noted personage to speak—like Roxy, Ethel Barrymore, etc., and they sell the lots. I forgot to say these model homes are all complete, even the lawn graded and seeded, shrubbery and evergreens set out, everything done that money can pay for. The houses are the latest thing in architecture. We went through one of the models homes, open for inspection. It was all ready to furnish, heavy paper had been laid on all the floors to protect them, and from cellar to attic it was perfect! The part that appealed to me most was the butler's pantry and the sun room. We drove all around White Plains, Mt. Vernon, Larchmont, etc., and one day into New York city. Had a delightful ride out to Kensico dam, New York city's water supply, where a whole village was taken out of this valley and an immense dam built, which in itself is a thing of beauty, a wonderful piece of masonry. Two rows of cars go across the top of it and two police are on duty to care for the traffic. We hoped to take a trip to Bear mountain but it was too cold. On the way home stopped in Guilford to call on old friends.

Will close with recipe for ginger apple, which is very nice.

Ginger Apple: 3 pounds apples cut in small chunks, 3 pounds sugar, 2 lemons, little ginger root, 2 cups water (including water lemon is cooked in). Cut lemon in thin slices, cook till rind is tender, put all together and cook slowly till right consistency. Can be put in jelly glasses. Pour paroware over it.

Best wishes to all.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Dear Social Corner Friends: The great increase in prices of everything which the war brought us has placed many who had been accustomed to be generous givers and helpers in the class of those barely able financially to meet ordinary ordinary living expenses, so entirely different plans are necessary now.

But fortunately the biggest gifts are not those that can be bought with money, so we need not be discouraged if we have no money that we ought to put into gifts. We can still give cheer to someone if we try. We can inspire someone who has become discouraged.

Said a man who had been a poor, uneducated boy, "I had a friend who encouraged me to get an education and advance my position after I was a married man. He kept me at it until I held the highest position in the company where I had begun at the lowest."

Because "I had a friend" caused a young man to succeed as a writer. The extra amount he earns every year by his writing is like an annual Christmas gift from his friend, but is many times more than he could expect as a gift and cost the inspirer only a few words of encouragement at the right time.

"She said to me what changed my whole life," is occasionally heard from someone and should be heard oftener.

When I think of criminals and those not doing their best, I always think what it would have meant to them to have had "a friend" to say the right word at the right time and so have prevented the ruined life.

Select gifts the child or person can use and enjoy.

I shall never forget the perfect bliss of a four months child when I gave him his first toy, a rattle with a doll's face on it. His parents thinking him too young for playthings, had never given him anything to hold and look at.

A child loves beautiful things. A four year old boy was thrilled with a beautiful doll. Don't buy the homely ones. They ought never to be made. If no one would buy them they would not be.

Ten cent gifts for young children. Plenty of pencils and drawing books and crayons, games, toy automobiles and airplanes. They always welcome a new one. Of course every child would have a wagon, kiddy car, coaster, sled and watch, the necessities of childhood.

I am glad that so many schools and community Christmas celebrations plan to see that all the children in the district have these. That is a work for the wealthy childless citizens in a community.

One boy was delighted with another of the Curly Top story books. The best gift of another boy who likes drawing was plenty of nice drawing paper and a book of house plans. Another boy is collecting a fine set of carpenter's tools, his choice for a gift is another tool. An old table in the basement makes a corner of his own where he spends many happy hours working with his tools. One boy's best gift was a handsome homemade bookcase in which he kept all his books and treasures.

It seems easier to select gifts for girls, for they enjoy the things boys like and also everything that women like; sewing for dolls and housekeeping work of all kinds.

Housekeepers like something they really need and can use, folding tables, chairs, and couches for those who have little room or for those who could use them on auto outings. A bottle of choice extract, a good food chopper, a glass baking dish, canned fruits and jells are always welcome gifts. A widow who had seen more affluent days was cheered by her annual gift from an old friend, a box of canned meats and soups and vegetables, extracts, packages of dried fruits, a delicious expensive gift, but very helpful.

A bride prized a loose leaf blank book of recipes, suggestions and ideas on many subjects collected by her old friend the giver.

Sometimes we spend time and money on the wrong thing. I shall never forget the chagrin of a young girl who made a knit garment for a friend only to find out her friend had long wanted a teacher's Bible, which would have cost less than the wool and saved her many tedious hours of knitting.

Too often we select something we enjoy buying, when the cash would have been a delightful surprise with the pleasure of being able to select what one really likes.

A neighbor said to a busy young mother of several children, "I will take care of your baby afternoons and do your mending for a month before Christmas." "If you could it would be the best gift I ever had," she said. "I cannot find the time to arrange for our Christmas for the children, but your plan will help me out. We cannot afford to buy much for them, but I do want them to have a happy time."

ART AND PRINCIPLES OF COOKING.

Dear Corner Sisters: It may not be considered out of place to make a few remarks here, on the art and principles of cookery, for nearly all will acknowledge cooking not only to be an art, as well as a science. To know how to cook economically is an art. Making money is an art. Now is there not more money made and lost in the kitchen than almost anywhere else? Does not many a hard-working man have his substance wasted in the kitchen? Does not many a shiftless man have his substance saved in the kitchen? A careless cook can waste as much as a man can earn, which might as well be saved. It is not what we earn as much as what we save, that makes us well off. A long and happy life is the reward of obedience to nature's laws; and to be independent of want, is not to want what we do not need. Prodigality and idleness constitute a crime against humanity. But frugality and industry, combined with moral virtue and intelligence will insure individual happiness and national prosperity. Economy is an institute of nature and enforced by Bible precept, "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost." Saving is a more difficult art than earning. Some people put dimes into pies and puddings, where others only put in cents. The cent dishes are the most healthy. Almost any woman can cook well, if she has plenty with which to do it, but the real science of cooking is to be able to cook a good meal, or dish, with but little out of which to make it. As to the principles of cooking, remember that water cannot be made more than boiling hot—no matter how much you hasten the fire, you cannot hasten the cooking of meat, potatoes, etc., one moment. A brisk boil is sufficient. When meat is to be boiled for eating put it into boiling water at the beginning, but if you wish to extract these juices for soup or broth, but the meat in small pieces into cold water and let it simmer slowly. The same principle holds good in baking also. Make the oven the right heat, and give it time to bake through, is the true plan if you attempt to hurry it, you only burn, instead of cooking it done.

If you attempt the boiling to hurry, the wood only is wasted. But, in attempting the baking to hurry, the food, as well, isn't fit to be tasted.

Many thanks, Round Robin, for your recipe for Johnny cake. It must be good with the honey. I will try it some time. I will send you my recipe for pork cake. Pork cake, without butter, milk or eggs, a most delightful cake is made by the use of pork which saves the expense of butter, eggs and milk. It must be tasted to be appreciated and another advantage of it is that you can make enough, some leisure day to last the season through for I have eaten it two months after it was baked, still nice and moist.

Pork Cake: Fat salt pork, entirely free of lean or rind, chopped so fine as to be almost like lard, 1 lb; pour boiling water upon it, ½ pint; raisins seeded and chopped, 1 lb; citron, shaved into shreds, ¼ lb; sugar, 2 cups; molasses, 1 cup; saleratus, 1 teaspoon rubbed fine and put into the molasses. Mix these all together, and stir in sifted flour to make the consistency of common cake mixtures, then stir in nutmeg and cloves finely ground 1 ounce each; cinnamon also fine, 1 ounces. Be governed about the time of baking it by putting a silver into it. When nothing adheres it is done. It should be baked slowly.

You can substitute other fruit in place of the raisins, if desired, using as much or as little as you please, or none at all, and still have a nice cake. In this respect you call it the accommodation cake, as it accommodates itself to the wishes or circumstances of its lovers. When pork will do all we here claim for it who will longer contend that it is not fit to eat? Who!

May one and all read this with good part.

FRIENDS

Dear Social Corner Friends: To the Social Corner members I wish to thank all who kindly, by word or deed, expressed their sympathy to me in my recent bereavement. How nice it is to have friends when we are in trouble and the way looks dark ahead. At this time we must say, "Thy will be done."

Very truly yours,

THE NICE LITTLE THINGS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have you ever thought of this saying, "It's the little things that count?"

It is usually so is it not, when life's petty annoyances almost overwhelm us, "when every little thing" seems to go wrong, that we sigh at these molehills grown into mountains, and say, "Life is made out of little things." By that we mean little worries—little hurts to our sensitive feelings, "little evidences of selfishness" in the loved ones we work so hard to please.

But listen how about the nice little things? Surely the world is not entirely cluttered up with little bothers and disagreeable snarls of worries forever stinging us. Really, when you come to think of it, there are quite a lot of nice things which are little to be sure, doing their bit to make us comfortable and happy, and half the time we never even notice them. We have taken them so for granted, year after year that we have forgotten the joy of appreciating them.

Let's see what some of them are. Here comes the first little green blades of crocuses, first heralds of a brand new spring with profuse and glorious

WESTERLY

SECTION MAN AMEDIE DOZZI KILLED ON RAILROAD FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 25—Amedie Dozzi, 50, residing at 77 Pierce street, Westerly, employed for 20 years as a section hand in the work train crew of Foreman Frank Boffi, met sudden death this morning about 11:30 while at work on the road-bed of the New Haven railroad, about two miles west of Kingston station.

There was no witness of the fatality, which occurred where the roadbed is bordered by swampy land, but it was thought that he was struck by the locomotive of the east-bound Bay State express due to make the Westerly station stop at 11:57 a. m. At the time the work train was employed in distributing new iron, and trains were operating back track and this may have been a contributing cause of the accident.

Dr. John P. Jones of Wakefield, was summoned and the man was found to have a fracture of the skull as well as a broken leg and arm. The Shoreliner express, train No. 19, was stopped in the swamp and the body placed in the baggage car on a stretcher, and arriving at Westerly at 2.15, was taken to undertaking rooms on Canal street.

The man leaves a son, Romi Dozzi, 30 years old, employed by Contractor Paul Juliano in Westerly. His wife is living in Italy.

FIRE SHARPS ASSEMBLE FOR TESTS OF NEW PUMPER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Nov. 25—Today at 11 a. m. on the Sherman upper dock, Pawcatuck river, began the New England Underwriters test of the 1,000 gallon Ahrens-Fox motor pumper which the Westerly Fire district is about to add to its fire fighting equipment. The test, lasting well into the afternoon was witnessed by a large crowd of onlookers, which included officials of many fire departments about Westerly. There were present Robert Bonner, first assistant engineer of the Westerly department and acting chief during the incapacity of Fire Chief George E. Egger; George A. McKenzie, second assistant engineer; and Columbus Passeti, third assistant engineer. The New England agent of the manufacturers, Harry Carlow, of Taunton, Mass., as well as Westerly dealer Max Raithel, were present.

Among visiting fire department officials were Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton of Norwich who came to Westerly in his red official car accompanied by his driver, Charles H. Culver. Capt. Dennis G. Brennan and John F. Ulrich. From New London came Fire Chief Thomas H. Shipman and former Chief Rose; Chief Charles Main of the Stonington Fire department; Charles H. Lamb of the Pleasant View Fire department and many others. The underwriters' official was A. S. Wright, 18 Oliver street, Boston, who made the gauge readings from time to time to be checked with the manufacturer's chart of Agent Carlow's.

The general test was under three conditions, for capacity pumping, the first of two hours' duration and the second and third one-half hour each.

The test was to be at 120 pounds net pump pressure; pumping 500 gallons per minute at 200 pounds net pump pressure and pumping 335 gallons per minute at 250 pounds net pump pressure.

The first layout of hose was of 100 feet into a deluge set with two inch nozzle tip; there were delivered between 1050 and 1060 gallons per minute with the engine turning 1018 revolutions per minute.

On the 1,000-gallon per minute test the pumper kept up to 1030 gallons per minute at two-thirds motor speed and at the end of the two-hours of pumping was opened up at full speed, pumping 1167 gallons per minute.

On the half-capacity test the pumper pumped 517 galons per minute, through an inch-and-a-half nozzle. On the third test at 250 pounds pressure the pumper was pumping 250 gallons to the minute.

The Westerly Fire department engineers making the observations on the tryout had visited Fire Chief George E. Egger at his home on Narragansett avenue. They were pleased to note improvement in the condition of the chief. He expressed to them his interest in the test being made.

Following adjournment, and upon the arrival of State Trooper Frank W. Pierce No. 36, Judge Williams again entered the court room when the state trooper presented Frank Joglowski, 36, of Potter Hill, R. I., for alleged operation of an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The defendant was arrested near Hopkinton City on the Nooseneck Hill road Thursday evening about 7:30 and brought to Westerly. He was taken to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, who gave his opinion that the man was under the influence of alcohol. He was then locked up in Westerly police station.

Trooper Pierce testified that complaint was made to the Hope Valley barracks that a passing automobilist had been side-swiped by a drunken driver and hub caps knocked off, while the operator proceeded. The trooper said that he found Joglowski had struck the automobile which was parked off at one side of the road and then had proceeded four miles. When found he was up a steep bank, where the wheels mired was all that prevented the Ford sedan from turning over.

Dr. Scanlon testified that his examination Thursday evening showed the man under the influence of alcohol but in the court room Friday he was probably faint from lack of food. As the man grew white in the face Judge Williams directed Sheriff Mitchell to see that he had some hot soup and coffee.

Saying, "I am satisfied that you were drunk and should go to Providence county jail for thirty days," Judge Williams added, "I want to look into the case further and see about your family." The defendant is Polish and appeared at times not to understand all that was said to him.

LOREN PARK A BIG MAN IN NEWARK BASEBALL CIRCLES

Loren Park came from Newark, N. J., to pay his brother, Chief H. H. Park, a visit for a few days. He told several of his friends at the waiting room about when he left Noank to see the world, many years ago, working from town to town and getting to Newark, where he made his home. He got into baseball and soon became a scout for Newark ball team. He has never played a game of baseball in his life, but put in many long hours studying the national game. He can pick a star player by looking him over once. He also has sent young stars to the Newark team who made the big league. Later on he became manager and now he is treasurer of the National Baseball association, also on the committee. So in December he will go to Dallas, Texas, to the meeting which discusses plans for the coming season. Loren Park knows every baseball player in each league. He showed several letters from different cities asking him about baseball matters. One letter was from a football coach at West Point, Biff Jones, sending him two tickets to the Army and Navy game in New York this week. His talk interested everybody in the waiting room for twenty minutes. It pleased all to have a former Noank man make good in the world.

Noank Crushers football team failed to get the Speedboys of Jewett City down on Turkey day, so coach Red DiBiasi booked a team of the village called the Old Timers of 19'4, players seen in action on different college teams. At 10:30, at Larkin Field, Thanksgiving, a large crowd of fans gathered to watch their annual battle. In the backfield for the Old Timers were 4 horsemen for the Old phy, quarterback; Deer L. Stearns, right halfback, and his brother, Lightning B. Stearns, left halfback; Big Ed. Cunningham, fullback. For the Crushers, they stood pat on their light backfield and as the turkeys were getting brown in the ovens, the game got under way. The Old Timers received the "kick and the fans gave forth with a big cheer. Lightning Stearns ran it for 25 yards. Before getting caught on an old trick play, the Timers slipped around right end for 12 yards, but the line of Crushers held them and they lost the ball. It came their turn to try it, so, Capt. Deveau called for a forward pass, but is was knocked down. The fast men, Deer Brucci, tried to hit the center of the line but failed to gain any and Fash McDonald punted out of danger. Soon the whistle blew for the first half was over, Crushers 0, Old Timers 0. As the second half got going, it started to rain and it grew cold, but the fans were watching a good game and braved the chilly rain. The game was full of thrills and not until the final quarter did the fire works come. Capt. Deveau, for the fighting Crushers, ran 25 yards for a touchdown, but Boots B. Bracci failed to kick the extra point and it was 6 for the Crushers. That did not bother the Old Timers who had seen many close battles. With only two minutes to play, the Crushers punted near the Old Timers' goal and Big Ed Cunningham caught the ball and raced 75 yards through the whole Crushers' team, tying the score. The good right foot of Deer Stearns made it 7 and the game ended, Old Timers 7, Crushers 6. Gee, what a football game! The stars for the Crushers were Capt. Deveau and Boots B. Bracci; for Old Timers, Big Cunningham and the Stearns brothers. Referee Eddie Morgan. This game ended the football season in the village. Now basketball will be the indoor sport for the winter. Crushers have won 6 and lost 3 games.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Sheffield, of Saybrook, are visiting Noank relatives for a few days.

John Smith, of Midway, spent the holiday in the village.

Thanksgiving day morning services were held at the Baptist church. Rev. E. E. Weise told about Thanksgiving day and what it means.

James DeVine and Miss Julia O'Day, of Hartford, were coming to Noank to spend a few days with friends, and getting near the outskirts of New London, the automobile broke down when two bearings burned out. A garage wrecking car towed it in for repairs. He and the young lady had to walk three miles to a trolley car, for the village, arriving at 12:30 a. m., Thursday, over three hours late. He was mad not to make the village on time, but she said "it's all right! When the autos are running away, not when they fail, it is like a dollar watch." It is past time anything like that happened to Mr. DeVine. He said "better luck next time." His car was ready at noon Thursday.

Keith Elberts has gone to New York to spend the winter.

Ronno Balerstine, of Shannock, R. I. has been calling on relatives in the village.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Mrs. Lenny Whitham of Groton, state lecturer of the grange, was a visitor at the meeting of Norwich Grange, No. 172, in Steiner hall on Wednesday evening, giving an address that was listened to with much interest by the well attended meeting. Mrs. Whitham likened the grange to an institution, the foundation of which had been laid by the founders while the membership is engaged in erecting the building. She asked the members to inquire of themselves whether they were stumbling blocks or stepping stones. Those who act only as stumbling blocks are the indifferent, the jealous, the critics and the shirkers, while those who are in the other classification are the workers, who show enthusiasm, cooperation and faithfulness. Those are true patrons in the community, she said, who demonstrate faith in God, nuture hope, display charity and are noted for fidelity.

The lecturer's program for the evening was along Thanksgiving lines and included the following:

Solo, Keep the Grange Fires Burning, Miss Charlotte Fowler; Thanksgiving prayer, Charles E. Ellis; Origin of Thanksgiving, Mrs. Anna Woods; Birth of Thanksgiving, Miss Edith Woodmansee; Thanksgiving day, Miss June Woods; Thanksgiving poem (Guest) Mrs. Clara Burke; reading, Thanksgiving Prayer, Miss Louise Avery; roll call, Why I Am Thankful; song, Love's Old Sweet Song, Mrs. Clara Burke. A group of songs was delightfully given by Miss Anna Stockdale and a short play was well rendered by the cast which included Thelma Marsh, Anna Stockdale, Irene Stockdale, Helen Watters, Mrs. Smith, Teresa Watters and Ralph Marsh.

Members attending the committee brought many contributions of jelly and preserves which were later taken to the Sheltering Arms and the Rock Nook home as the grange's Thanksgiving donation.

Report was made by the community service committee on the tree planting on the Lake street playgrounds and an invitation was received from Groton Grange for Neighbors' night on Dec. 9 when the Norwich officers are invited to fill the chairs.

Notice was given of the annual state grange meeting in Hartford on Jan. 10, 11 and 12.

Light refreshments were served by the feast committee for the attendance of 86 members of Norwich grange, one from Preston City and five from Groton.

The grange auxiliary, which held its meeting this week with Mrs. Robert Woodmansee of Penobscot street did sewing on a quilt and plans later to have a demonstration of its work.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham council, No. 14, met in regular session Wednesday evening with Councilor S. Vars presiding. After the usual business, remarks were made by J. W. Wellington, state secretary, who gave an interesting talk on the program set forth by the state councilor on a membership drive now getting under way. He also told of some new councils which will be instituted in the near future.

Last Friday evening about twenty-five members of Buckingham council journeyed to Stonington where an open meeting was held by Stonington council, No. 5. There was a very large attendance, councils being represented from New London, Noank, Wakefield and Westerly, R. I. The principal speakers of the evening were J. Wilmeth, national secretary, of Philadelphia, who told of the aims and objects of the order; T. Walters, Jr.; past national councilor, of Philadelphia, who gave a splendid talk on the restrictive immigration laws and the good the country was deriving from them; F. Northrup of Wakefield, R. I., who told of the good fellowship of the order. J. W. Wellington told of the work the order was doing in the state. L. B. Clyne, state councilor, gave an instructive talk on the principles of the ordr. A splendid New England supper, was served by the members of the Daughters of America for whom a rising vote of thanks was given. Next Monday evening at 8 o'clock the Junior order will be hostess on the opening night of the City Pinochle league.

GROTTO

Nemrod Grotto is planning a series of entertainments through the winter months for the benefit of the fund for the "On to Richmond club," opening the series with minstrel show and dance to be held at Grotto hall early in December.

Richmond, Va., has been selected as the place of the 1928 convention of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, with which Nemrod Grotto of this city is affiliated. Plans for a big delegation to attend from Norwich are being made and it is expected that a party of 30 will make the trip. A local "On to Richmond club" has been organized and the following committee appointed to have charge of arrangements: Monarch, Everett Peckham, ex-officio; Louis Brown, assistant chairman; Elmer Johnson, Ray Britton, John Morton, Herbert Hoffman and Nell Finlayson.

wonders. It is still bleak winter when the crocus thrusts its green blade of defiance to the cold ice-crusted world. If you really stop in your tracks and give them one good attentive look you cannot fail to enjoy a little answering thrill from the venturesome and sturdy little pioneer of a swiftly descending spring. And doesn't that thrill make up for quite a few of those little annoyances that are really no more than a little dust raised by the hurly burly of living?

The crocus probably knows it will have a chilly reception; the March winds will howl around it and shake the tender leaves and flower stems, it will be a comparatively lonely flower, for it will give its message and be gone back to rest again before the dainty jonquils and daffodils poke up their heads. But those petty annoyances won't bother the crocuses one bit, for it has in itself something bigger than its possible worries, and it somehow knows it is more than a match for them all.

Incidentally there is food for thought in that. Little things may be big, or big things little, according to our point of view, if we stand so close to them that we can't see anything else, they look monstrous, but if we back away a little and see insignificant things as insignificant, then the mole-hills can't grow into mountains and we keep our sense of proportion.

Another nice little thing, we take little notice of is fresh air. All we have to do to get that stuffy staleness out of the house and incidentally staleness and tired feeling out of ourselves, is to go and throw open the windows, and what a change. We freshen up like flowers in the sunshine.

Did you ever really enjoy looking at your biscuits that you made or the nice cake or casserole dish you have fashioned with your hands? Instead of chucking them away in the pantry and sighing, "here I'm thankful they are made, and out of the way, get some enjoyment out of them, for they are, too, some of the nice little things that make up life. A well cooked dish is as good as a medal pinned on you. You have achieved, you have triumphed over all the things that might have happened to make the dish turn out flat and unprofitable.

Never mind if no one else in the household says that cake is good, you know it's good. It's what you know about yourself and what you can do that matters. Furthermore when your cooking disappears with alarming rapidity, down the family's throat, that is what counts.

Then the postman rings the bell, his cherry arrival. The letter brings word from a far away son or sister maybe your brother, and how it brightens the whole day, and furthermore gives us pleasure in answering it.

Really there is no end to little things, the nice little things that count. Just try to count them up for yourself, and let each count knock a worry off your list.

EVELYN.

MUCH GAINED BY REREADING

Dear Editor and Social Corner: A glance at our Corner page is convincing proof that all too few find time to write hardly more than an admittance note. There are always a few who write, act as hostess, do the planning etc., in fact there seems to be a limited executive board in each club. Were you to share the generous donation of these workers it would feed two, and then some.

How many of you find by re-reading a book you gain many points you did not at first grasp? Shakespeare, Homer, Milton, Scott and other great writers can better be absorbed by re-reading. We often read the lines "They also serve who only stand and wait." John Milton only a few years past forty composed this poem after he became blind. If you care to learn it, as I have while ironing, or preparing vegetables is a good time, I think it will fill you with courage for whatever may come to you.

When I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide,
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent,
To serve therewith my maker, and present
My true account, lest He returning chide—
Doth God exact day labour, light denied?
I fondly ask.—But patience, to prevent
That murmer, soon replies, God doth not need
Either man's work, or His own gifts, who best
Bear his bidding speed and post o'er land and ocean without rest:—
They also serve who only stand and wait.

HOPE COBWEB.

LEST WE FORGET.

My Dear Friends: It is a true pleasure to greet you each Saturday and read the fond messages of cheer from old-time acquaintances.

I often wish we could meet the East Killingly folks we used to spend happy hours with listening to the strains of the violin and recalling pleasant memories. Do they ever hear the katydid's song now?

My dearest hours were those of the past days when we could watch with tear-dimmed eyes our own loved ones as they left for the fields of battle to perpetuate the homes we now enjoy, to free from bondage those suffering waifs of humanity.

And a few weeks ago as I watched the glorious spectacle of the celebration of Armistice day, the homage paid to the illustrious men, God bless them, my thoughts turned to a very recent incident.

A boy, scarcely out of his 'teens, now an enlisted man at an isolated fort, stood on guard from 2 a. m. to 6 a. m. during the recent flood, surrounded by the blackness of night that precedes dawn, alone, with God. The safety of the sleeping comrades depended on his vigilance.

My friends! All honor to the Unknown Soldier!

But, why not a kind word and handclasp for the lonely soldier boy we have with us today?

When he passes in our own sea city, he is often met with disdain.

In the port where his own people worked and helped to build the very foundations, he is now told it is a sailor-town.

Just please remember they, too, are doing their bit.

THE BANSHEE.

WHAT SHALL I DO WITH IT?

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Perhaps at some time some of you have been wondering what to do with certain things that were too good to put in the rag bag yet hopelessly out of date and could not be made over.

Well let me tell you what I did. I had a lovely velvet waist of a beautiful shade of pink, and a black velvet skirt.

I took and cut five pink squares, six inches square, and four black ones the same size, then I put them together, the first row pink, black, and pink, the second row black, pink, and black and the third row like the first. Then I embroidered an initial in the center block which was the pink one. Put a black sateen back on and four tassels on the corners of pink and black thread. That finished my first pillow.

For the second one I cut two circles that measured ten inches across, then cut a strip 12 inches wide and long enough to gather it on all around the two circles I had cut. On one of the circles I sewed some velvet roses, made of the pink velvet and leaves of scraps of green that I had in the house, and believe me, I had two lovely cushions when they were finished and ones that I would not sell for $3 each, and yet the cost to me was just a few cents.

Hope this will help some of the sisters to solve the question, what will I do with it?

Hope all had a happy Thanksgiving.

A FOUR-DAY TRIP TO NEW HAMPSHIRE AND VERMONT.

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: I want to tell you about the very interesting trip which I took the last of August with my son and grandson.

We started from Danielson Monday morning about 7 o'clock going by automobile. We went through Worcester, Fitchburg and Keene and ate dinner at Lake Sunapee. We stopped at the Weirs and Lake Winnepesaukee and stayed all night at Woodstock, N. H. There are about 40 cabins there, built especially for tourists, but we decided we had better stay in the house where we had all the conveniences and found it very comfortable.

Tuesday morning after breakfast we went to the "flume" and the "basin" and saw the "old man of the mountain. Then we went to the foot of Mt. Washington and saw the trains that took passengers up the mountain and all the interesting things along the way.

Returning on route 16 we had a fine chicken dinner at Bethlehem Junction. Then we kept on through Bethlehem. This place is not very large, but is noted for its high elevation. Consequently many who are afflicted with hay fever go there every summer. There are 20 or more hotels. The mountains are all around and just to see them gives one a feeling of strength. We passed through Littleton, St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Montpelier and stayed Tuesday night in a hotel in Burlington. Wednesday morning, we wanted very much to ferry across Lake Champlain and visit Fort Ticonderoga, but it was raining so we decided to give it up. We had dinner in Rutland and continued on route 7 to Danby where we visited the marble quarry. It was very wonderful to see the men working down in the earth over 300 feet. They looked like pygmies.

Wednesday night we stayed in Pittsfield and Thursday morning we came over Jacob's Ladder very near the little town of Becket which was recently wiped out by the flood.

We stopped in Springfield, Mass., at the park and saw the animals and birds, then on to Palmer where we had dinner. After that we started for home via Southbridge and Putnam where we arrived about 3 o'clock. We were gone nearly four days and enjoyed every minute of it. I am so glad I could see Vermont before the flood, for now I can remember it as it was, the well kept and prosperous looking farms and fine state roads, and the mountains along the way. I still have some of the maple syrup that I brought from there.

Irma: I want to thank you personally for your kind hospitality to Club No. 4 last Thursday. To say we all enjoyed it would be putting it too mild. And what shall I say about the dinner. Oh, boy, I can't tell you how good it was. Everything tasted as though each one had tried to outdo the other. The beans I can taste yet, and I wish whoever made the brown bread that was on our table in the kitchen would please send in the recipe.

Rural Delivery: Please accept the sympathy of Kentucky Wonder and myself.

Calla Lily: I enjoyed my call at your meeting. I'll come earlier next time. I wonder if Ga, Ga has reached Florida yet.

Butterfly: I wish I had another piece of your mince pie.

Avon: Kentucky Wonder and I regret that we did not get a piece of your cake.

Agile: Hope you will have a fine Thanksgiving.

Artificial Flowers: I hope you will come up when Club 4 meets in Danielson. I still have the lovely rose you gave me. I keep it in my trunk, but don't tell any body.

Lonesome: What have you got to say about it? Come up.

Jennie: I enjoyed your last letter very much.

Breeze: How are you? Write and let us know.

Balsam Fir: I was so glad to read of your son's improvement.

I wonder if you know that in our Westfield cemetery in Danielson, there is a marble stone, and on it is written, In Memorial, Elizabeth Akers, Gifted Writer, Keen Critic, Rare Poet, Author of Rock Me to Sleep, and other beautiful poems, 1832-1911. Erected by her personal friend, Gilbert A. Tracy.

If anyone has the words to the poem, "The Angel's Serenade" please send them in. Some of the words are, No one is here.

Soft Molasses Cookies—½ cup sugar, 1-3 cup shortening, butter and lard, ginger and cinnamon, 1 egg. Put a dessert spoon of soda into ½ cup New Orleans molasses, and let it foam to the top, mix with the sugar, etc. Stir well, add 2 tablespoons cold water and 1 teaspoon vinegar, salt, 2 cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, flour to roll. Warm the molasses in the winter. This recipe is sent in by request.

Cubby Discovers His Mistake.

Mistakes, experience has taught,
Are usually from lack of thought.
—Mother West Wind.

Now that the Green Forest was white with snow, Cubby, the little bear who had wandered away, felt more lonely than ever. You see, this wasn't his world at all. Nothing looked familiar; nothing looked right. He couldn't find anything to eat. The acorns and the beechnuts were covered with snow. Then, too, Cubby felt within him a curious feeling. It was a feeling that he wanted to sleep and sleep and sleep. But before he could do this he must find the right kind of a place to sleep. So Cubby wanted Mother Bear. If he could only find Mother Bear, she would show him what to do. Then all his troubles would be at an end.

So, whimpering and whining to himself, Cubby wandered about through the Green Forest. He saw the tracks of many little people. He saw the footprints of Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote. Once he came across the footprints of Woler the Bobcat, and the mere sight of them made his hair stand on end for a moment or two. But look as he would, he could find no footprints of Mother Bear.

Cubby was growing tired. He had wandered and wandered until now his legs began to ache. The worst of it was he knew of no place to curl up for a rest. He was far away from the hollow tree where he had spent the night.

"Oh, dear," whimpered Cubby, "Oh!"— Cubby didn't finish that. He had just come around a big rock and there in front of him, was a line of footprints, great big footprints. They were the footprints of a bear and a big bear at that. Cubby was so excited and delighted that he didn't stop to even sniff at those footprints. "They are Mother Bear's," he chuckled, and away he went galloping along, following those footprints.

Cubby had quite forgotten that he was tired. Here was a line of footprints easy to follow. All he had to do was to keep his eyes on them and run. And this is exactly what Cubby did do. He galloped along in that clumsy way that little bears have, but it took him along fast. Not once did he think to smell of those footprints. Not once did he think to look for the footprints of his twin sister. Had he thought of those footprints and the fact that he saw none of them he might not have been so sure that he was following in the footprints of Mother Bear. Still, he might have thought that his twin sister had been left at home while Mother Bear was out about. However, Cubby wasn't troubled by any thoughts at all in regard to this.

So, heedlessly and thoughtlessly, Cubby galloped along and, presently,

POETRY

Comrades

One steed I have of common clay,
And one no less than regal;
By day I jog on old Saddlebags,
By night I fly upon Eagle;
To store, to market, to field, to mill,
One plods with patient patter,
Nor hears along the far-off heights
The hoofs of his comrade clatter.

To field, to market, to mill he goes,
Nor sees his comrade gleaming
Where he flies along the purple hills,
Nor the flame from his bridle streaming;
Sees not his track, nor the sparks of fire
So terribly flashing from it,
As they flashed from the track of Alborak
When he bravely carried Mahomet.

One steed, in a few short years, will rest
Under the grasses yonder;
The other will come thru centuries hence
To linger and dream and ponder;
And yet both steeds are mine today,
The immortal and the mortal:
One beats alone the clods of earth,
One stamps at heaven's portal.
—Margaret Elizabeth Sangster.

November

November waits in robes of brown, and bare,
Black trees that lately wore the glint of gold;
Only her stanchest oaks are strong to hold
Their leaves that now another beauty wear.
Thin is the copse, and silent everywhere
Like life grown meditative, calm and old.
But see! the sun that Autumn's splendors told
Hath lit her garb of gray and made it fair.
If we have learned to vision life aright,
To keep our faith in laughter and in tears,
To find a way amid its stress and strife,
November's gray will burnish in our sight.
And in the quiet of our later years
Love will have given us a larger life.
—Grace Wight Buckle.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"He's a nut awright—says in th' first place life is a single cell."

"Yeah, an' a cell in th' last place, too—he's a lifer!"—Detroit News.

Why are you running that steam-roller over that field?

I'm raising mashed potatoes this year.—Progressive Grocer.

Frances—Just because I am engaged to Joe, doesn't mean I'm going to marry him.

Norah—No dear, of course not. He may back out.—Pathfinder.

Marcia—You were such a charming debutante, my dear, 12 years ago!

Dorla—Was I? I only remember that you made such a lovely chaperone for me when I came out!—Judge.

Young Scot—Do you know the difference between a taxicab and a tramcar?

Girl—No.

"Good; then we'll take a tramcar."—Tid-Bits, London.

"Fred," she whispered in the middle of the night, "there are burglars in the house. I heard them."

"Very well my dear," murmured Fred, sleepily, "I'll attend to them first thing in the morning."—Answers.

Mrs. Shimmerplate, just back from Europe, said to Mrs. Beanbrough:

"I just couldn't bear looking at the ruins of Italy. They made me homesick for my husband."

"Homesick for your husband?"

"Uh huh. You know, Henry has fallen arches." — Youngstown Telegram.

Arriving home from the party, friend wife confronted her husband. "I'll never take you to another party as long as I live," she fumed.

"Why?" he asked in amazement.

"You asked Mrs. Jones how her husband was standing the heat?"

"Well?"

"Why, her husband has been dead for two months!"—Boston Transcript.

Chinese soldiers, thinking an American typewriter to be an instrument of war, threatened to bombard a boarding school conducted by American missionaries, Mrs. Anna Salquist reports in a letter to Minnesota Baptist headquarters. Mrs. Salquist was in the midst of fighting at Yachowfu, West China. The school was between the invading army and a town under bombardment. Chinese soldiers reaching the institution and started searching it. "I finally persuaded them that we were peaceful missionaries," Mrs. Salquist wrote, "and they left after I proved to them that my typewriter was not some deadly gun."

About 2500 B. C. there was a great north and south migration through central Europe, which used the still contested territory of Silesia, lying between Poland and Germany, as its track. Recent excavations have shown the trail of the moving tribes to be marked with all manner of implements and ornaments dating back to the new stone age, according to Professor H. Seger, of Breslau, Germany. One of the most interesting of the finds is a clay image of a ram, rudely made but well proportioned, and with an effort of realism in representing the lines on its wide, curved horns, the wrinkles on its neck and the curly wool. The statue is about a foot high and a little more than fourteen inches long, which Professor Seger characterizes as "monumental" for that period in the history of the race. It is believed to have been used in connection with religious ceremonies.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the board of education in Preston prohibited the custom of flogging children in the Bridge district school. This district is now part of the town of Norwich. The same week a demonstration of the wonders of the telephone was given in Norwich. The transmission of messages from New London did not prove a success but music was quite successfully transmitted over the wires from the West Side station. Interesting extracts taken from the files of the Norwich Bulletin of November, 1877, follow:

Monday, Nov. 19, 1877—This evening Mr. Frank Mayo appears as Dany Crockett. This play is one which has appeared throughout the country and has been very pleasantly received everywhere. Mr. Mayo has the support of a first class company.

An affair occurred in the Bridge district school, Preston, last week, which has already led to prosecution. A boy named Oliver Fowler, eleven years of age, was whipped by the principal, Albert Safford, with a leather strap designed for such purposes, leaving upon his body, it is said a good many flesh bruises, that will be some time in healing. The boy left school without the teacher's consent, and when he returned the castigation was inflicted.

Bell's speaking telephone appears at Breed hall tomorrow night. A vocal and instrumental concert will be given at a distance, one line of wire between this city and New London being under the entire control of the management. Prices of admission are within the means of all.

Tuesday, Nov. 20, 1877—The rehearsals of Shaugraun, to be presented by the Grand Army, Monday Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week, are progressing finely. Everything indicates that it will be one of the finest dramatic entertainments ever given in Norwich. Sale of reserved seats begins at nine o'clock this morning at Davis and Breed's news office. Let everyone "put their hand in their pockets and get one."

Mr. Winter's delivery team started on a run on School street yesterday morning, but came up suddenly against a lamp post, in endeavoring to make a short turn at the corner of Court and Church streets. A little damage to the top of the wagon and a hind wheel broken against the curbstone were the only disastrous consequences.

This evening the young ladies of the Central Baptist church give an entertainment in the church parlors. There is no need of mentioning more. The good times had at their entertainments are proverbial.

Wednesday, Nov. 21, 1877—The telephone entertainment did not attract a full house last evening, owing to the number of other attractions, with which the week is crowded. The exhibition of the owners of the telephone was a novel entertainment and the results exhibited, though but partially successful, were truly marvelous. Two stations were taken, the one at New London and the other on the West Side over Mr. Dudley's store, perhaps an eighth of a mile distant from the hall and connected by wires with the two telephones that were exhibited to the audience. The tranmission of messages from New London did not prove a sucess, as the tunes played could not be heard by the audience, although Prof. Robnison succeeded in holding a conversation with the operator at that place. The cornet playing and quartette singing at the West Side station was quite successfully transmitted. Those members who so desired were invited to stop after the lecture and inspect the workings of the apparatus, and a good number accepted. Quite a long tete-a-tete was indulged in, forming the best part of the entertainment. A conversation was carried on somewhat after his fashion: "Are you tired?" "Yes we are going to close up soon." "Has Mr. Dudley any horse bitters?" "Send the colt over," etc. Those at the out station had really the best of the entertainment, as they were in a small room and could distingnish the tones of the professor giving his lecture, the applause of the audience and the peals of laughter.

Thursday, Nov. 22, 1877—The vote for sheriff of New London county as counted by the state canvassers at Hartford, is thus given by the Courant:

Orlando N. Raymond, republican	4662
Nathan D. Bates, democrat ...	4658
Charles E. Wheeler	334
Patrick Moriarty	188
Henry Larrabee	1
Jerry Cary	1
George Jones	1
Charles Wheeler	16

Raymond's plurality, 16.

Among the provisions at Breed hall in case of fire are coils or hose pipe, one under the center of the staging, another at the rear and a third at the foot of the stairs. These are all supplied with city water and are kept constantly full so that they can be used at an instant's notice.

Dr. Wilson gave a very interesting temperance address at the rooms last evening. The Rev. Curtis Kinney speaks at the meeting Sunday morning.

Friday, Nov. 23, 1877—Several members of Crystal lodge, I. O. G. T., made a visit to Albion lodge, Versailles, Wednesday evening. They were warmly received by the latter lodge. An excellent supper was served for them and received ample patronage.

The difficulty that occurred in the Bridge district school, Preston last week, has been amicably settled.

Saturday, Nov. 24, 1877—The yearly exodus of dressed turkeys toward Boston is now taking place. Two thousand pounds were shipped to Providence over the Stonington and Providence line yesterday. The poultry agents have been paying from fifteen to seventeen cents to farmers about here, according to the quality of the birds.

Fire Marshal Smith has this week been making a tour of inspection of the stores and saloons of the city, and among other precautionary measures against fire, causing the removal of spittoons and boxes of sawdust and the substitution of something less inflammable.

The first one to buy tickets for the last night of Queen Esther at the auction sale yesterday, was Mr. Wm. Fitch of Norwich Town, who paid a premium of $1.25 on five tickets. The highest amount paid for any choice was $1.50, eight tickets being taken.

"BULL" MOVEMENT WAS BOLSTERED UP BY HEAVY BUYING OF U.S. STEEL COMMON

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—Heavy buying of U. S. Steel common, which rallied from a low on 142 1-4 to a high of 146 3-8, up 2 5-8 net, gave the "bull" movement in stick prices a new lease of life today. For a week or more, operations for the rise had centered in a select assortment of motors, public utilities and miscellaneous specialties, with the standard industrials barely holding their own, but the sudden demand for Steel in the last half hour of trading, sent "shorts" in other issues scurrying to cover. So great was the volume of orders pouring into the market in the last hour that the ticker was 20 minutes late in recording the last quotations.

Financial interest today was divided, however, between the stock market and the further advance in sterling exchange. Cables of London being quoted at $4.88, the highest since December, 1924, and about the price where gold shipments to England would be profitable the money market did not appear to be disturbed by the imminence of further gold exports, call funds being in plentiful supply all day at the renewal rate of 3 1-2 per cent and no change being recorded in other monetary accommodations.

The weekly mercantile reviews continued to report business conditions as "spotty." Reports of further trade improvement came to hand from the steel and copper industries. Some disappointment was shown at the freight traffic statement for the second week in November, loadings being the smallest of any similar period since 1932, although this may be explained, in part, by the inclusion this year of election day, a holiday in many states.

Pools were again active in a number of specialties and succeeded in attracting a large public following. New high prices for the year, or longer, were registered by Brooklyn Edison, Detroit Edison, Radio Corporation, Anaconda Copper, Calumet & Arizona, Green Cananea Copper, Corn Products Refining, International Paper, Conde Nast Publications, Stewart Warner and several others.

Strength of Advance Rumely issues was based on unofficial reports of a merger with other farm implement companies, alcohol stocks were bid up on reports of increasing commodity prices, and new uses for by products. Continental Motors was heavily bought on merger rumors which also involved the Peerless and Jordan Motor Car companies. General Motors was under pressure most of the day, although it rallied from a low of 136 1-8 to a high of 137 3-4 on buying influenced in part by unconfirmed rumors of an over-extended short interest.

There were numerous soft spots scattered throughout the list. Congress Cigar, Goodyear Rubber, International Telephone, National Enameling, Otis Steel prior preferred and Yale and Towne all lost 2 points or more.

In the rail group, Northern Pacific crossed par for the first time in ten years and substantial gains were recorded by New Haven, Canadian Pacific, and the St. Paul issues, buying of the last named being influenced by expectations of an early and favorable decision by the interstate commerce commission on the application to issue securities under the reorganization plan.

The weekly Federal Reserve report of brokers' loans showed an increase of $35,171,000 to a new high record of $3,431,285,000.

Except for the decline of a cent or so in wheat futures, there were no changes of interest in the commodity markets. An early gain of 75 cents to $1 a bale in cotton futures was cancelled and coffee and sugar closed practically unchanged.

Outside of the advance in sterling, chief interest in the foreign exchange market centered in a drop of nearly 15 points in Spanish pesetas to around 16 2-4 cents.

REOPENING OF VOTING MACHINE ASKED FOR AT NEW LONDON BY W. C. FOX

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26—In the superior court here today, Attorney Henry L. McGuire, counsel for William C. Fox, field a petition asking that a court order be issued calling for the reopening of the voting machine used in the fifth ward in the election last September when Mr. Fox was defeated for member of the city council by Lucius E. Whiton and Cornelius D. Twomey. Judge Christopher L. Avery assigned tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for the presentation by counsel of the claims as to why the voting machines should be opened and a recheck of the vote made. It is claimed that Mr Whiton defeated Mr. Fox by four votes, while Mr. Twomey defeated the petitioned by 161 votes, a fact, Mr. Fox believes shows a vast discrepancy.

COUNCIL VOTES TO ACCEPT CONN. POWER CO.'S PROPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 25.—A special meeting of the city council was held this afternoon at 5 o'clock for the purpose of further considering the recommendation of the council committee of public welfare. This body recommended that the bid be accepted of the Connecticut Power company to furnish illuminating bulbs for Christmas decoration at an annual cost of $15000 for five years and at the end of that period and after the city had expended $75000, the bulbs and wiring to become the property of the city. The meeting voted almost unanimously to accept the bid of the power company. Mayor James A. May called the meeting to order. All members were present except Councilors Lucius E. Whiton and Edward L. Streeter, Jr., the opponents of the power company's proposition. When the hour for holding the meeting came, Councilors Walton and Streeter were absent, so Councilor Twomey urged that the meeting be deferred until such time as the absent members could attend. After a wait of 15 minutes, it was learned that the absent members were not only absent from the meeting, but from the city. Mayor May then put a motion, the same that the committee had arrived at a few nights ago, that the bid of the power company be accepted. Councilor Murray seconded the motion, which was carried. Mayor May and Councilors Murray, Scott and Chappell voted in favor of the adoption of the motion and Councilor Twomey offering the only dissenting vote. At the meeting of the council as a committee, Councilors Walton and Street strongly objected to the bid of the power company being accepted, the councilors declaring that the action of the Connecticut power company implied an expenditure by the city that was without all semblance of reason, if administration of the city's business was to be conducted with economy. As the vote now stands, the city will own the electric light wires and bulbs used for the decoration of State street, between Bank and Huntington street; between State and John streets on Main street, and between State and Tilley streets, on Bank streets. Besides the vari-colored electric lights, there will be yuletide decorations on every pole.

Announcement is made of the marriage at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church Wednesday of Patrolman Edward Riordan and Miss Gladys Ronan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan. Mr. and Mrs. Riordan will make their home at 73 Montauk avenue. Mr. Riordan is one of the youngest members of the city's police department and only was appointed a regular after serving his probationary period of a year.

Merrill Dreyfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Dreyfus, and a student at Yale, is with his parents during the holiday vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Burns, of Waterbury, spent the holiday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Harrigan, of Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Burns, prior to her marriage, was one of the valued employes of the Connecticut Power company in this city. Mr. Burns was employed by the auditing department of the Southern New England Telephone company.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ganey, Lincoln avenue, entertained Harold Beattie, of Hartford, over the holiday.

Two automobiles collided at the corner of Golden and Green streets last night, one of the cars in which there were several occupants, being overturned. Strangely, none of the passengers were injured nor was even a window broken in the car that overturned. The accident was not reported at police headquarters, for the drivers reached a satisfactory agreement as to a settlement of the damage resulting. Neither of the automobiles was of New London or Norwich registration.

Charles Heather, a patient at Norwich State hospital, was brought to police headquarters this afternoon by C. W. White, an attendant at the institution for safe keeping. Heather, who is in dire need of treatment, was taken back to the hospital later in the day.

Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

Saturday Evening Post stories have the power of gripping and holding the attention of millions of its readers. At the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock, a seven reel picture adapted from a Saturday Evening Post story. The title is a peculiar one, namely, "White Flannels." The story revolves around the ambitions of a fond mother to raise her son from the routine of mining life to a college education. Including in the characters in the story are Warner Richmond, Louise Dresser and Jason Robarts. It is always impressive to read a story or to see it on the screen, where a boy's tendencies and a mother's love come in contact with each other, and in this picture this combination is shown to perfection. It is at once gripping, and leaves a most helpful impression on those who have the good fortune to see it.

To this service, the public generally fourteen and over, are invited.

Broadway Theatre

Underworld characters who lurk in the shadows of every large city are vividly pictured in Thomas Meighan's new Paramount starring picture "The City Gone Wild," which closes a three days' engagement at the Broadway theatre tonight.

Meighan has the role of a powerful criminal lawyer, and around him collect such colorful characters as the rival gang leaders and their respective gunmen, the professional bondsman, the saloon keeper and the girls clothed, fed and supported by their lawless raids.

Director James Cruze assembled a remarkably strong cast to picture this amazing story by Carlyle and Jules Furthman. It includes Marietta Millner, "wolf of the screen;" Louise Brooks, Dutch-blooded flapper; and such supporting players as Wyndham Standing, Charles Hill Mailes, King Zany, Duke Martin, Nancy Phillips and "Gunboat" Smith.

The weekly Kiddies Frolic will be held during the matinee and ten valuable presents will be awarded to the children among the different contestants.

Palace Theatre

The final performances of Fred Thomson in "Jesse James," and the five-act vaudeville program headed by Miss Rosalie Richards, of Norwich, terminate this evening at the Palace theatre.

An excellent picture program has been arranged for Sunday evening with Harrison Ford and Bessie Love in a rollicking comedy "Rubber Tires," and Tom Tyler in a western drama, "Splitting the Breeze."

The feature film attraction for the first three days of the week commencing Monday, is a story of stage life in all its glamour, "The Spotlight" is a most fascinating story and certainly shows Esther Ralston to good advantage as its star. She makes you weep when you first see her as the timid girl trying hard to be friendly with an unfriendly world. Then she makes one gasp with astonishment when she blossoms forth as a dazzling creature with a foreign accent and clothing that would make Cleopatra envious.

It is hard to tell whether this blonde girl who rises to new dramatic heights in "The Spotlight" is more attractive as her blonde self or the brunette she is transformed to during the picture. She is beautiful both ways that much is certain.

Playing opposite Miss Ralston is Neil Hamilton who gives a remarkable performance. Nicholas Soussanin is cast as a theatrical producer. Nicholas it will be remembered, is the sad-eyed person who played the part of the valet in Adolphe Menjou's last picture, "A Gentleman of Paris," which was shown at the Palace about a week ago.

An unusually good vaudeville program is being prepared to make this the perfect show from an audience standpoint.

Breed Theatre

Samuel Goldwyn, producer of "The Night of Love," and other distinguished films, offers as the piece de resistance of his career the new Ronald Colman-Vilma Banky film, "The Magic Flame," which opens a four day run at the Breed theatre tomorrow night. Directed by Henry King, maker of "Stella Dallas," and adapted by Bess Meredith from Rudolph Lothar's play, "King Harlequin," "The Magic Flame" is a story of clowns and counts, circus and court, love and laughter.

Ronald Colman plays two roles in the film, that of a clown and that of a count. It is Vilma Banky, an aerial artist, whom Colman's two characters love and struggle for. Into the warp and woof of that conflict Henry King has injected romance, surprising situations, humor, satire, physical struggle, a pair of murders, a balloon ascension and parachute jump, a whole circus filmed in its colorful details, and directorial acumen such as the moviegoing public has come to associate with his name.

The action of the story occurs in a Mediterranean country, Baretti's circus furnishing the background against which Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman make love. It is when Colman, the clown, has triumphed over Colman, the count, that the locale is switched to the royal court, with the clown accepted on all hands as King of Illyria. When Vilma Banky arrives at the court to avenge the murder of her lover, the clown, she does not suspect the true identity of the monarch. It is with the disentanglement of this tense situation that the plot thereafter is concerned.

Congratulations to the Minneapolis Journal upon the beginning of its 50th year.

Strand Thetater.

Showing Sunday night at the Strand is His Master's Voice, with Thunder, the marvel dog in the greatest dog picture ever made. In addition to this wonderful canine actor there is a stellar cast of human actors with Mary Carr, Marjorie Daw, and George Hackathorne at head of a long list of well known favorites.

Hoof Marks, the other feature is a Pathe western thriller with Jack Donovan in the leading male role. It is an exciting western drama that furnishes plenty of action. Professor Herbert Rich and his splendid orchestra furnish their usual pleasing program of good music.

Slater Hall Concert.

Mary Lewis' cross country tour during the season of 1926-27 was one success after the other, in Nashville, Dayton and the other cities en route she sang to capacity houses, and her first appearance in Los Angeles with the Philharmonic orchestra called forth the following praises:

Edwin Schallert in the Los Angeles Daily Times said, "Mary Lewis! The name and voice of its possessor were sufficient to thrill, even as her art captivated, the audience that assembled last night for the second concert of the Philharmonic orchestra. She scored as a distinct triumph as any that has been won at these presentations."

Carl Bronson in the Los Angeles Times, "Mary Lewis proceeded to captivate every heart with a simple and sincere fascination that is seldom met with in this day of sophistication. She is not only too beautiful that all of the male hearts pounded in their vests like drums, but she sings with guilelessness of grace which is beyond the reach of art."

Mollie Merrick in the San Francisco Bulletin wrote, "Mary Lewis, an American beauty with a million dollar smile, won some 4,000 new admirers for her already long list when she sang last night at the auditorium."

Miss Lewis' recital here on Friday, December 2, at Slater hall, is waited with pleasurable interest, for she not only possesses a charming voice but is young and beautiful. See details in another column.

GROUND TO BE BROKEN FOR NEW METHODIST CHURCH AT UNCASVILLE

Ground is to be broken for the new Methodist Episcopal church at Uncasville at 12:15 on Sunday with a short programme of informal exercises which will include a brief programme of songs and a short address by the pastor, Rev. Charles Smith.

It is expected that some excavation work can be done this winter while the plans for the church are being prepared. The site for the new building is on a lot presented to the church by Mrs. Ralph Melcer, who has given the church society a plot fronting 200 feet on the Montville- New London highway, just south of the Uncasville school. The lot is part of the estate of the late John Babcock and is 320 feet deep.

It is planned that the edifice to be erected will be a brick building of colonial type and will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. At the present time it is understood that the church has approximately $35,000 assured for the cost of the new building, $10,000 of which came from the insurance on the old church which was destroyed by fire last April.

RESOURCES OF $320,439,903 IN STATE'S TRUST COMPANIES

Trust company resources in Connecticut total $320,439,903, as compared with $316,866,901, last year, according to the 25th annual edition of "Trust Companies of the United States," for 1927, just issued by the United States Mortgage & Trust company of New York.

Combined resources of the 2731 trust companies of the country reporting as of June 30th, the date of compilation were $20,481,000,000, a gain of $1,145,000,000, over the previous year. Deposits were in excess of $16,300,000,000, against $15,300,000,000, in 1926.

In reviewing the figures, President John W. Platten, of the United States Mortgage & Trust company says:

"It is a cause of satisfaction that the resources of the trust companies of the country continue to seek new high levels year after year, the totals at the present time being considerably more than double those of ten years ago. Yet it is none the less gratifying to note the unprecedented efforts being made by the trust companies to extend their service into new channels.

"The situation is most encouraging and warrants every confidence in the future of trust companies and their ability to render an increasingly valuable and constantly broadening service to the public."

MAILING 250 POUNDS OF CHRISTMAS SEALS HERE

"If you want anything done ask the busiest man in town to do it" is a familiar saying. It must apply to places as well as to people, for No. 9 Washington street, always teeming with activity, is now the headquarters for the 250 pounds of Christmas seals which are being put into 7,000 letters for distribution to the homes and business places in the city. Mrs. Richard Snow and her committee have given unstintingly and willingly of their time and strength, volunteers interested in the cause, are giving their services and the public health nurses, after long days of hard work and anxiety have cheerfully worked over hours begging to be allowed to do their "bit."

The public's opportunity for service will soon be here. When it comes be sure not to miss it, say those having direction of the work.

"HIGHWAY OF 13 STATES" IDEA WINS INSTANT FAVOR

Back in September, The Bulletin quoted the proposition advanced through a Philadelphia paper by an alumnus of Norwich Free Academy, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, of the Quaker City, N. F. A. '30, that a fitting memorial honoring the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington would be "The Highway of the 13 Original States." This would imply the construction of a new highway from Washington to Mt. Vernon, each of the 13 original states to build and adorn one-thirteenth of it.

Endorsement of the idea has been given by the Washington Herald, New Haven Journal-Courier and the Manchester, N. H., Union.

The Christian Endeavorers of the Third Baptist church met in the chapel Tuesday evening and the "Reds" or losing team in the contest, gave them all a banquet. About 50 were present and enjoyed a supper of meat pie, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, cabbage salad, rolls, pickles, squash and apple pie and coffee. The president, Henry Sebastian, welcomed the "Whites" and their friends to the banquet and congratulated them on winning the contest and Miss Doris Lund, captain of the "Whites" responded for her side. During the supper, catchy choruses were sung from time to time and Rev. Harry P. Brothwell, the new pastor, was called on for a speech. The tables were prettily decorated for the occasion with red poinsettias and red candles, and each of the winning side had a marshmallow candle holder with a red candle at his place. After the supper hour, a short business meeting was held and this was followed by games in which the young people participated. The Endeavorers voted it the best time ever and expect to hold many more social times during the winter months. The ladies on the losing team, who served the supper, were Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. Elmer Wildkin, Mrs. Albert Hayion, Mrs. Lucy Peckham and Mrs. Fred Laycock.

The Ladies' Aid of the Third Baptist church met with Mrs. William A. Lund of Prospect street, Friday afternoon, and sewed on aprons for their Christmas sale, which will be held early in December.

BOYS AND GIRLS TO BE ROUNDUP SPEAKERS

Nearly two hundred rural youngsters and adults will visit Norwich Saturday to take part in the first New London County D-H Club Roundup. This event will be held in Elks hall and is scheduled to start at 2:00 p. m. Every 4-H club member and anyone else interested in 4-H club work is invited to attend.

In a statement issued Friday to the boys and girls interested, Club Leader R. W. Whaples said:

If you have heard a little about club work and have a faint idea you would like to have a club in your community, come and be convinced that 4-H club work is worth while and go home determined to have a club in your town. Come and hear the club boys and girls tell you in their own words, what club work has meant to them and of the unusual opportunities that 4-H club work affords the rural boy and girl. Plans have been made to have a town attendance contest to see which town in the county will send the largest number to the roundup; boost your town and in that way boost New London county and help make this a big day for the club folks.

The program will be opened by singing club songs, these are songs written especially for club folks and they enjoy singing them. After the singing, roll call by towns will be taken with each member rising and telling from what town he comes. Club games will follow the roll call and then some of the boys and girls will speak. Ruth Hensen of Stonington will be the first speaker and will tell of her club work and a few words about the clubs in Stonington. Arnold Manning of North Franklin, who recently returned from the National Dairy Show in Memphis, where he went representing Connecticut as a dairy judge in 4-H club work, will tell of his five years in club work and what it has meant to him and his community. The next speaker will be Helen De Rusha of Gales Ferry who will tell about her club and the part she has taken in it. Following Helen the boys and girls will have the opportunity of hearing Nelson Robinson of Franklin, the champion 4-H club harmonica player in the state. Nelson plays all the popular songs and is sure to be worth hearing. Marion Robinson and Nathanial Manning come next in the order named; they are going to recite some poems. Both these youngsters are able speakers despite their youthfulness. Mildred Manning will tell of the work done by the Franklin Thimble Wearers and how club work has helped her and her brothers and sisters. Julia Rodman, president of her club and one of the best club girls in the county, will end the youngsters part of the program with a talk on "Why I Became a Club Leader." Following this part of the program A. J. Brundage, state club leader, will give a talk and lantern slide on 4-H club work in Connecticut. Supper will be served at six o'clock and immediately after that Miss Elsie Trabue will speak on "Preparing for Homemaking Work," following this she will present certificates of achievement to the club girls who have successfully completed a year's work and lived up to the other requirements.

Don Fraser, a real entertainer, has been secured to furnish the part on the program which will cause hearty laughter. Don is a cartoonist and should be enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Whaples has secured Charles Lewis, club leader in Hartford county, to talk on club work there. Mr. Lewis has been unusually successful in Hartford county and perhaps will tell us some of the secrets of his success. The program will close with songs and games.

The roundup has been planned and will be in charge of R. W. Whaples, county club leader, who hopes that every boy and girl either belonging or interested in 4-H club work will be on hand at 2.00 p. m.

PREDICTION FOR DECEMBER BY THE CLOUD DIGGER

The Cloud Digger makes the following weather prediction for December.

"Well, well, friends, I certainly thank you, who have been kind enough to write me from all parts of the country and some other countries congratulating me on my correct prediction for October and November.

"During November the U. S. weather bureau tried just seven times to make us think terrible cold waves were here while we had almost July weather in southern New England; every one of the seven times. These mistakes are not picked up by my critics, however, but if I should make a mistake, Oh Lordy, how quick the more ignorant notice it, but now for December.

"Whereas, the whole world had a bad December 1926, this year we will have a December about what November usually is, there will be some cold weather, in fact two very cold spells from Dec. 12 to 16 also from Dec. 20 to 24, but I look for a "Green Christmas" this year far into Canada.

"The storms of December will be few, along the Atlantic coast and quite a number along the Pacific with two tropical disturbances reaching as far north as the Carolinas with high tides and winds. About Dec. 15, I look for a "twister" of a storm in the middle of the country and much damage by wind along the lower Mississippi and northern part of the Gulf of Mexico. The Dec. 18 storm will sweep through Texas and southern California. The northwestern states will have deep snow late in the month almost a blockade in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Winter wheat will be covered in Canada northwest and remain so.

"There will be some planetary demonstration in December this year of great interest. Earth tremors may be looked for in northern South America and the sub-tropical islands. Like October and November we are going to have a dandy December. The early part of the winter can be truly called a poor man's winter in most parts of the country."

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immediate yet effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

GROUND TO BE BROKEN FOR NEW METHODIST CHURCH AT UNCASVILLE

Ground is to be broken for the new Methodist Episcopal church at Uncasville at 12:15 on Sunday with a short programme of informal exercises which will include a brief programme of songs and a short address by the pastor, Rev. Charles Smith.

It is expected that some excavation work can be done this winter while the plans for the church are being prepared. The site for the new building is on a lot presented to the church by Mrs. Ralph Melcer, who has given the church society a plot fronting 200 feet on the Montville- New London highway, just south of the Uncasville school. The lot is part of the estate of the late John Babcock and is 320 feet deep.

It is planned that the edifice to be erected will be a brick building of colonial type and will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. At the present time it is understood that the church has approximately $35,000 assured for the cost of the new building, $10,000 of which came from the insurance on the old church which was destroyed by fire last April.

RESOURCES OF $320,439,903 IN STATE'S TRUST COMPANIES

Trust company resources in Connecticut total $320,439,903, as compared with $316,866,901, last year, according to the 25th annual edition of "Trust Companies of the United States," for 1927, just issued by the United States Mortgage & Trust company of New York.

Combined resources of the 2731 trust companies of the country reporting as of June 30th, the date of compilation were $20,481,000,000, a gain of $1,145,000,000, over the previous year. Deposits were in excess of $16,800,000,000, against $15,900,000,000, in 1926.

In reviewing the figures, President John W. Platten, of the United States Mortgage & Trust company says:

"It is a cause of satisfaction that the resources of the trust companies of the country continue to seek new high levels year after year, the totals at the present time being considerably more than double those of ten years ago. Yet it is none the less gratifying to note the unprecedented efforts being made by the trust companies to extend their service into new channels.

"The situation is most encouraging and warrants every confidence in the future of trust companies and their ability to render an increasingly valuable and constantly broadening service to the public."

MAILING 250 POUNDS OF CHRISTMAS SEALS HERE

"If you want anything done ask the busiest man in town to do it" is a familiar saying. It must apply to places as well as to people, for No. 9 Washington street, always teeming with activity, is now the headquarters for the 250 pounds of Christmas seals which are being put into 7,000 letters for distribution to the homes and business places in the city. Mrs. Richard Snow and her committee have given unstintingly and willingly of their time and strength, volunteers interested in the cause, are giving their services and the public health nurses, after long days of hard work and anxiety have cheerfully worked over hours begging to be allowed to do their "bit."

The public's opportunity for service will soon be here. When it comes be sure not to miss it, say those having direction of the work.

"HIGHWAY OF 13 STATES" IDEA WINS INSTANT FAVOR

Back in September, The Bulletin quoted the proposition advanced through a Philadelphia paper by an alumnus of Norwich Free Academy, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, of the Quaker City, N. F. A. '80, that a fitting memorial honoring the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington would be "The Highway of the 13 Original States." This would imply the construction of a new highway from Washington to Mt. Vernon, each of the 13 original states to build and adorn one-thirteenth of it.

Endorsement of the idea has been given by the Washington Herald, New Haven Journal-Courier and the Manchester, N. H., Union.

The Christian Endeavorers of the Third Baptist church met in the chapel Tuesday evening and the "Rede" or losing team in the contest, gave them all a banquet. About 50 were present and enjoyed a supper of meat pie, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, cabbage salad, rolls, pickles, squash and apple pie and coffee. The president, Henry Sebastian, welcomed the "Whites" and their friends to the banquet and congratulated them on winning the contest and Miss Doris Lund, captain of the "Whites" responded for her side. During the supper, catchy choruses were sung from time to time and Rev. Harry P. Brothwell, the new pastor, was called on for a speech. The tables were prettily decorated for the occasion with red poinsettias and red candles, and each of the winning side had a marshmallow candle holder with a red candle at his place. After the supper hour, a short business meeting was held and this was followed by games in which the young people participated. The Endeavorers voted it the best time ever and expect to hold many more social times during the winter months. The ladies on the losing team, who served the supper, were Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. Elmer Widkin, Mrs. Albert Hayton, Mrs. Lacy Peckham and Mrs. Fred Laycock.

BOYS AND GIRLS TO BE ROUNDUP SPEAKERS

Nearly two hundred rural youngsters and adults will visit Norwich Saturday to take part in the first New London County 4-H Club Roundup. This event will be held in Elks hall and is scheduled to start at 2:00 p. m. Every 4-H club member and anyone else interested in 4-H club work is invited to attend.

In a statement issued Friday to the boys and girls interested, Club Leader R. W. Whaples said:

If you have heard a little about club work and have a faint idea you would like to have a club in your community, come and be convinced that 4-H club work is worth while and go home determined to have a club in your town. Come and hear the club boys and girls tell you in their own words, what club work has meant to them and of the unusual opportunities that 4-H club work affords the rural boy and girl. Plans have been made to have a town attendance contest to see which town in the county will send the largest number to the roundup; boost your town and in that way boost New London county and help make this a big day for the club folks.

The program will be opened by singing club songs, these are songs written especially for club folks and they enjoy singing them. After the singing, roll call by towns will be taken with each member rising and telling from what town he comes. Club games will follow the roll call and then some of the boys and girls will speak. Ruth Hensen of Stonington will be the first speaker and will tell of her club work and a few words about the clubs in Stonington. Arnold Manning of North Franklin, who recently returned from the National Dairy Show in Memphis, where he went representing Connecticut as a dairy judge in 4-H club work, will tell of his five years in club work and what it has meant to him and his community. The next speaker will be Helen De Rusha of Gales Ferry who will tell about her club and the part she has taken in it. Following Helen the boys and girls will have the opportunity of hearing Nelson Robinson of Franklin, the champion 4-H club harmonica player in the state. Nelson plays all the popular songs and is sure to be worth hearing. Marion Robinson and Nathanial Manning come next in the order named; they are going to recite some poems. Both these youngsters are able speakers despite their youthfulness. Mildred Manning will tell of the work done by the Franklin Thimble Wearers and how club work has helped her and her brothers and sisters. Julia Rodman, president of her club and one of the best club girls in the county, will end the youngsters part of the program with a talk on "Why I Became a Club Leader." Following this part of the program A. J. Brundage, state club leader, will give a talk and lantern slide on 4-H club work in Connecticut. Supper will be served at six o'clock and immediately after that Miss Elsie Trabue will speak on "Preparing for Homemaking Work," following this she will present certificates of achievement to the club girls who have successfully completed a year's work and lived up to the other requirements.

Don Fraser, a real entertainer, has been secured to furnish the part on the program which will cause hearty laughter. Don is a cartoonist and should be enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Whaples has secured Charles Lewis, club leader in Hartford county, to talk on club work there. Mr. Lewis has been unusually successful in Hartford county and perhaps will tell us some of the secrets of his success. The program will close with songs and games.

The roundup has been planned and will be in charge of R. W. Whaples, county club leader, who hopes that every boy and girl either belonging or interested in 4-H club work will be on hand at 2.00 p. m.

PREDICTION FOR DECEMBER BY THE CLOUD DIGGER

The Cloud Digger makes the following weather prediction for December.

"Well, well, friends, I certainly thank you, who have been kind enough to write me from all parts of the country and some other countries congratulating me on my correct prediction for October and November.

"During November the U. S. weather bureau tried just seven times to make us think terrible cold waves were here while we had almost July weather in southern New England every one of the seven times. These mistakes are not picked up by my critics, however, but if I should make a mistake, Oh Lordy, how quick the more ignorant notice it, but now for December.

"Whereas, the whole world had a bad December 1926, this year we will have a December about what November usually is, there will be some cold weather, in fact two very cold spells from Dec. 12 to 16 also from Dec. 20 to 24, but I look for a "Green Christmas" this year far into Canada.

"The storms of December will be few, along the Atlantic coast and quite a number along the Pacific with two tropical disturbances reaching as far north as the Carolinas with high tides and winds. About Dec. 15, I look for a "twister" of a storm in the middle of the country and much damage by wind along the lower Mississippi and northern part of the Gulf of Mexico. The Dec. 18 storm will sweep through Texas and southern California. The northwestern states will have deep snow late in the month almost a blockade in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Winter wheat will be covered in Canada northwest and remain so.

"There will be some planetary demonstration in December this year of great interest. Earth tremors may be looked for in northern South America and the sub-tropical islands. Like October and November we are going to have a dandy December. The early part of the winter can be truly called a poor man's winter in most parts of the country."

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR THE LATE PREMIER OF RUMANIA

The Dying Wish of Ionel Bratianu Was That There Should Be No Panoply at His Burial—An Associate of Kings and Princes in Life, Bratianu in Death Preferred the Humble Funeral of the Peasant—Scenes at the Funeral Were Suggestive of Biblical Times.

FLORICA, Rumania, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Six huge white oxen, led by fifty priests in medieval robes, today bore the body of Ionel Bratianu from the funeral train to its last resting place in the little Byzantin church which the late premier built here himself.

In life, the dictator of Rumania moved among kings and princes but in death he preferred the humble funeral of the peasant. His dying wish was that there should be neither pomp, anegyric nor panoply at his interment, and his wishes were respected. Scenes attending it were suggestive in their simplicity and religious fervor of Biblical times.

Ten thousand reverent peasants, bearing lighted candles, wooden crosses and bottles containing holy water, came to town in colorful embroidered national costumes to pay homage to the veteran statesman who ruled the country through its darkest days of war and its brightest days of peace for 36 years. Along the route from Bucharest to Florica the railroad tracks were lined with peasants who stood with uncovered heads and in prayer as the funeral train slowly passed.

There was something strikingly solemn about the procession as with slow labored tread the six oxen which came from the late premier's farm drew the flag draped coffin to the vault while the mournful cadences of Cropin's funeral March echoed over the green hill of Florica and the devout fell to their knees in prayer.

Next to Madame Bratianu, the saddest figure at the funeral was Queen Marie who only a short time ago buried her king. As she stood by the side of the late premier's grave in robes of deep mourning, her tear-drenched eyes betrayed her poignant grief far better than anything else.

When Madame Bratianu seemed on the verge of fainting, Marie took her tenderly by the arm and with sisterly affection led her away. Another sad figure was young Prince Nicholas whom Bratianu appointed to the regency which governs the country for the six-year-old King Michael, son of the exiled Crown Prince Carol.

Others attending the funeral were struck by the many evidences of Bratianu's devotion to the memory of his father. In the little chapel Bratianu had a lamp burning eternally at the foot of his father's tomb. In the family home, itself simple and old fashioned, the elder Bratianu's bedroom with its furnishings was kept exactly as he left it. In the drawing room the most striking feature was the faded paintings of the late statesman's father and mother.

SUCCESSFUL COLLEGE MEN HAVE LARGEST FAMILIES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Successful college men have the largest families, and children from large families are the most successful in college, says Dr. Ellsworth Huntington, research associate at Yale university, writing in The Yale Scientific Monthly, a publication issued by students in the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale university. Professor Huntington is known for his studies in "Civilization and Climate," "The Character of Races," and kindred works, as well as "The Builders of America," written in collaboration with Leon F. Whitney.

From his investigation of student records at Yale, Professor Huntington has found that students from large families, "decidedly excel those from smaller families in literary, dramatic, religious, and musical activities, in managing teams, in student government, and the like," and comes to the conclusion that "it is a decided advantage to belong to a large family." His investigation of the records of 700 Yale graduates shows that 95 per cent of the most successful of these are married, as compared to 67 per cent among the least successful, and have on the average "about three times as many children per graduate," as compared to those least successful. The successful man is defined as "the one who is of the most value in making the community a better place in which to live."

AUSTRIA WILL BE AIDED BY AMERICAN FINANCIERS

VIENNA, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Commercial and industrial Austria at this particular moment has good reason to be grateful to American financiers who next week will float a thirty million dollar bond issue for the city of Vienna which will enable the city fathers to reduce many onerous taxes that has duce many ponderous taxes that has prevented manufacturers from expanding to the production basis enjoyed before the war.

In the last six years it has been the custom of the socialist governed city to pay for many civic improvements from current revenue and ignoring the universal cry of bondholders to liquidate past due obligations, incurred during previous regimes. The money to be derived from the new bonds is to be used for improvement of municipal powerhouses, street paving and lighting, and to acquire a big fleet of city owned omnibuses. This will leave the city revenue free of this expense for the time being and will probably allow consideration of plans to pay off former bond issues.

BONAPARTE O'MAHONY DIED IN STATE PRISON

HARTFORD, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Sitting quietly in a hospital cell chair at the Wethersfield state prison early this morning, James Napoleon Bonaparte O'Mahony, life convict and slayer of his sweetheart, found the freedom from prison bars that his recent desperate attempt to escape had not won him.

He died unnoticed at about 1:30 a. m., while a guard paced slowly up and down in front of the cell thinking his prisoner, who some time before had let this cot to ask for a drink of water, had fallen asleep in his chair. An autopsy performed this afternoon by Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello, of this city showed that death was caused by peritonitis, which had developed from gunshot wounds received by O'Mahoney during a fierce encounter with prison guards Tuesday night, November 22, when he was attempting to escape.

Poland Not Alarmed By the Soviet Note

Is Willing to Have the Lithuanian Question Dealt With by the League of Nations.

WARSAW, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Warsaw does not share the uneasiness said to exist in governmental circles in Berlin, Moscow and Kovno, concerning the Polish-Lithuanian dispute which will be dealt with next week by the League of Nations.

Soviet Russia's joint note to Lithuania and Poland expressing concern at the strained relations between the countries, passed almost unnoticed when the full text was published in Warsaw newspapers. It is considered here that Russia merely desires to create an atmosphere that will enable her to participate in whatever preliminary discussions are held thereby making it sure that Russia will not be left out when the matter is brought up on the floor of the League of Nations.

Foreign Minister Zaleski is at present concentrating his efforts on preparation of Poland's side of the controversy which he will personally present to the League. He may also be accompanied to Geneva by Marshal Pilsudski.

Lithuania's attitude toward Poland is considered here to have nearly reached the limit of toleration. It is pointed out that there now exists between the two countries no railway, postal or telegraphic communication, and the hermetically closed frontier renders stabilization of conditions in eastern Europe impossible. Added to this is the closing of the Lithuanian Port of Memel to Poland which deprives the latter country of a natural outlet to the sea through the river Niemen.

Taken as a whole, it is believed that Polish statesmen are quite willing to have the entire Lithuanian question dealt with by the League of Nations, as it is expected to restore normal relations between the various governments in this part of Europe which have been more or less in strained condition since.

CLAIMS MADE BY THE LITHUANIAN GOVERNMENT

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Premier Waldemars of Lithuania, in a signed telegram to Reuter's correspondent here, says there is overwhelming evidence that certain persons who fled from Lithuania after the attempted revolution at Tauroggen last September were being used by the Polish government as organisers of a revolutionary movement against the Lithuanian government.

"As to the question whether the present government is prepared to resume normal relations with Poland by renouncing Vilna," continues the message, "I must emphasize that no Lithuanian party is ready to renounce Vilna, and least of all, my own party. I am ready to resume normal relations when a satisfactory agreement has been reached with Poland regarding Vilna and when Poland manifests readiness to respect Lithuania's independence."

A news agency dispatch from Riga says the Lithuanian press is unanimously demanding the formation of a national unity government and that Premier Waldemars is negotiating with the Christian-Democrats, the peasants party, the peoples party and the socialists with a view to forming a coalition.

AL SMITH'S NAME TO BE ON CALIFORNIA BALLAT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Accepting the challenge of John B. Elliott, prominent California democrat, to bring the wet and dry issue by putting the name of Governor A. Smith of New York, on the ballot in the state's next primary election, Justus S. Wardell declared yesterday that the New York governor's name would be formally presented to the voters.

Mr. Elliott was the McAdoo faction's candidate for the United States senatorial nomination in 1926.

In a recent statement, Mr. Elliott declared no wet candidate would have a chance of winning the support of California democrats.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE IN EFFORT TO JOIN DEAD FRIEND

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—An artist and spiritualist, who had grieved for a month over the death of his closest friend, a musician, sought vainly today to join his companion in their spirit world.

Two unsealed letters were found. In a note to his mother he had asked that he beburied nevt to Stuart. Another asked that friends notified.

It was while they were on the bus between Danbury and South Norwalk, where they were to get a New York train, that the O'Dare girl suddenly pulled the poison bottle from her handbag and drank from it.

COMMITTED SUICIDE AT BEHEST OF HER HUSBAND

Nearby was an empty bottle that had contained a chloroform mixture. Inside the house Nagels lay asleep.

When awakened, Nagels, who is 67, told the police that when he came home tonight he found Rose, who was 54, in a heavy alcoholic stupor. FORMER YALE HOCKEY STAR HELD FOR FATAL SHOOTING

Gilbert Stanley, Now a Widely Known Electrical Inventor, is Charged With Killing Peter Fulco of Great Barrington, Mass., on Grounds of the Berkshire Preparatory School, of Which Stanley Was Manager—Stanley Claims That Fulco Had Refused to Leave the School Grounds and That He Was Shot as He Rushed at Stanley.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Gilbert Stanley, former Yale hockey star and son of the late William Stanley, widely known electrical inventor, was arrested early today charged with shooting and killing Peter Fulco of Great Barrington shortly after midnight this morning on the grounds of the Berkshire Preparatory school of which Stanley was manager.

Stanley, who, police said, admitted the shooting, claimed he fired in an effort to frighten the man who, he said rushed at him after Stanley had ordered him off the grounds. He declared he did not intend to shoot Fulco.

Great Barrington police arrested Stanley shortly after the shooting and kept him in custody until this morning when a charge of manslaughter was preferred and bail was fixed at $10,000 for a hearing Thursday.

Fulco was one of a party of four who had passed the evening at the home of Michael Cleary, Jr., the others Cleary, Mrs. Mabel St. James and Miss Estelle Budniski, who was employed at the school as a maid. About midnight they drove to the school in an automobile and entered the grounds.

While Miss Budniski accompanied by Cleary, started for her room in one of the school buildings, Fulco and Mrs. St. James remained in the automobile and while they were waiting Stanley appeared and ordered them to leave the place. When they failed to go Stanley said later, he went back to the school and got a shotgun and then returned, accompanied by Frank G. Crawford, English teacher at the school.

Stanley again ordered Fulco off the grounds whereupon he claimed, Fulco jumped from the car and rushed at him. The gun was discharged and Fulco was killed almost instantly.

Stanley is a member of a family long prominent throughout this section. His father was identified with electrical development for many years and the Pittsfield plant of the General Electric company bears his name. His mother now lives in Great Barrington. The younger man now thirty years old is one of six brothers who attended Yale, four of whom were hockey stars while in college. He was a member of the class of 1919 at Yale. Previously he had attended the Berkshire school of which he became manager a year or so ago.

One brother, Harold, now vice-president of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, was captain of the Yale hockey team for two years and a twin brother, Clarence, played on the squad at the time Gilbert starred on the ice.

Fulco, who was 28 years old, was widely known in this section where he also had achieved something of a reputation as an athlete. He was a high school baseball and basket ball player and later played semi-pro baseball.

As an outgrowth of the trouble Cleary and Mrs. St. James were arrested later charged with drunkenness. Both were held in bail to appear in court Thursday at which time the shooting will be heard.

BELIEVE "LADDER BURGLAR" GUILTY OF DOUBLE MURDER

YONKERS, N. Y., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Confident that the "ladder burglar" who has ransacked a number of Westchester county homes recently was the slayer of Mrs. Clarence Rein and her son, Leslie, who were shot to death in their home, police today began an intensive search for the burglar.

Mrs. Rein, with two bullets in her abdomen, was found dead last night lying across the body of her son, who had been killed by a bullet wound in his head.

Leaning against an open window of the apartment, which is on the second floor of the building, was an 18-foot ladder. This, police learned today, had been taken from a nearby door yard.

"Evidence was found in the room where Mrs. Rein and her son were slain that the slayer had been surprised in a search for valuables, but so fra as could be learned, nothing was taken.

Police of New York, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, White Plains and other communities are co-operating with the Yonkers authorities in their efforts to apprehend the slayer, and it is regarded as likely that the city of Yonkers and Westchester county will offer rewards for his capture.

DETECTIVE BURNS AND SON TO BE SERVED A CITATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—With W. J. Burns, founder of the Burns detective agency, his son, W. Sherman, manager of the agency, and C. L. Veitsch, their Baltimore manager, ready to be served tomorrow with a citation ordering them to appear in the District of Columbia supreme court Dec. 5, to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt, the plan of government to use Burns' detectives to prove the charge against their employer tonight, held chief interest in the case.

District Attorney Gordon has announced that nearly every person who testified before the grand jury in the government's investigation into its charges of tampering with the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury was being summoned as witnesses in the contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair, the oil operator, Henry Mason Day, of New York, and Sheldon Clark, of Chicago, his confidential associates, and the Burns officials. Earlier last week Gordon asked Justice Frederick L. Siddons, to cite the sextet for contempt because of the shadowing of the trial jurors by Burns detectives.

LABOR DEPT. ADJUSTED 395 LABOR DISPUTES LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Of 545 trade disputes which came before the federal conciliation service of the labor department during the last fiscal year, 395 were adjusted, Secretary Davis noted today in issuing his annual report. Hugh L. Kerwin, head of the service, estimated that normally about 85 per cent of the labor controversies into which the labor department had been invited to intervene reached satisfactory settlement.

The record, the secretary concluded, justified the now well settled national policy refraining from compulsory arbitration methods or other devices for enforcing trade dispute settlements.

"Our experience has proved," the report said, "that American employers and employes are not favorable to the principle of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes. Neither legal enactment nor compulsion seems to be practicable and proper as a means of bringing about industrial peace. The remedy lies in direct negotiation and mutual understanding."

MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN STREET IN MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Francis Long, of Durham avenue who was found unconscious near a gas station in South Main street, early today with blood streaming from an ugly scalp wound was reported as somewhat recovered tonight but still too dazed to tell what had happened to him.

Coroner L. A. Smith, who is investigating, has discovered that Long attended a party given by the owner of the gas station last night and was probably struck down by a "hit and run" driver while on his way home.

Besides the scalp wound, Long, is suffering from injuries to an arm and internal injuries.

HUNDREDS OF PERSONS DROWNED IN ALGIERS

ALGIERS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Hundreds of persons are reported to have drowned in a widespread flood that swept away houses and caused big buildings to collapse in a hundred mile area just east of Oran.

Rain fell in torrents for 40 hours deluging an area of 50 miles wide from Orleansville to Perregaux and northward to the Mediterranean sea. Thirty-seven bodies have already been recovered while all those known to have drowned were natives. It is feared many foreigners also lost their lives as the foreign quarters of the cities in the path of the flood were badly hit.

The worst damage was at Mostaganem, where the city hall collapsed.

Eight bridges in the vicinity are said to have been carried away and the homes, barns and livestock of farmers were destroyed.

Rescue crews and troops have been despatched to the flooded area, but as all railroads and other means of communication are wiped out little can be done at present. Heavy storms are reported elsewhere as far as Tunis, where highways were obliterated.

At Perregaux, a dam one third of a mile long broke under the sudden strain and released millions of tons of water. The population of the city had three hours warning of the impending break and it is believed everyone escaped to the hills. Passengers on an Oran-Algiers train that has been marooned near Perregaux have sent a messenger in with word that they are without food.

$10,000,000 SUIT BASED ON OPERATION OF A GLIDER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The operation of a 35-pound glider in 1901 forms the basis of a $10,000,000 suit which has placed before the United States courts of claim the problem of ascertaining who discovered and patented the underlying principles of the modern airplane.

Regina C. Montgomery and others, heirs of the late Professor John J. Montgomery, of Santa Clara, Calif., are asking the sum of the government for alleged use of an invention for which a patent was granted Professor Montgomery in 1906. They contend all government planes employ principles covered in his patent.

Montgomery's first successful flights were made in March, 1905, in Santa Cruz county, California. hTe plane was towed into the air by a balloon and freed when 800 feet up. John Maloney, a parachute jumper, piloted the tiny plane down, landing it in an apple tree.

Professor Montgomery became one of the charter members of the Aero club in 1926, but five years later lost his own life in a crash of one of his machines.

The government denies infringement on the patent and alleges it was not filed until more than a year after the Wright brothers made their motor-propelled flight on December 17, 1903.

NOANK

A BULLETIN SUBSCRIBER FOR THE PAST FORTY YEARS

Frank E. Williams who lives on Elm street, has been taking the Norwich Morning Bulletin for over 40 years, since early times in the village, when there were only 4 delivered. He holds the record of being a continuous Bulletin reader in the fishing village. When rising in the early morning it is the first thing he runs for—The Bulletin. He says he would go without his breakfast rather than miss the paper, so he could read it. He told friends about the big blizzard of 1888 when a train did not move for a week on account of the deep snow. He found his papers a week or two late but the news seemed good to him even then, he declares.

Miss Frances Goodwin of East Philadelphia is visiting her aunt, Marg. Main for a few days.

The last pool match has been held between Long Shot Johnnie Camerey and Cross-Side Eddie Ellis, who had won one game apiece for the championship of the smoke eaters. Friday evening at 8 o'clock as the large room was well filled with pool sharps, so there was no room for the Fire company cat, Ellis got the cue in shape and started the match by getting a hard shot on the break and getting a good run of 40 balls. He fell down on the green and when it came Long Shot Camerey's turn to shoot, the crowd cheered and cheered him. He was soon doing some clever shooting and many times brought the crowd to its feet with his long shots. But after a run of 35 balls he fell down on an easy shot, so Ellis' second chance came to win the championship of the company. He went right after the game, fighting all the way. He pulled a double cross side shot over which the crowd went wild. It was a real match. Ellis made a run of 30 balls, making 70 balls, with 30 more to go, so Camerey came from his seat with a smile of victory and made a run of 40 balls, putting him 5 ahead of his rival. On the green Ellis went right after him getting backward shots, and as usual his cross-side shots and made the score 100. Then he turned to Camerey and said "Come on! Do your stuff if you want to be the best player of the smoke eaters' squad!" Then he went for his last chance to win, his motto, "A man is never beat until he falls down," making some nice shots that the champion of the world, Greenleaf, might want to learn from him. He made a run of 24, missed a ball which was on the edge of the pocket and would have made it a tie. He lost to his rival, Cross Side Ellis by one ball. Ellis 100, Camerey 99, so the new champion of the Village Fire Co. is Eddie Ellis, a boy of 20. He received a small loving cup. Later there was a lunch of corned beef sandwiches, cookies and Oolong tea.

Sam Carson spent a day in Hallville, Conn., with friends recently.

The auxiliary to the American Legion post, was going from house to house in the village for aid for families of disabled soldiers. Many of the men are in hospitals and need help for Christmas cheer. Candy or a toy or doll for the children would do much good.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goodwin of Philadelphia, visited relatives here over the week end.

The young fishing fleet went to Block Island for the week, where the fish are large and plenty of them. The boats tied up and put aboard supplies at the packing house dock. The fleet set their nets 35 miles off Block Island. The weather was bad during the week so the boats tied up at New London.

WESTERLY

WISCONSIN CATTLE ARRIVE FOR NO. STONINGTON FARM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 27.—In a special freight train from Groton on Sunday morning made up of three cattle cars of the Chicago and North Western railroad, a shipment of 67 cows and 6 calves arrived at the Westerly freight yard. The consignment was to Judge Ledyard S. Anthony of North Stonington, who was at Fond du Lac, Wis., last Monday when the cattle were loaded, and an additional car for Slocum, R. I. At that time he reported there was a foot of snow on the ground there and at Appleton, on Fox river emptying into Green bay, Lake Michigan, it was continuing to snow hard when he left. The cattle cars were lined with tarred paper to protect the cattle from the snow and cold weather. The cattle cars came into New England on the Boston & Albany R. R., as far as Worcester, Mass., and then down the Norwich & Worcester branch to Groton.

From the first car were unloaded 21 cows and 4 calves, from the second 16 cows and 2 calves and from the third 20 cows, all in excellent condition. In the presence of Station Agent Earl S. Bavier the cows were checked as they came upon the platform and were herded on Railroad drive before the herd was started through Friendship street, High street, and the Nooseneck Hill road to the top of Vincent Carr Hill and by way of the White School House Corners to the Boom Bridge road. Motorcycle Officer George L. Madison accompanied the herd as far as Boom bridge over the Pawcatuck river to see that no speeding motorists passed through the droves. The drivers with crooked canes and their "Hip, hi! Ho!" brought many Sunday morning sleepers to doors and windows to watch the cattle crowd past with now and then a side excursion to neighboring lawn and field. All told, Judge Anthony has had some 35 carloads of cattle shipped to him from the mid-west to the Westerly freight station.

The following transfer has been recorded:

MOTHER!
A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play if Constipated

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

DANIELSON

FURTHER SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL WOMAN'S BODY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 27—What has been a constantly strengthening surmise the past fortnight, as to a young woman losing her life when a car plunged into Keegan's mill pond at Wilsonville in the town of Thompson on the eve of Armistice day, has, over the week end come to be regarded as almost a certainty that Jerome Vincent Sheldon of Watertown, Mass., went alone to his death in the closed car from which his body later was recovered.

With the water down over the week end, no trace of any other body was found. They may be one in the water, but very few people believe that any more.

And this being the case, it is interesting to try to account for the fact that a woman's hat and pocketbook was recovered from the car after it had been hauled out of the water, and that there also was in the car a milk bottle and other things to indicate that possibly a child also was in the machine when it took the plunge that was fatal to its owner.

It is pointed out that there is always the chance that a body, caught in water like that into which the car plunged, might be held to the bottom by something or other catching in the clothing, or that the same thing might happen further down the stream, but this theory, however accurate it may be, is being abandoned for the idea that Sheldon was alone when he went to his death.

The coming week will mark the beginning of the work of raising a fund to buy Christmas dinners for the needy of Danielson. This has been done for years. Receptacles are to be placed in business places throughout the borough, as in other years, and into these the charitable inclined will drop something for those who are not so happily situated in life as themselves. No giving opportunity of the year holds a greater appeal for many people than does this particular fund. The donations, as a rule, do not bulk large, but amount to very considerable when collected.

A pretty church wedding took place Thursday morning at St. Mary's church, Dayville, when Miss Emelia R. Herard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Herard of Attawaugan, became the bride of Joseph P. LaFave, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LaFave of Dayville. Rev. Ignatius Kost was celebrant of the nuptial high mass, a double ring service being performed.

The bride was charmingly gowned in pink georgette with picture hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and chrysanthemums.

The couple were attended by Miss Mary Boris, a close friend of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Alfred LaFave, brother of the groom, as best man.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of La Tosaca pearls, the best man and bridesmaid receiving gold pieces.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Attawaugan Social club where a buffet lunch was served, relatives being present from Lowell, Danielson, Dayville, Jewett City and Putnam.

Dance music and singing accompaniments were furnished by Patrick Corrigan and his orchestra.

The bride who is a popular young woman among the younger set is a graduate of A. H. F., Baltic.

The groom, well known in baseball circles, is employed by the Quinebaug Co.

After a short wedding trip including Boston and Providence, the happy couple will reside in Danielson.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Foster Center church funeral services for Miss Victoria C. Howard were conducted by Rev. F. M. Buker, of Washington, R. I., formerly pastor at North Sterling. Burial was in the Haven family cemetery in Foster. The bearers were George Nichols, Olney Knight, Frank Brayton, Everett Howard. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Some clamor has been set up because attention has been called in this column to the fact that there is a real difference between "Christmas" seals being sold by children for a commission averaging about 40 per cent of all they take in, and the real Christmas seals that produce money used to eradicate tuberculosis in Connecticut. Insistence is made here and now that the public is entitled to know the difference between the two classes of seals, and knowing, can buy which ever it likes. Money spent for purely ornamental seals will never do a consumptive any good, however, and those who really want to help along that line are going to buy the real Christmas seals—and as many of the others as they happen to see fit.

A death at Moosup at the week end was that of Delphis Lamoureaux, 43, who had been ill for some time. Mr. Lamoureaux was a native of Massachusetts, but had been a resident of Moosup for years. He leaves his wife and nine children.

Another death at Moosup on Saturday was that of Eusabe Harold, 82, who was bor nin Canada, but who has made his home in this country for a great many years. Meddie and William Harold of this town and Peter Harold of Moosup are sons of the deceased, and Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Roth of the East Killingly section of this town are daughters.

The campaign against drivers operating cars with defective lighting equipment and without windshield cleaners is not over. It is to be continued indefinitely, it is understood, until all owners of cars are brought to giving their particular attention to having lights and windshield cleaners in proper working order. Cars with one headlight and no taillight are dangerous on the highways at night. It's proving expensive to drive them that way any more.

The only real criticism of the clean-up campaign the state police have been waging throughout Connecticut, as to what has been mentioned heretofore, seems to be based on the fact that the penalties of courts in one town are much more severe than they have been in some neighboring town. All of this, it has been pointed out, is a matter of discretion with the courts. All of the fines and costs have been within the limitations fixed by statute law. The Killingly court happened to impose very mild fines and actual costs. If a court in some other town bears down a little harder, that is a matter pertaining exclusively to that particular jurisdiction.

Rhode Island is said to be still struggling in some sections with the problem of restoring bridges and highways that were nearly ruined by the flood of November 3. Motorists report that, because of collapsed bridges, the route from Danielson to Woonsocket, via Glendale, still involves making a rough detour. The Rhode Island state highway department has a large force of men working steadily to repair the damage, but completing the work before real winter sets in is practically a hopeless task and some of the wrecked bridges and washed out roads will not be fixed again until spring.

A solid carload of Christmas trees rolled through Danielson early this afternoon on a south-bound freight, and how local youngsters' eyes popped at the sight. It's a warning to the old-timers that the great festival is not a great ways ahead.

This, the first Sunday in Advent, marked the beginning of a new ecclesiastical year, a fact that was given special mention at the masses at St. James church this morning, and admonition given that it contemplates a four weeks' period prior to the great festival period of Christmas that should be one of self-abnegation and denial.

A southerly rainstorm that began to whip things about in the early hours of this morning was the forerunner of a rainy, gloomy day that kept the great majority of local people indoors.

This is a week in which hundreds of fore-handed people in Killingly and other nearby communities begin to make their bank deposits for their Christmas club checks of 1928.

Eli J. Dagenias, aroused the imagination of the fox hunters hereabouts on Saturday when he exhibited three "reds" as the result of one day's hunt, something that has not been done hereabouts for many a blue moon.

"One-eyed" cars, the scores of court penalties for driving such machines in Windham county courts the past week notwithstanding, are still rolling about each night, their drivers wholly oblivious of the chances of being hauled into court they are taking. And one one wonders why.

The state armory as a week end dance resort came back into its own Saturday night, when the Service battery entertainment committee had Bob Macdonald's orchestra playing for those who came to enjoy a happy evening.

At St. James' church this morning at an early mass there was a sermon in their native language, by a priest of their nationality, for the Polish members of the parish.

The tedious work of repairing Killingly's highways damaged in the flood of November 3 continues steadily, favored by as fine very late fall weather as this section has experienced in a long term of years.

For several days past there has been a continuous line of reports coming to newspapermen of flocks of wild geese headed south over this territory, and those wise in the way of seasons hereabouts insist that the flight means severe winter weather just a little ways ahead.

Mrs. Eloi Getty returned here after spending the Thanksgiving period with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Getty in Boston.

Miss Katherine Coffey returned to her home here at the week end after undergoing a slight surgical operation at the Huntington Memorial hospital in Boston.

American Legion members here have their minds fixed just now on what may be done for a Community Christmas tree program on Davis park, along the lines of the interesting program arranged for last year.

The Danielson Town basketball team will put in a strenuous week, or at least part of week, in practice for the opening game here with the South Manchester team.

About 50 were present Saturday at noon at the home of the bride in Elmville for the marriage of Miss A. Laura Chase and Willard S. Danielson. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church, performed the ceremony, during which musical numbers were played by Flagg's instrumental quartet. Miss Gladys Chase, of Hartford, a cousin of the bride, was the bridesmain, and James Danielson was best man. Following a reception, Mr. and Mrs. Danielson left by motor for Florida, where they are to remain this winter.

PUTNAM

WORCESTER MAN BURNED WHEN AUTO CAUGHT FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 27.—Salvatore Virgilio, of Worcester, was severely burned about the head and shoulders and his automobile was entirely destroyed near Brandy hill Friday night when he attempted to remedy some little trouble with his engine and used a lighted match to enable him to see.

Virgilio was coming to Putnam with a party of friends when something went wrong and his engine stalled. The trouble apparently was a leak in the gasoline pipe for when he lighted a match, the car suddenly burst into flames. Before he could get away, he was severely burned about the face. He was taken to Webster where he was treated by a doctor and sent to his home in Worcester.

The loss of the car and the burns were not all of his troubles as it was found that his driver's license had expired and he was summoned to appear at court in North Grosvenordale on Saturday.

Miss Mgna L. Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Andrea Johnson, of North Grosvenordale, and Carl H. Lorenz, of Webster, were married Saturday evening at the Swedish Emanuel Lutheran church of North Grosvenordale, the pastor, Rev. Fritz Soderberg, officiating. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the vestry of the church. The bridal party entered the church to the wedding march played by Raymond Johnson, and during the ceremony, a solo was sung by Mrs. Fritz Soderberg. The attendants were Miss Carrie Anderson as bridesmaid, and Fred Lindquist, of Hartford, was the best man. Little Miss Doris Josnson was the flower girl and Raymond Johnson and Raymond Peterson were the ushers.

The bride was dressed in a white satin gown trimmed with Belgian lace, wore a full length veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore a pale green satin back crepe trimmed with silver beads and a hat to match. The flower girl wore a pale pink crepe and carried a basket of roses.

The bride is well known in this vicinity and has lived in North Grosvenordale the greater part of her life. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lorenz, of Webster, and is a reported on a paper in Webster. Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz, after a wedding trip to New York, will make their home at North Grosvenordale.

The Lundi Sewing and Social club, composed of the colored ladies of Putnam, recently gave a very successful dance in Odd Fellows hall. The money earned will be used entirely for charitable purposes, some to be used locally and part to fill a barrel of clothing and toys to be sent to a southern school which has been the custom of the society ever since its organization. Little Marianne Schoot was the holder of the lucky ticket which won a ton of coal.

PUTNAM PEOPLE FINED FOR DEFECTIVE LIGHTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 27.—Putnam owners of automobiles have not escaped the results of the campaign being waged by the state police against the disregard of automobile owners to the law regarding proper lights on their cars. Putnam, however, has been this phase of the motor vehicle regulations than in many sections of the state. Five cases were disposed of in one morning in city court recently, two were fined one dollar and ordered to pay costs amounting to two dollars. A number of others have been rounded up within the past few weeks, as warnings have proved ineffective and defective and insufficient head and tail lights continue to be carried over the highways of the state.

Many radio fans in this vicinity were interested in listening to the second act of the new Aarons and Freedley musical comedy "Funny Face" which was broadcast from the theatre in New York, Saturday night. Vinton Freedly, one of the producers of the show, has his home at Pomfret and the stars of the new piece, Fred and Adele Astairs, are known to many people here as they have been entertained at the Freedly home. The reception over the radio proved to be exceptionally good last night and the broadcasting was very interesting to many of Mr. Freedley's friends here.

Through the generosity of Mrs. T. Morris Murray, of Boston and Abington, a new two-story addition is being built at "The Haven" in Abington. The addition will include a living room, seven bed rooms, two sun parlors, a summer house and a large laundry in the basement. Mrs. Murray has seen the need of a larger and better home for the elderly people.

Leslie Woodis, a pupil at the Israel Putnam school, is employed out of school hours sweeping up at the Victory theatre in this city. A few days ago he found a pocket book containing a sum of money and turned it in at the ticket office. A Pomfret man had lost it several days before but did not know where. Leslie is now ten dollars richer by his honesty.

Among the young people of Putnam who are attending colleges or special schools and who spent their holiday season at home are Gerald P. Marcy and Harold L. Burial was in Westford cemetery.

JEWETT CITY

MUSKRATS NO WEAKER SHARPS —WILD GEESE SEEM KEENER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 27.—Before the great rain of Nov. 3d and 4th, Pachaug pond was at its usual low water stage and showed all along the upper reaches of the great reservoir the same October levels as have been noted for the past ten years. Inhabiting this great wild area are thousands of muskrats, as local trappers will testify. Each year, with much pains and labor, their winter houses are constructed along the low marshes, a little shoreward from the main channel. This October, more than 200 small mounds dotted about here and there in the shallow water, indicated that the muskrats had definitely decided on this season's water levels, and had built their winter quarters accordingly. The unexpected happened. The rains descended and the floods came, and today, those carefully constructed muskrat houses are hopelessly flooded and ruined, for they are under from 8 to 12 feet of water. These actual local occurrences tend to disqualify the muskrat as a sure forecaster of coming winter weather.

Another natural prediction, which took place just before noon here Friday last, was the peculiar actions of the great flock of wild geese that passed over the borough. Evidence has since proven that a part of the flock, twenty as near as could be counted, were determined to stop in their long flight, probably from Labrador, and drop into the inviting shallows of Tadpole's Eastern pond, just off the marshes that skirt the Whiting cedar swamp. This, they would have succeeded in doing, had not the leader, and boss of the flock, suddenly dropped like a plummet below the quitters and whipped them into line again. These facts were pointed out in the Jewett City column of The Bulletin, Saturday morning. Today, a man who seldom fails on the weather, has been in word, "When a flock of geese, passing for the south, breaks up, and descends to local waters, in these latitudes, and at this yet early migratory season, it means but one thing—A mild winter. The birds," he says, "became aware by instinct that further southern flight is unnecessary and that here they may pass the winter months in comfort."

BAY STATE PASTORS TO EXCHANGE WITH CONN.

Twenty-five Massachusetts Baptist ministers are to exchange with an equal number of Connecticut Baptist pastors. The arrangement has provisions that this, the most extreme inter-state exchange in the ministry ever carried out, shall extend over the period of seven days, so that the visitors in the parishes where they will be guests may take over the various church activities for the entire week. Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the local Baptist church, has been asked to give his favorable cooperation in the plan.

Miss Bertha Geer, of Springfield, spent Thanksgiving and the week-end at her mother's home in Pachaug. Friday evening the whole family party, including Mrs. E. A. Geer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Geer and three children, Dorothy, David and Marion, and Miss Bertha, attended the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Frink, of Sterling Hill. From Jewett City, Mr. and Mrs. George Frink and family were present, and from Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Norman and Mr. and Mrs. George Norman.

Misses Christine and Arlene Burdick, of Boston University school of Religious education and social service, spent the Thanksgiving recess at their home.

The majority of local motor vehicle operators are not disquieted because of the recent activities of the state troopers in checking up such irregularities in machine equipment required by law. There seems to be in Jewett City the desire to conform, if possible, with the entire list of state regulations. No attempt at wilful evasion of the law was checked up against Jewett City drivers.

COUNTRY DOCTORS

Great stress has been laid upon the fact that the cities are drawing the young people away from the country. This is having its effect upon the farm situation and the farm labor problem. But the cities are drawing more than the young people; they are drawing the doctors and therein lies cause for much concern on the part of the country people for they have need of the services of physicians and like many others they feel better when medical help is close at hand.

The country doctor is fast passing. The National grange, Patrons of Husbandry, considers that such physicians "threaten to become extinct within 10 years if the movement toward the city and specialization continues at the present rate," and has sent a resolution to the American Medical Association asking it to do something about it.

It is estimated that there are 30,000,000 people living in rural sections of the country and the need is for young men who seek a livelihood as general practitioners by locating among these people. This was done in other days and while such doctors never became millionaires they would have been if the wishes of their patients could have accomplished it.

But conditions have changed. It is no longer necessary to hitch up and drive after the doctor. He can be reached by telephone over long distances, and there isn't a doctor today but what has an automobile. Not everyone lives on the state roads but they are not far from them and the doctor who is summoned from a nearby village or city is able in these days to reach his patient much more quickly than the country doctor could in the days gone by.

The decrease in the number of country doctors is unquestionably due to the fact that a small and scattered practice has far less attractions than the opportunities which are afforded in a city with its larger population and the added opportunity for the advantage of hospital practice. Still the people of the country need medical attention and the grangers apparently believe that it is within the province of the medical association to so guide the new doctors as to meet this need. The country people apparently do not like the idea of being educated to medical service from the cities.

DRAINING THE LAKES

For a long time there has been a heated controversy between Chicago and the states along the Great Lakes over the water that is being drawn from the lakes to flush the drainage canal from that city. Chicago maintained that it had a right to so utilize the water, but the several states insisted that it had no right to do it to the detriment of shipping and the interests of states with lake frontages.

This dispute being carried to the highest court of the land a special master, former Justice Charles E. Hughes, was named to hear it. This he has done and made his report to the court and it will be used in arriving at the court's decision.

Mr. Hughes in his report gets down to the brass tacks of the matter by pointing out that Chicago is doing what it has been given permission to do. That permission was given by the secretary of war who was authorized to grant it by act of congress and he finds that it was within the power of congress to permit such use of the lake water. Thus it is maintained that Chicago is within its rights and is doing nothing illegal.

The special master does not undertake to say whether Chicago is getting more water than it needs or more than is reasonable in view of the other interests. That is a point which may be dwelt upon by the supreme court or that may be brought to the attention of congress.

The controversy hasn't been brought to an end. Thus far Chicago appears to have gained an advantage. What the supreme court will do is not known but if its decision is in keeping with the special report it is evident that pressure will have to be brought against congress if a modification is going to be obtained. The special report seems to indicate that that is the direction in which relief lies. Because Chicago is taking only what is authorized does not necessarily mean that it is not taking too much, and it hasn't been convincingly shown that this is the right way to dispose of its sewage in view of the claims which other states have to lake water.

PRISON AND DEPORTATION

Back in 1925 Marcus Garvey, who styled himself provisional president of Africa, went counter to the law and, upon being convicted of swindling fellow Negroes through the sale of steamship stock, was sentenced to spend five years at Atlanta. Those five years have not as yet been served, but it has been decided that he has spent enough time in the federal prison to make him and others understand the advisability of respecting law and it is proposed to release him with the understanding that he will be deported to Jamaica, where he was born.

The case is being disposed of like many others. It would be entirely possible to keep him here the full period of the sentence with time out for good behavior and then send him away. That will mean the removal of the man from the country and thus deny him the opportunity of reengaging in anything of a similar character, and at the same time it will mean the elimination of that expense which would be required to maintain him at Atlanta for the remainder of his term.

Garvey attracted much attention during the time he was operating in this country. He possessed the necessary brass for promoting his schemes and there was nothing too fantastic for him to undertake. His hypnotic influence got many followers. He made a great impression until the showdown came. In view of his record it would be undesirable that he should be allowed to remain here, for it is a record that would have been sufficient to have kept him out had it been available at the time. Being here and an expense to the nation, which can be eliminated by sending him back whence he came, the policy of deportation is being employed with good judgment, and particularly so in view of the fact that he has had an opportunity to better understand the desirability of respecting the laws of the country in which he finds himself.

ENFORCING AUTO LAWS

There are those who are not taking kindly to the enforcement of the automobile laws in this state as now being done by the state police. The insistence upon compliance seems all the more drastic because of the manner in which requirements have been neglected in the past.

In most every instance where it is discovered there is non-compliance with the law, the situation can be easily remedied, but one of the great troubles is that it hasn't been even where it has been known to exist. It createst a situation like that where parking is tolerated even though it is against the regulations. Because one or a few do it and no one is called to account others acquire the habit and it doesn't take long under such conditions before there is a general disregard for the parking ordinance, not only in one spot but everywhere.

But while there are those who are conscious of the fact that they are not respecting the auto laws there are those who are unconsciously doing it. This is particularly true of the driver who loses his taillight when the bulb burns out. If he starts out with his tail light burning and it goes bad he is entitled to a warning. If he fails to pay any attention upon learning that he has no rear light, or if he has a car which hasn't had a light on the rear for ages, he stands in a decidedly different position than the driver who endeavors to obey the law but is handicapped by the fact that he cannot drive his car and see the rear of it at the same time.

The idea of making the automobile laws mean more than they have been is to be commended, but there is such a thing as overdoing it quite as much as there is neglecting it.

AT CALIFORNIA'S PRISON

Every time there is an attempt at a jail or prison delivery it becomes apparent that there is laxity somewhere that makes it possible. At the Folsom penitentiary in California, at which prison are kept the worst criminals in the state and where there have been similar serious attempts to gain liberty, it has been demonstrated that regardless of such preventive measures as have been established in the past they are not adequate.

The latest revolt has been quelled after the loss of about a dozen lives and with many injured. It should be followed by a very careful investigation to determine how it was possible for the prisoners to be in possession of arms and ammunition, for that revolt came near being successful. Only because the keys which the prisoners who had charge of the break for liberty desired were in the hands of one who didn't usually have them was the plan upset.

At many institutions of this character the pleas for greater laxity have gotten increasing attention but it would have been no welcome news to the people of California if they had been told that the 3000 or more inmates of Folsom prison had gotten away as the result of the attempted delivery. Whatever methods have been employed in the past at that penitentiary, either as to visitors or to trustees, will be due for a revision unless we are greatly mistaken over the outcome of the investigation. The situation was such as to force action that will make a repetition impossible in the future.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With only 24 shopping days to Christmas you can't wait much longer.

Those who are predicting that Germany cannot meet the terms of the Dawes plan may be surprised.

The man on the corner says: Stock exchange seats are commanding high prices, but they are not rated as antiques.

If you think it is a long while to Christmas look at your calendar and then give a once over to the presents that must be bought.

One professor declares the hands of English women are larger than they were 30 years ago. Perhaps that is due to gathering in the dole.

Some unpleasant things are being said about Aviator Giles, but he didn't take oath to the fact that he had flown to Hawaii and return.

The idea of increasing the tax on prize fight tickets in the new revenue bill may create no great howl from those who would pay it but wait until you see Tex Rickard's protest.

Those who participated in the attempted prison delivery in California couldn't have expected an early parole. They have in fact so abused privileges that fewer will probably be extended henceforth.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSE WIFE

Soft colors in clothes are like soft answers in the soothing effect they produce.

Put a cup of raisins in the next batch of bread and see how the family takes to it.

Hooks in the hall closet low enough for little boys or girls to reach have developed the habit of neatness.

Be sure the new school shoes have room for feet to grow. One inch longer than the foot is a safe allowance.

Fine steel wool is a good first-aid measure for cleaning oven glassware, but there's a copper product on the market that is better.

Union suits for the growing child will last much longer if a piece of bias cloth is inserted at the waist line.

Serve slices of oranges with green tea, as well as lemon.

All odors of cooking may be eliminated by pouring a little oil of lavender into a dish of boiling water.

You can make a delicious jam by saving the fruit pulp from jellies, adding sugar and spices and boiling until thick.

To be exact you should sift flour before measuring it.

Paste blotting paper or felt on the bottom of ornaments to keep them from scratching polished tables.

When preserving use kettles of graniteware or porcelain.

Strips of adhesive plaster, which can be marked with ink, may be utilized for labels on preserves.

Rub machine oil on window screens before putting them away for the winter and they will not rust.

Too much salt in the soup may be remedied by stirring in a couple of pinches of brown sugar.

After scrubbing marble pour a little floor polish on it and then rub with a clean cloth.

You can wring hot cloths out without burning your hand, if you put them into the potato ricer. They come out much hotter than by hand.

It will save time when baking, if you have two measuring cups, one for dry ingredients and one for liquid.

WIRE DISH DRAINER

A wire dish drainer is a joy to the business woman whose aim in life is to do her breakfast dishes as speedily as possible. After the dishes are washed and placed in the drainer, boiling water may be poured over them and then left to drain. When the business woman returns her dishes will be ready to put away without any drying with a towel.

CREAMING SUGAR AND BUTTER

Creaming sugar and butter will be a much easier task if the bowl in which they are creamed is placed in a larger bowl containing hot water. The creaming will thus be expedited greatly.

FALL PAINTING

Autumn is the best time to redecorate the walls. No insects will stick and the summer's heat will not blister.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Never wash chapped and reddened hands in hot water.

Wash them thoroughly in a pure vegetable oil soap and dry them thoroughly.

Then use a lotion.

If you want your hands softly white, use a good bleach.

There is always the lemon.

Squeeze some juice in your two glasses of cold water before breakfast.

Squeeze some more in the water you wash your hands and neck in.

It has fine cleansing properties.

And put some on your hands at night to whiten them.

A LITTLE SALT.

Use a little salt to remove stains from fine china.

Dissolve a lump of salt in the sink every now and then to keep it sanitary.

Try placing a little salt in the frying pan to prevent the sputtering of hot grease.

If the iron seems rough and perhaps a little dirty, sprinkle some salt on a newspaper and rub the hot iron on this before applying to the garment.

MAKES GOOD DRAIN.

The new embossed linoleum makes an excellent drainboard. Tack or cement it to your wooden sinkboard—the water will follow the lines of the embossing or indentations in the design and you will not be so apt to chip or crack china on the resilient linoleum surface.

MAKE A QUILT.

In your spirit of fall house-cleaning don't throw away the thin worn blankets you have been using for summer. Two or three of them together and then covered with sateen will make a very nice quilt. They can be tacked here and there like regular quilts, and a frill of sateen can be added to make it more decorative.

SENSIBLE LUXURY.

To be sensible, yet fragile, to be warm, yet filmy—that's the struggle and the reason why so many women freeze in winter. The problem may be solved in one's boudoir at least. There is the velvet robe, made of chiffon velvet. One in particular is the shade of the inside of an apricot's skin, trimmed with large futuristic leaves in deep purple, blue and rose. These designs are neither painted nor appliqued and they look both, but velvet design is pressed into velvet material until the two melt into each other. Nothing could be warmer than this dressing gowns and nothing daintier.

CONTAINER FOR BUTTONS.

A wide-mouthed glass jar is an excellent container for buttons. One can view the contents from the outside and a great deal of searching is avoided when looking for a particular style of a button.

MAKING CURTAINS.

So often the pins will not stay in the hems of net curtains and one must baste to have any sort of neatness. This can be avoided if small wire hairpins are used instead of pins; they will not slip.

WORN CARPETS.

Darn the worn carpet with a rug wool, being careful to match the color perfectly. It will greatly reduce the shabby appearance and it will wear much longer if mended before very far gone.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Jeweled heels are the vogue now. A pair of silver slippers has heels studded with rhinestones.

Black velvet, with three half-inch tucks widely spaced, fashions a new bag with rounded corners and a gold metal frame.

The scarf of the hour is a square of silk, either striped or in squares. It is worn about the throat much as a man wears his muffler.

A most unusual dress has four tiers upon the skirt of two tones of silver cloth and two tones of gold. The waist is silver.

Black, gray and blue still reign as street costume colors, but it is said that greens, browns and reds will be the winter favorites.

A tan tweed suit has a brown leather cape, hip-length, lined with the tweed and with tweed collar. The hat for the ensemble is tweed and leather.

The black satin afternoon frock, so successful at the present time, gains an added chic when it is accented with some of the new jade jewelry.

Something quite new and charming is a lamp-shade made of taffet, stitched in self color to form a design. These shades come stamped ready to work.

Close fitting felts are wonderfully becoming this season, especially the ones that are cut in a straight line, with the eyebrows, and down over the ears like ear-laps.

A welcome change from the silver fox neckpieces, now so much worn, are those made of two sable skins that can be twisted closely about the throat.

The slimmest little fur coats of all are those fashioned of beige American broadtail that has been treated and it is exceedingly thin and pliable. These coats are almost tailored in their simplicity.

The inevitable felt takes on a new appearance when it is covered with wool embroidery in gay colors. Narrow little scarfs of the same accompany the hats, and the effect is wonderfully cheerful.

Simple and wearable is a nightgown, silk of course, that is sleeveless and trimmed about the deep "V" neck with a bias band of the material. A pocket and string belt of the silk complete the picture.

VELVET FOR YOUNG GIRL

A brown velvet dress for a young girl is the ideal choice for more formal year. These dresses are extremely simple, with scarcely any trimming. A most attractive little frock is finished at the neck with a jabot of brown fur tails. The effect is very chic.

BANDING OF CLIPPED WOOL

The clever girl who likes to make her own clothes will be interested in the wide bands of white wool that are closely clipped so that they look surprisingly like white fur. This trimming comes by the yard and makes smart collars and cuffs n sport coats.

FRENCH LINGERIE

The most exquisite French lingerie is made of peach or pink crepe de chine trimmed with tiny little hand-run tucks, embroidery and the narrowest of pipings of a contrasting color. The step-ins are particularly well cut.

WHEN CLEANING WINDOWS

Clean windows help give a fresh outlook on life. As the weather gets colder one of the easiest ways to wash windows is by using a thin paste made of clear water and whiting or some fine commercial, abrasive powder. This paste is applied to the glass in a thin layer. The moisture in the paste evaporates before it has a chance to freeze and so one of the greatest difficulties in cleaning windows in cold weather is avoided.

When the paste is thoroughly dry it may be rubbed off with a soft, clean cloth or paper or chamois and the window will be left bright and clear. One drawback to this method is that the dust flies as the dry paste is wiped off, so windows should be washed on the inside before the room is cleaned.

Mirrors or picture glass with frames that might be injured by water may be cleaned successfully in this same way, leaving a polished surface, free from streaks.

Peas and Bread

Cut slices of day-old bread rather thick. Scoop out center, being careful not to break or tear. Place in oven and toast to nice brown. Take liquid from can of peas and heat. Blend one tablespoon of flour and one of butter, add water to make smooth like cream. Cook this with liquid until well done. Add peas and fill bread cups and serve hot with any meal. Especially nice with chicken. Crust of bread can be used for dressing with roast meat or saved by placing in over until nice and brown.

To Melt Chocolate

The safest way to melt chocolate is to put it into a small frying pan or saucepan over a low fire or in the oven. If it is to be mixed with a liquid, the best way is to melt it with a little of that liquid first and stir to a cream.

Tips to Cake Bakers

When baking cake, time should be divided into quarters. The first quarter cake should rise, the second quarter it should begin to brown, the third quarter continue browning and the last quarter finish browning and shrink from the pan.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS.

Try rubbing a little library paste on the wrong side of thin materials and letting it dry before cutting buttonholes. It will give you a firm surface for sewing.

Try to finish the neck of a frock as soon as possible, so that in trying it on for fittings the neckline is not stretched out of shape. Nothing looks quite so home-made as a poor neckline.

If the buttons on sonny's suit seem loose, it is well to remove them before laundering. They are apt to become lost in the wash, and if they should just dangle, they will be in the way during wringing and ironing. Sew them on after ironing.

Dainty bedroom curtains can be made from plain voile or marquisette, decorated only by a border of colored threads harmonizing with the draperies, drawn through in the same manner as the popular one of making handkerchiefs. Edge with a two-inch hem.

When putting the hems in curtains if you loosen the tension to your sewing machine when stitching them you will find it a great help in case you ever want to alter them. The stitches look as well as when tighter and are much easier to remove.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Only eight women had been granted air pilot's licenses in this country before the war.

Practically all the Scandinavian countries, with the exception of Iceland, employ police women.

Five states of the Union have no laws for regulating the wages or hours of labor of women in industry.

Mrs. Mary Tylden, an English woman now in her 105th year, can repeat from memory the whole of the psalms.

The membership of the Association of Chicago Bank Women now has reached 38.

Ohio was the first state to send a woman federal prohibition agent to Washington.

More than 61,000 women are still employed by the Class 1 railroads in the United States.

Mrs. Earl Shellhamber, a war bride of Madison, Wis., has taken up aviation with the view of becoming efficient enough to fly back to France, her native land.

WINTER IS HERE

If butter is too hard, fill a bowl with hot water, empty and turn over plate of butter for a few minutes.

BETTER THAN EVER

Heat the milk and butter together for mashed potatoes, boiling hot, and you will be able to serve hotter, fluffier potatoes.

RECIPES

Baked Bananas: Remove the skins from eight bananas and cut them in halves lengthwise. Place them in a shallow baking dish and mix three tablespoons of butter (melted), one-third of a cup of sugar and two tablespoons of lemon juice. Baste the bananas after arranging them in the baking dish but before placing them in the oven, with half of the mixture and then bake in a slow oven for 20 minutes. Baste them during the cooking with the remainder of the mixture.

Coffee Spanish Cream: 4 eggs, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 cups milk, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 1-2 cup strong black coffe, 1-4 teaspoon almond flavoring. Beat the yolks of the eggs and add the sugar and then three cupfuls of the milk, scalded. Dissolve the gelatine in the remainder of the milk (cold) and combine the mixtures. The first mixture must still be hot. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff and fold them in. Stir in the coffee and the extract. Put into a mold and place near the ice until it is firm. Serve with cream or marasmallow sauce.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Ronald McNeill, who has become chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in the British cabinet in succession to Viscount Cecil, has been financial secretary to the treasury for the past two years. His public career began in 1910, when he was elected to parliament on his fourth attempt. At first a stormy petrel, he resisted Home Rule with a fierceness which gave satisfaction in Ulster, of which province he is a native. But he has long settled down, and nowadays is a model of parliamentary restraint and staidness. For many years during his early career Mr. McNeill was engaged in journalism and occupied a high place in his profession. From 1900 to 1904 he was editor of the St. James Gazette. For some years he also served as assistant editor of the Encyclopedia Brittanica.

YOUR HEALTH

HEALTH DEPENDS ON BODY AND MIND

By George A. Moore, M. D., Palmer, Mass., Member of Gorges Memorial

Brute strength alone has not been enough for the survival of animals on the earth. New Haven, Conn., the home of Yale university, appears in the news as the locus of excavations in which the footprints of a dinosaur imprinted in rock were recently found. Excellent specimens of petrified skeletons of these giant reptiles have been found in western United States, and of these a complete one is now on view at Yale museum. After viewing the tracks made by the monster in the mud of a few millions of years ago, one can stroll over to Yale and look at the chap who made them, or one of his relatives.

Saurians at one time overran the earth. The earlier types were carnivorous but the later gigantic types were herbivorous. These reptiles were of tremendous physical power. But physical power alone was not sufficient to insure survival, and these terrifically powerful beings are extinct—displaced by beings of inferior physical strength but with superior brains. Apparently brute strength is not enough.

At Yale, where the skeleton mentioned is on view, brain cultivation is a business. Those who have seen the football teams in action will agree that physical prowess is not a thing of the past. Dual development of the brain and brawn are receiving attention.

Excessive brain development without suitable physique is equally futile. Everyone knows this, but it is forgotten at times and development of the mind goes on with too little regard for physical welfare.

When an overtrained athlete goes stale, all that is needed for correction is common sense regulation of physical effort and time. An overworked mind may similarly go stale, and its treatment is sometimes a matter of judgment.

In mental contests there will also be found those who fall out, because all persons may enter. There are few culling measures, but the tendency to cull material for mental work is growing. But after all persons who will have fallen out, those who continue in mental work on their nerve constitute a large body. The number of breakdowns among them is great.

Health is a normal condition of mind as well as body.

How Often Should Bobbed Hair Be Shampooed?

As often as a man's, say authorities, that is, about once a week. Use a good soap to banish germs with the dirt—the pine tar in Packer's Tar Soap (the standard shampoo soap for 35 years) is antiseptic. Use two latherings and rinse thoroughly with HOT water. Massage, too, is helpful. You can get Packer's at any good store.

CONVERTS MOST FERVENT CATHOLICS, PRIEST STATES

Converts, who have come to realize the wondrous blessing of faith, having been deprived of it for a part of their lives, are apt to prove much more fervent Catholics than are those who have the faith by birth, inheritance, declared Rev. Myles P. Galvin, preaching to a great congregation at the third mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. Rev. Father Galvin was referring to the fact that Thanksgiving came just at the time when one's blessings might properly be reviewed, since it is the end of the ecclesiastical year, the new year of the church beginning with the first Sunday in Advent.

He had read the gospel for that Sunday, Luke 21. 25-33, "When the church begins once more to celebrate the great mysteries of our religion," as he expressed it. Thanksgiving should be for all much more than mere thanks for temporal favors; each should enumerate the countless spiritual favors granted by God in the twelve months past. True, reflection on this period may bring recollections of sufferings, trials, sacrifices; yet a real Catholic will regard these as in themselves blessings sent from Heaven to enable us to work out our salvation. There will be much happiness to remember, as each lets his thoughts go back over the year; but too many take such happiness as a matter of course—no thanks to anybody; no thanks to God.

The Creator has given us life, has bestowed upon us all blessings. Even in our work we require His aid, for of ourselves, of our own unaided skill, our efforts would amount to little. It is He who has granted inspiration and help to those we call geniuses, men who have brought about those modern marvels which add so much to the comfort and convenience of our lives. Yet these might have remained hidden from them had not God lent His aid.

In our personal life we can find many favors from God and for these are we rightly thankful? Do we show as much as ordinary, common politeness in expressing to God that His favors are appreciated? Most important of all His gifts is that of faith. Millions in the world are denied this favor; Catholic who inherit it, who have been selected by God from among all the peoples of the world for this great gift, rarely take time to thank the Almighty for it. Those upon whom faith is bestowed in conversion later in life, by their gratitude, fervor, often put to shame those who take God's supreme gift with too great indifference. The preacher asked each one listening to him to endeavor to repair in some measure for this ingratitude by waiting, before leaving the church, to express a prayer of thanksgiving to God for having been born a Roman Catholic, a member of the true church of Christ.

Rev. Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass, in giving communion to many penitents.

At the 7.30 mass, the members of the Holy Name society, Patrick M. Coleman, president, received communion from Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May, who was assisted by Rev. Father Reilly.

HEADLIGHT DEVICES THAT CONNECTICUT APPROVES

Coincident with the issuance of 1928 registrations the state motor vehicle department has prepared a revised list of headlight devices approved for use in this state. Motor vehicles must be equipped with one of these devices before they can be registered.

The devices listed have also been approved by the eastern conference of motor vehicle administrators and are legal in Delaware, District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, Can.

For automobiles the approved headlight devices are as follows:

Alpheco; Ameco headlamp; Bausch & Lomb; Bausch & Lomb star; Benzer Type A; Brown Universal (reflector) includes Brown; Conaphore Type F (clear or noviol—amber colored); Deglarescope; Depress beam headlight; DB (Dodge Bros. 5 5-8" only); Dillon Type I; Elite Headlamp (now called E. & J. Type 20); Flat-Lite Standard (reflector); Flintex; Ford H; Glolite headlamp; Guide Ray Type A (headlamp); Holophane No Tilt; Hudson (8 18" only); Johnson; Lee Knight; Liberty; Liberty Type D; Lincoln Projector; Macbeth Type D; McKeelite.

Miro-Tilt, (headlamp) (Wills St. Claire); Monogram (Chalmers, Durant, Grant, Maxwell, Oldsmobile, Overland, Rickenbacker, R & V, Knight, Stearns, Stutz, Velie, Willys-Knight); Osgood B 23; Parabeam Headlamp Parab-O-Lite Type FW; Patterson (includes Patterson lens); Ryan-Lite headlamp (includes small size); Smith; Spreadlight; Standard; Tilt Beam headlamp; Tilt Ray headlamp (includes La Salle and Pontiac); Twolite headlamp; Twin Beam headlamp (Monogram).

For motorcycles: Conaphore Type F (clear or noviol—amber colored); McKeelite; Monogram; Patterson (and Patterson lens); Spreadlight; Standard.

Plain front headlight glasses should be used with Brown and Flat-Lite standard reflectors.

Acetylene gas headlamps may be used on motor vehicles if equipped with 6 inch spherical mirrors (reflectors), 5-8 foot burners and clear plain glass fronts.

Headlamps must be properly equipped, focused and aimed at all times. The method approved by the department to secure the proper focus and aim of lamps is as follows:

"Place the car on a level space, preferably a floor, facing a wall or a screen, the car lamp being 25 feet distant from the wall. Mark a horizontal line on wall, which line shall be the same height from the ground as the centers of the lamps on the car. Call this line the "lamp level line." With lights on and both lenses installed, cover one lamp to shut off the light and move the screw or device in the other lamp, which regulates the position of the bulb, until the narrowest horizontal beam of light on the wall is obtained. Then perform the same operation with the other lamp. Having thus focused the lamps, tilt or bend each lamp until the top of the beam is no higher than the lamp level line on the wall, being sure that the car is fully loaded at the time. The wall will then be illuminated below and up to the lamp level line, which is the result desired. If the light spreads on the wall above the lamp level line, it proves that the lamps are not properly aimed and focused.

NOTED PAINTER'S WORK IS DISPLAYED AT COLLEGE

The paintings of William R. Robinson, member of the National academy, whose works comprise the annual art exhibition at Connecticut College for Women, have attracted wide attention during the past two weeks, hundreds of visitors to the college having come from various parts of the state and from outside the state to look at the work of the eminent artist.

The exhibition is remarkable in that it is a complete and representative show of the entire range of Mr. Robinson's work, impressive in its wide variety of subjects. Besides several of his well known and beautiful pictures of laurel there are lovely landscapes, all indicative of his sensitive and poetic reaction to nature. Whether his subject is a bit of rocky coast against a murky sky and lashed by a restless sea, or a contented New England farmhouse, warm with October sunshine under a brilliant sky, there is an indefinable exuberance radiant from the canvas.

One of the larger pictures which has won much admiration is entitled Vermont. It is one of Mr. Robinson's most recent paintings and its vivid portrayal of that gentle austerity which characterizes the broad valleys and sturdy hills of Vermont reveals the artist's genius in the power and vigor of his drawing.

The exhibition is beautifully arranged, the hanging of the pictures in Knowlton hall having been directed by Mr. Robinson who is noted among artists for his skill in so doing.

The exhibition, which has been open daily from 10:30 until 5 o'clock, will continue until Saturday.

Diphtheria Film—New Ways for Old

One of the most successful of the state department of health films has been in constant demand for many months. This is the popular "New Ways for Old," a diphtheria film.

Since January 1927 this film has been used in 20 towns at 100 showings reaching over 25,000 people.

Diphtheria must be prevented in Connecticut. When parents learn that toxin-antitoxin will protect their children from this dread disease, they will stand back of community programs for complete immunization of preschool and school children. "Diphtheria" and other health films are available to every community in the state. Write to the Bureau of Public Health Instruction of the State Department of Health to secure these.

SEVEN REEL PICTURE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY MEETING

At the 4 o'clock service in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon all seats were occupied and several stood during the meeting. After a hymn, scripture reading and prayer and solo by Hugh Kinder the seven reel moving picture "White Flannels" was shown and the lesson of a mother's ambition and love for her boy was vividly portrayed. Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows—"How wonderfully God has provided for us. He saw to it that the coal and iron and other metal were deposited in the earth. What would we do without this kind provision, and yet unless men delved down far into the earth we would not secure the blessing placed there for us. We do well to pause and think of the miners who risk their lives and often lose them in this difficult work.

"This picture story portrays the mother's heart interest in her boy and the boys and girls too often forget what a mother means to them. Any boy or any man who permits his love for mother to slip is far from what he ought to be. When a mother's loving ambition for her boy and the boy's good come together something is bound to happen. Next to the love of Christ is a mother's love. Let me ask you a serious question: If mother were dying tonight would she be pleased with the way you are living? I trust you will love your mothers with a deep and passionate affection, for she will not always be with you and she deserves all the honor and love you can give her."

Saturday Night Chimney Fire.

About 10 o'clock Saturday night a bell alarm from box 36 at the corner of Sherman and Yantic streets called out the fire department for a chimney fire in the house 233-235 Yantic street, owned by the Falls company. Two cans of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze. The house is occupied by the families of Henry Labrie and Venose Perry. Chief Howard L. Stanton, Deputy Chief Henry R. HEAVY ALUMNI TEAM DOWNS ACADEMY IN SEASON'S LAST GAME

The Alumni came home—

And brought with it a powerful line, the ability to convert breaks and a reckless but telling forward pass attack.

The final score was Alumni 15, Academy 0.

With an array of huskies collected from colleges, three of them of varsity timber and others who have played semi-pro football, the graduates went onto the local field Saturday afternoon in superb condition and for their efforts the reward was two touchdowns a point after and a safety.

Outweighed on the forward wall by at least ten pounds to a man and also on the short end when it came to experience and condition the school boys nevertheless struck back often and did well in holding the X-men to fifteen points. With such players as Bull Steinman, Marty Gilman, Dan Polsky, Pheno Tombari, Fred Schwartz facing present wearers of the Red and White in John Kahn, Buck LaCroix, Sherry Ingalls, Freddy Fox, "Fat" Stevens, it was little wonder that the graduates copped the decision.

However, as it was, while the Alumni held the varsity in check practically throughout still they could show no consistent march. The first touchdown came after Marty Gilman had intercepted a pass on the varsity's 30 yard line. A 15 yard sprint by Jack Hinrichs, a first down through the line and then the touchdown on the following third play furnished the scoring here. Previously Aldrich had fell on a bad pass from center back of his line to net the first two points.

The Alumni came from slightly less than midfield for their other touchdown and it was a forward pass attack that made a success of the final assault on the varsity's goal line. After Labenski had received a 20 yard toss and gone five yards further to the 12 yard line Jim Moore nabbed another on the five yard line and went across amid some poor tackling. Jack Hinrichs kicked this goal.

On the next and last kickoff however, it remained for Jack Marks to furnish more excitement in 10 seconds than had been put into all of the game previously. Receiving the kickoff on his 30 yard line the Academy captain started straight down the field for five yards and then suddenly cut for the extreme left side of the field. With nice interference he dashed past the entire Alumni team with all of them seemingly out of the play. However, Jack Hinrichs after being knocked down jumped up and speeding after Marks caught him on the 2 yard line after a trot of some 68 yards. The schoolboys lost ground on three downs and Vitliano then essayed a field goal on the last down and the ball which went straight in the air was caught by Dan Polsky and was stopped where he stood. A long forward to Moore for 30 yards, three tries at the line and a punt to the Academy 15 yard line finished the game.

All the action was crammed into the second and last quarters.

In the first period, the varsity received and reeled off a first down before Hinrichs intercepted a pass at his 40 yard line. An exchange of punts followed before the Alumni annexed a first down at the school boys' 30 yard line, the graduates having gained on the boots. After losing 16 yards on three plays, Hinrichs tried a field goal, the ball went over the line and after the scrimmage the quarter ended with the ball on the varsity 32 yard line.

The varsity punted to open the second period, the ball going to the Alumni 40 yard line. Hinrichs received a 30 yard pass that sent the pill back into varsity territory, to the 30 yard line, to be exact but again the graduates could not gain and another dropkick went over the goal line. After the varsity had lost on the first play from their 20 yard line, Aldrich was obliged to fall on the ball for the safety on the next scrimmage. The varsity kicked from the 20 yard line and the alumni punted back. Marty Gilman intercepted a pass at the varsity 30 yard line and the above mentioned dash by Hinrichs and a few line smashes turned the trick for six more points. The kick for extra point was unsuccessful.

Tirrell received on the 15 yard line but was downed immediately and after one play the quarter ended.

Kelly galloped 30 yards on a double pass on the first play after the kickoff in the third quarter, but his team lost the ball on downs soon after. Play was mostly between the 30 yard line during this period and the fourth quarter opened with the varsity in possession on the Alumni's 40 yard stripe.

Pete Labenski intercepted a pass to start the period and after an exchange of kicks the alumni staged the forward pass display for a touchdown. The rest, which was Mark's sensational run, the Alumni's goalline stand, etc, has been told.

For the winners Steinman, an all-around athlete for the school back in 1924 starred. The former Bozrah boy, who is now connected with a professional team in Brooklyn was all over the field smashing interference and getting his runner practically any time he wished and as it turned out that was about on every play. Pheno Tombari's punting and passing also was a high light while Jim Moore at the other end, Dan Polsky and Jack Hinrichs also showed well.

Jack Marks showed his usual strong game for the school team while Berghinzo and Henschel ends, also played well.

This game closed the Academy's season with five wins, three losses and a tie, the same identical mark that Stonington can boast. However, the Red and White has played stronger teams.

It was one of the largest crowds of the season that turned out Saturday and surely one of the largest in many years for an Alumni game.

Ball Player Drops Dead.

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Walter Keeley, formerly a member of the Brooklyn National league team and also shortstop with the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league, collapsed and died here today during a semi-professional baseball game. He was sitting on the players' bench when stricken. Three weeks ago Keeley was hit on the head by a pitched ball. He was about 25 years old and lived in Modesto, Calif.

YALE AND PITT. SHARE EASTERN HONORS

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—In a topsy-turvy season which produced no clear-cut claimant to eastern championship football honors, Pittsburgh and Yale today stood out as the teams which probably accomplished the most and must be ranked together at the top.

Meeting two entirely different sets of opponents, these teams both came through their campaigns unbeaten in the east. Yale's only defeat was a 14 to 10 set-back by Georgia's southern championship contenders in an early season game. The only engagement which Pittsburgh failed to win was a scoreless tie with Washington and Jefferson.

In the course of a schedule generally considered more difficult than Pitt's, the Yale eleven defeated Dartmouth, Princeton, and Army, three of the east's strongest aggregations, all of which were undefeated otherwise. Pittsburgh's principal accomplishments were a decisive victory over Nebraska and an overwhelming triumph over Penn State.

A third team which must be given high rating is Washington and Jefferson which won all its games except the tie with Pitt and another draw with West Virginia.

The powerful Army eleven which subsequently toppled Notre Dame by 18 to 0 in one of the greatest upsets of the season and downed the Navy in its other principal objective, was eliminated as a championship contender by Yale. Princeton ranked among the top teams until the last eight minutes of its game with Yale when the Blue won out in a whirlwind finish which will stand as one of the high spots of a spectacular season. Dartmouth, similarly, found its championship hopes wrecked by the Elis.

Georgetown, the high scoring team in the section with its total of 277 points to 21, lost a chance for top rating by dropping a game to Syracuse. N. Y. U. faded as a contender when tied by Colgate and Penn State had been beaten in its last game by Nebraska. In points scored the N. Y. U. juggernaut finished second to Georgetown with 245 to 59, with Little Temple's audacious team, which faltered only against Dartmouth, rating third with 241 to 60.

Penn State proved an in-and-outer, first disappointing with its defeat by Bucknell, then white-washing Pennsylvania in glorious style. A tie with N. Y. U. and an overwhelming set-back by Pitt pushed the Nittany Lion from the championship picture.

Colgate and Columbia had seasons which would have been counted below average had not the Maroon tied Syracuse and Columbia beaten the same rival. Colgate lost its two games to small colleges from other sections, Wabash and Virginia Poly, while Columbia bowed to Colgate and Penn. Cornell and Syracuse were below their usual high standard.

One of the negative sensations of the season was the woeful fate of the "Iron Men" of Brown, with almost the same team which went through the previous season undefeated, Brown lost six games in a row before it rallied to beat New Hampshire and tie Colgate. Lehigh sank to the bottom of the eastern ranking, winning but one game in nine.

The season had its little giants, among which must be numbered Tufts college, the only team in the east that won all its games. Geneva and Springfield escaped with nothing worse than ties.

The records of the more important eastern colleges:

PLAINFIELD LOSES CLOSE GAME TO MERIDEN ENDEES

By the scant margin of two points the Plainfield Pros dropped another close game to the Meriden Endees, 20 to 18, Saturday night at the State armory in Meriden. It was a nip and tuck game from the start with Meriden overhauling the Plainfield team in the closing minutes of play after the Plainfield team had led from the beginning of the second half.

After four minutes of play in the first half Bissell broke the ice with a field goal from under the basket only to have Bernot even it with a long shot Conway scored a basket and again Bernot evened the count. Then Bissell and Longren broke through and two baskets put Meriden in the lead 8 to 4. Stavinsky scored from the floor and a minute later dropped in a foul while Madden again evened the count with a foul shot. In the closing minutes of the first half Carroll shot a basket which he followed with a foul shot, the half ending with the score, Meriden 11, Plainfield 8.

Opening the second half Plainfield showed plenty of speed and baskets by Normandin and Madden put Plainfield in the lead 13 to 11 and Dissinger widened the gap with another basket. Conway and Carroll broke loose and two baskets put Meriden in the lead once more. Dissinger chanced a long shot and made good and then Bernot with a one-hand shot from the side court put Plainfield in the lead 18 to 15. Carroll shot another basket putting Meriden within a point of Plainfield. For ten minutes the teams battled without a point being scored. Just before the final whistle a foul was called on Plainfield and Conway tied the count. Both teams then resorted to wild shooting until Meriden dropped in a basket and promptly froze the ball until the final whistle.

The Meriden Endees play a return engagement at Plainfield on Wednesday evening. The summary:

TUNNEY FEARS BEING MISQUOTED IN PRESS

WATERTOWN, Conn., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, has only one fear, he said today, and that is a fear of misquotation by newspapers. Afraid of nothing that walks, rides, flies, creeps or crawls, the conqueror of Jack Dempsey fears that the public may receive a wrong impression of him through news articles.

He attributed his feeling, not to a lack of faith in news writers but to misinterpretation of his statements.

"There is no justification for such wrongs," Tunney declared. "Trying to find justice makes me think of a dog barking up the wrong tree. When you think you have got it it is somewhere else. It has flown."

Gene Tunney is the week-end guest of Barstow L. Heminway, silk manufacturer, and with his host attended church in a nearby town today, to escape the crowd of interested villagers gathered at the church here. After a walk he called on Horace Taft, of the Taft school for boys where he was button-holed by students seeking autographs.

RULE NINE IN CODE IS NOW COMPULSORY

The rule in the state interscholastic eligibility code which caused so much discussion in Chapman-Academy basketball last season has been made clear cut and defined so that there is no chance for any misinterpretation of the rule. Under the old rule there was much cause for doubt as to the exact meaning of the rule as well as to the penalty if there was any penalty.

The new rule reads as follows:

"A high school pupil shall not, during the season, be a member of any organized outside team in the same branch of athletics. In case of a violation of this rule he shall be ineligible in this branch of athletics for the remainder of the season."

The words "during the season" are interpreted as meaning that a high school student may not play with a high school team even if he had not been a member of the school team when he played with an outside team. In other words, ineligibility is declared for playing with two teams during the same season, though not at the same time.

HUNTER BEATS ALONZO IN INDOOR TOURNAMENT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y., member of the American Davis cup tennis team, defeating Manual Alonzo today in a stirring three set indoor tennis match in a round robin tournament at the Penn A. C. The scores were 6-1, 4-6, 8-6.

Then Hunter himself was defeated by William T. Tilden, the New Yorker, due to exhaustion, being forced to default in the third set.

Tilden won the first set 2-6 and Hunter the second 5-7. Hunter was trailing 2-1 in the third set when he defaulted.

In an exhibition doubles match, Tilden and Hunter, national champions, took a love set from Alonzo and Carl Fischer.

FRIEDMAN'S PASSING HELPS CLEVELAND BEAT CARDINALS

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Benny Friedman's passes made the Chicago Cardinals dizzy today and the Cleveland Bulldogs won 32 to 1 in a National football league game. The former Michigan All-American quarterback tossed 18 successful passes to his wing men in three periods and then went to the sidelines to rest. In addition the Cleveland defense intercepted five of the wild heaves tried by the desperate Cardinals in the second half. Bloodgood of the Bulldogs got away several times to 30 and 50 yard gains. The Cardinals made their only score in the second period on their only successful pass of the game, a triple pass in which Land gained 47 yards to the Bulldogs' three yard line. Mahoney took the ball over on the next play and Swanson kicked goal.

FORMER DARTMOUTH-HARVARD HOCKEY STARS IN BENEFIT

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Hockey teams made up of former Harvard and Dartmouth stars will meet at the Boston arena December 8 as part of the program of a carnival to raise funds to defray the expenses of the United States Olympic ice teams to St. Moritz, Switzerland, next February.

George Owen, former Crimson football and hockey ace, will captain the Harvard Alumni team, while Ted Learned, former big Green hockey captain, will pilot the Dartmouth grads. Members of the United States Olympic figure and speed skating teams will also contribute to the entertainment.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL DURING PRESENT SEASON SURPASSES ALL RECORDS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Except for a few final and flourishing gestures in the south and far west the open season for touchdowns and uprooted goal posts has come to a record-breaking conclusion.

Sensational from the first shrill blasts of the whistle, the college campaign of 1927 has been featured by unprecedented attendance at games from coast to coast and a succession of form flip-flops that have produced new champions in nearly every conference or section.

From the spectacular point of view, the climax was reached yesterday when the greatest football crowd of all time, 118,000, was packed into the vast reaches of Soldier Field, Chicago, to see Notre Dame's Warriors nose out Southern California while 76,000 more, in New York, formed a colorful background for the Army's conquest of the Navy.

There was no million-dollar spectacle to match the financial high mark reached by the Army-Navy classic in Chicago last fall but the Notre Dame-Southern California clash eclipsed by at least 3,000 the attendance mark established by the 1926 battle of service elevens at Soldier Field.

Record Attendance

Estimates gathered by the Associated Press from all sectors of the football battlefront indicate it is no exaggeration to place the aggregate attendance at all college games somewhere between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000.

There is no way of reckoning the figure exactly, or of getting the final returns but it seems fairly conservative to place the total "gate" somewhere about $50,000,000.

It has been a banner year in every area. Attendance at the games of the Western Conference "Big Ten" reached 1,615,000, a half million more than any previous year. The Missouri Valley schools also broke all records by attracting nearly 400,000 while in the south around 1,500,000 saw the gridiron conflicts, nearly double the figure for any previous season. On the Pacific coast, more than 1,400,000 have flocked through the turnstiles so far and this will be increased by more than 150,000 by the few big battles still on the calendar, such as, Washington-Southern California, Pennsylvania-California and Pittsburgh-Stanford. Over 2,500,000 spectators witnessed the home games of ten of the big eastern teams alone.

Nearly eight million fans thus are accounted for in the four main areas of battle but they represent probably not more than 30 per cent of the total turnout at thousands of games in every nook and corner of the nation. There were millions more who heard about the big battles over the radio, making up an audience of unprecedented proportions in one season for any sport.

Champions Fall

The downfall of 1926 champions, the dull thud of which has been echoing from the start, is the most striking feature of competition.

To show how complete the turn-over has been it is only necessary to note that not one of the nine major undefeated teams of 1926 is able to boast a clean slate for 1927.

Only one of the championship outfits of last year, Stanford, is still around the top and the Cardinals, although unbeaten in the Pacific Coast conference itself, have had the unpleasant sensation of being trimmed by St. Mary's and Santa Clara in two of the year's main upsets.

Alabama, Lafayette, Brown, The Naval Academy, Southern Methodist, Michigan, Northwestern, Oklahoma Aggies and University of Utah all have been knocked from the high and lofty pinnacles they occupied, either sectionally or nationally, in 1926.

Seven Undefeated Teams

All told, only seven "big college" teams remain undefeated this season and all of these except Georgia have experienced at least one tie. Tennessee, Pittsburgh, Washington & Jefferson, Texas Aggies, Minnesota and Illinois complete this list. Yale-Missouri, the Colorado Aggies, Southern California, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt must also be added to the array of top-notchers but they all have been checked by defeat at one time or another during a hectic campaign.

Notre Dame's flashy troupe started out with bright prospects of returning to national championship heights but the Irish stumbled into a tie with Minnesota and then fell before the Army's charge, spoiling a record otherwise illuminated by triumphs over the Navy, Georgia Tech and Southern California.

Alabama's crimson tide was checked in the south after a three-year sweep of supremacy as Georgia stepped along at a terrific pace, numbering Yale among its victims. But in a season which has produced exceptionally strong teams below the Mason and Dixon line, Georgia's claim to top honors are not yet clinched. The Bulldogs still have their arch and ancient rival, Georgia Tech, to play next Saturday. In addition, little Sentenary college, also neither beaten nor tied has challenged Georgia's supremacy.

In the east, Lafayette, Brown and the Navy have been beaten back, the "iron men" of Brown crumbling into no less than six successive portions of defeat. In their places, Yale, beaten only by Georgia in an early season fray, and Pittsburgh, tied only by Washington & Jefferson, present the chief claims to mythical eastern championship recognition.

Yale and Pittsburgh Lead East

Yale, finishing with a sensational spurt in spite of the loss of its backfield ace, Bruce Caldwell, through ineligibility, had the distinction of administering the only defeats sustained by three of the east's greatest teams—Dartmouth, Army and Princeton. Pittsburgh, led by the redoubtable Gibby Welch, matched the Eli record with decisive victories over West Virginia, Carnegie, Drake, Nebraska and Penn State.

Illinois surprised the Western conference pack by dashing to five straight victories over "Big Ten" rivals and winning the championship while Michigan and Northwestern, co-leaders in 1926, fell by the wayside. Minnesota, the pre-season favorite, finished undefeated but a tie with Indiana cost the Gophers a chance to dispute the title.

The keenest sort of races featured other major conferences in the west. Missouri led Nebraska on percentage in the Missouri Valley conference, in spite of a late season setback at the hands of Kansas, but Nebraska claims at least a fair share of the laurels. Texas Aggies supplanted Southern Methodist at the Southwestern conference top in a spectacular race. The Rocky Mountain title hung in the balance until yesterday when the Colorado Aggies clinched it by turning back Colorado college.

Out on the Pacific coast, Stanford and Southern California lead the big Conference parade, with Idaho also undefeated and in the running, but the debate won't be settled until Southern California meets Washington next Saturday.

Just to start the "All teams a-rolling" The Bulletin submits two all-opponent teams with its members selected from the nine clubs that the Red and White faced this year. It must be remembered that these players are named only for their work in the game they played against the Academy.

Warren Harding of Bridgeport leads with four members on the first team, the Alumni is next with two, while Westerly, Windham, Stonington, Bulkeley and Wilby place one.

Here are the selections:

SPRAGUE ELECTED TO LEAD ARMY ELEVEN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Cadet Mortimer C. Sprague, of Dallas, Tex., an all-American tackle, was elected captain of the Army football eleven for 1928 at a meeting today of the squad that conquered Navy. Sprague is a member of the class of 1928.

Following the cadet custom, the election was held as the squad returned to the "plains" from New York, where Sprague was one of the outstanding stars of the service classic yesterday. He played right tackle and has been a member of the team for three seasons.

Army received a rousing welcome from the cadet regiment as the train pulled into the station with the soldier band blaring on the platform. The team was piled into the ancient stage coach that has met home-coming teams for many years and were pulled from the south gate to the "plains," a mile away, by the student body. The band let the triumphant procession.

Before the reception was over, speeches were forced from "Lighthorse" Harry Wilson, outgoing captain, Head Coach "Biff" Jones, and Captain-elect Sprague.

Chicago's touchdown came in the last period on a forward pass former Illinois stars. Sternaman added former Illinois stars. Sternaman added the point on a drop kick.

STEAMROLLERS DOWN GRANGE'S TEAM FOR SECOND TIME

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Humbling a "Red" Grange eleven for the second time in as many attempts, the Steam Rollers triumphed over the New York Yankees 14-7 before a rainy day crowd of 10,000 at the Providence cyclodrome today. Two years ago the Rollers defeated Grange's Chicago Bears at Boston 9 to 6 and stopped Grange short in his ball-carrying attempts. Red did not carry the ball himself, once today, favoring an injured leg, but he uncorked a brilliant passing attack in which four of six pegs were completed for a total gain of 75 yards. He did not play the second half and the Roller then uncorked its winning drives.

The Roller scored its first touchdown in the third period on a long pass from "Wildcat" Wilson to Ed Lynch, end, after Wilson's passes to Coach Jimmie Conzelman had paved the way. In the final period Curley Oden took the ball 13 yards on a lateral pass to the Yankees' one foot mark, where Conzelman plunged over. A belated rally by the visitors proved the most thrilling play of the game, Eddie Tryon grabbing a 20 yard pass from "Plowboy" Foy on the Roller's 25-yard stripe and dashing for a touchdown.

TWO SETS OF BROTHERS IN ACADEMY-ALUMNI GAME

The unusual situation showed up on Saturday in the Alumni game when two sets of three brothers saw service. The Brewers and Gilmans are the families in question.

The Brewer family had Ed, captain last year and Clare, of the '25 team, on the Alumni outfit while Bill played quarterback for the varsity during the final few minutes. Ed played fullback and Clare at right half.

The Gilman family had Marty of the Conn. Aggie varsity on the Alumni and Seymour and Lawrence on the varsity. All were at guard.

Benny Steinman was on the sidelines for the Alumni but he didn't get a chance to team up with his rugged brother.

NOTRE DAME WILL PLAY SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA IN 1928

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Another two year football agreement was completed today by the University of Southern California and Notre Dame university, providing for a game in Los Angeles next fall and one in the middle west in 1929. The Notre Dame squad was back on its campus at South Bend today, celebrating its 7 6 victory over the Trojans, who were nearly half way home tonight after one of the greatest intersectional football games in history.

The teams carried off around $150,000 each in gate receipts from 112,575 paid admissions. Some five thousand more, including ushers and other employes saw the battle without paying, swelling the throng to more than 117,000 according to final figures today.

P. G. A. HOLDS ANNUAL IN CHICAGO TODAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Professional Golfers' association will hold its annual business session in Detroit tomorrow, President Alec Pirie of Old Elm announced tonight, for election of officers, and awarding of 1927 titles and 1928 tournaments.

The principal bidder for next year's national tournament is French Lick, Ind., with an offer of $5,000 added prize money. Walter Hagen won the 1922 tournament there, and has held it ever since.

Among the amendments to the by-laws to come up for discussion will be one making it mandatory for any player, who has qualified in his section for the national meet, to notify the proper officers if he is compelled to withdraw so the vacant place can be filled by the next ranking player, in the qualifying round.

LANE HIGH SCORER OF EAST FOR 1927 SEASON

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—After placing among the leading eastern football scorers for two years but not quite reaching the top, Myles Lane, of Melrose, Mass., Dartmouth halfback, has at least attained the coveted goal in his senior year.

With the end of the football season, Lane today was acclaimed the king of the eastern scoring backs with his total of 125 points gained in seven games. The only team to hold him scoreless was Yale. Lane finished with a long lead over his nearest rival, Bobby Nork, of Georgetown, 98 points. Captain Jack Connor, of New York university beat out Captain Johnny Roepke, of Penn State for third place with 94 points to his 89.

Cougars Down Canadians.

Detroit, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Detroit Cougars, playing without the services of "Duke" Keats, star and center, and formerly a Boston player, who was withheld from the game pending action in regard to his alleged attack on a spectator in a game at Chicago last night, defeated Les Canadiens of Montreal, 2 to 0 in a National league hockey game here tonight.

Spears to Return.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Dr. C. W. Spears, coach of the Minnesota football team, will be back with the Gophers next year despite all rumors to the contrary, he made known today before returning to Minneapolis after attending the Notre-Dame-Southern California game here yesterday.

POETRY

God's Symphony

Eternal Father, heav'nly Friend,
Thy word is wondrous fair;
The earth with glory Thou hast filled,
The heavens Thy love declare.

The birds their anthems raise to Thee,
The rills and brooklets sing
A hymn of joy, a song of praise
To Thee, eternal King.

All nature sings in perfect tune
In Thy great symphony.
The mountains, forests, fields and flowers
Bespeak Thy majesty.

Forgive us Father, if through sin
Our lives should silent be
Or we alone of all Thy works
Should spoil Thy harmony.
—By Emily Hersey.

Song

O Memory, cease your beckoning
For I cannot return;
Never again my feet will stray
The paths for which they yearn,
No more will fall the voices
I loved upon my ears
Whose murmur brought me happiness,
Whose absence brings me tears.

O Fancy, cease your painting
Of life's far-fleeting May;
Aye, stay the fairy limning
Across the twilight gray.
Better a starless darkness
With never a dawn to be,
Than glimmers of a loveliness
Forever lost to me.

For everything on earth, alas,
There is a price to pay;
For love there is the only pang—
One goes, and one must stay.
Each little strain of music
Leaves sadness as it flees;
The past is—like a lovely isle
That vanished 'neath the seas.
—Samuel Minturn Peck.

GENERAL BUSINESS SITUATION IS CHARACTERIZED BY IRREGULARITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Aside from some stiffening of prices in the primary industries, last week saw little change in the general business situation. On the whole irregularity continued to characterize conditions.

The steel trade showed a little quickening in operations, but no marked expansion. Prices of steel scrap and bars hardened somewhat, and there was a little more buying by railroads. Non-Ferrous Metal displayed an upward trend.

The automotive industry was still marking time pending the appearance of new models. The belief continued to gain force that next year will be decidedly prosperous in the motor trade, with consumer-demand expanding rapidly following the clearing up of uncertainty bred by secrecy surrounding the new cars now on the verge of introduction. Reports of merger programs, none of which have been confirmed, continued to lend color to this phase of business.

Seasonal slowing up of business activities had its effect upon structural materials, particularly brick and lumber. Cement, however, was an exception, this branch continuing active in the face of imminent curtailment of outdoor work during the cold months.

Abnormally warm weather throughout the current month has had a deterrent effect upon fuel sales and coal mining operations. Domestic anthracite, however, showed some firming up in price, and reduced production of bituminous in the west resulted from the strike of miners in Colorado.

Slight increase in buying of cotton goods, and an upturn in the price of raw cotton following the ginnings' report, featured the textile trades. Some curtailment in spindle activities in New England were accompanied by announcements of wage cuts in some mills. Operations, nevertheless, were slightly heavier than last year.

A number of important mergers were reported in different fields, chief of which was the consolidation of Republic Iron & Steel and Trumbull Steel companies. Progress on some of the large rail mergers pending also was reported.

Wholesale trade quieted down considerably with the advent of the holiday shopping season, and inventory-taking was begun in many lines, preparatory to spring sales campaigns. Retail trade was reported good, and activity of mercantile and mail order shares in the stock exchange was regarded as presaging record breaking Christmas trade.

Among the principal commodities, price changes were narrow. Wheat, corn and barley tended upward, along with rubber, hides and linseed oil. Beeves and hogs, sugar, coffee and lard were somewhat lower.

There was little change in the credit situation, and firm prices in the bond market, together with an absorption of new offerings were deemed indicative of an indefinite continuation of the era of easy money rates. Bank clearings dropped off from the preceding week, largely because of the holiday, but advanced about 22 per cent. over the figures of the same week of 1926.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Intimate scenes of back stage life and a glimpse into the existence of a Broadway stage sensation are among the features that make "The Spotlight" which is now playing at the Palace theatre, one of the most interesting plays ever screened. Esther Ralston, the blonde beauty whose exceptional characterizations and great appeal have made her one of the most popular of present day film actresses, has the starring role.

"The Spotlight" is more than a story of the stage. It is a story of real life, real love and the problems that life and love bring. Only the problems confronted by Esther Ralston as Lissie Stokes are a little more involved than those that are encountered by the average person. Supporting Miss Ralston in this fascinating picture are Neil Hamilton, Nicholas Soussanin, Arthur Housman and Arlette Marchal.

The vaudeville program carries as a headliner Gus King's Melodyland, an aggregation of five versatile musicians. Not only specializing in music but singing and dancing as well. Among the show world Gus King's Melodyland has established an enviable reputation as a standard big time act. Another act that comes especially well recommended is Fred Leightner and company, who present their comedy skit, "In the Hotel Lobby". Other acts include Frank Ladent and partner in "A Festival of Bagdad," Janet Childs, a petite singing comedienne and Carlson and Revere in an act made for laughing purposes only.

Slater Hall Concert

"It might have been difficult for some singers to live up to the nice things which had been said about them and to fulfill all that was expected of them, but Miss Lewis had no such difficulties.

"She was just as pretty as the pictures we had seen of her and she sang as well as we had been led to expect from her very sudden elevation into grand opera.

"Her voice is a beautiful one. Especially in the upper half of her voice, her notes having a limpid clearness which is delightful, and a real thrill to the listener in her climaxes," was what the Nashville Tennessean said following a recital of Miss Lewis in that city, and its opinion has been echoed everywhere this charming soprano has been heard. From New York to California, from the gulf to Canada, this charming soprano has received the encomiums of the press and public.

The fact that Miss Lewis really can sing and sing intelligently has been a matter of surprise in many cases. Usually when anybody, no matter what their profession but specially a singer or actress has received the publicity which Miss Lewis got on the occasion of her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, much more is expected that the artist has to give. However no amount of words that have been written or will be transcribed can adequately describe the charming personality, the utterly unspoiled manner and the crystally clear, beautifully modulated voice possessed by this young American girl. Her recital here on Friday evening, December 2 at Slater hall, will be a real treat to music-lovers. See details in another column.

Broadway Theatre

"The Irresistible Lover" featuring Norman Kerry and Lois Moran will be shown at the Broadway theatre today and tomorrow. It is a seemingly funny comedy in which Kerry is presented in a young man whom the girls simply can't resist and the penalty for his attractiveness is that he gets into all sorts of complications.

This is an entirely different role than any in which this popular star has yet appeared and is bound to win him a host of new admirers.

Lois Moran who plays opposite Kerry in this production appears more charming than ever and the supporting cast is made up of well known players.

Strand Theatre

When Love Grows Cold, starring Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, showing tonight and Tuesday night at The Strand is a domestic drama of warm human appeal. The story is an epic of the nobility of a good woman's soul. As the loyal wife who assists her husband in the accumulation of wealth, only to find that riches will send him to his doom, she gives a truly stirring performance.

Fighting Hearts starring Alberta Vaughn is the first of a series of pictures to be shown at this theatre every Monday and Tuesday, each picture a complete story in itself.

Bread Theatre

The story of "The Magic Flame," feature film at the Bread theatre, opens in a tiny one-ring Italian circus playing the towns along the Mediterranean where Bianca (Vilma Banky) the tight rope walker and parachute artist, is in love with Tito, the clown (Ronald Colman).

Prince Vittorio, of Illyria, traveling incognito, meets Bianca as she lands from a parachute jump and immediately falls in love with her. He haunts the circus and incites the antagonism of Tito. When Bianca refuses to succumb to the charms of the prince, he entices her by a forged note to come to his room at the hotel. Resisting his advances, she escapes by making an acrobatic leap from the window to the limb of a tree.

Not knowing that the girl has escaped, Tito goes to her rescue. In the fight that ensues, the prince, in leaping at Tito, plunges through the window and over the cliffs into the sea below. Tito, panic-stricken, escapes from the hotel by making use of his remarkable resemblance to the prince and donning his uniform.

At the door of the hotel, he is met by secret agents of the Illyrian government who, mistaking him for the prince, announce that the king is dead and that he is now king. Despite Tito's protestations mild because vehemence would establish him as the murderer of the prince, they take him back to Illyria, leaving Bianca to think that the murdered man is Tito.

In revenge, Bianca leaves the circus and goes to Illyria, where she attempts to kill the king. Her recognition of the king as Tito, her lover, and the method of their escape unharmed from Illyria despite the animosity of the old prime minister constitutes a vivid drama which Henry King has woven into a new highlight of the cinema. The story ends with Bianca and Tito happily doing their "turn" again in the little circus of the Mediterranean.

A sister of the man identified the body at the rooms of Hourigan Bros., this city. Yuonowicz has been employed as a farm hand in Montville and vicinity for some years.

How he came to meet death by drowning in three feet of water is something of a mystery. Dr. John J. He was seen at Oakdale at 7 o'clock it is said and had been in the Oakdale store at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. MOTORED 8,000 MILES IN TRIP TO MEXICO

George Johnson of 5 Johnson place has just returned home from an extended motor tour of the United States, Canada and Mexico. He was accompanied by Henry Anderson of Ridgefield Park, New Jersey. The trip which covered over 8,000 miles was made in a Chrysler roadster. Barring a slight mishap, the car performed very well and so it did not meet the fate of the many hundred wrecks strewn along the road. Gas prices ranged from 16 cents a gallon in New York state to 44 cents a gallon in Arizona. The roads were wonderful to Topeka, Kansas, but after that they didn't come so good until after the Mojave desert in California had been crossed. A strange thing was that no rain fell during the whole trip except on the western edge of the Mojave desert where it came down like a cloudburst. On the return trip snow was encountered at Flagstaff, Arizona, and smaller snow flurries in Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and also through the mountains of Penn. Side trips were made to such places as the petrified forest of Arizona and Death Valley in California, but the roads to the Grand Canyon were so bad that that great wonder was left for another time. Both of the men are of the opinion that the east has the west tied to a tree in many ways.

MOTORED 8,000 MILES IN TRIP TO MEXICO

George Johnson of 5 Johnson place has just returned home from an extended motor tour of the United States, Canada and Mexico. He was accompanied by Henry Anderson of Ridgefield Park, New Jersey. The trip which covered over 8,000 miles was made in a Chrysler roadster. Barring a slight mishap, the car performed very well and so it did not meet the fate of the many hundred wrecks strewn along the road. Gas prices ranged from 15 cents a gallon in New York state to 44 cents a gallon in Arizona. The roads were wonderful to Topeka, Kansas, but after that they didn't come so good until after the Mojave desert in California had been crossed. A strange thing was that no rain fell during the whole trip except on the western edge of the Mojave desert where it came down like a cloudburst. On the return trip snow was encountered at Flagstaff, Arizona, and smaller snow flurries in Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and also through the mountains of Penn. Side trips were made to such places as the petrified forest of Arizona and Death Valley in California, but the roads to the Grand Canyon were so bad that that great wonder was left for another time. Both of the men are of the opinion that the east has the west tied to a tree in many ways

PLAN GIGANTIC ATTACK ON PRESENT PROHIBITION LAW

To Raise $3,000,000 Fund to Interest Voters in National or State Referenda on Repealing or Changing the 18th Amendment—To Send Letters to 27,000,000 Voters in the Next Four Years in Order to Learn the Attitude of the People on the Question—Program Outlined at Dinner at Union League Club, New York, by Capt. W. H. Stayton, Chairman of the Association Against the 18th Amendment.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Plans for raising a $3,000,000 fund to interest voters in national or state referenda on repealing or changing the eighteenth amendment were outlined tonight at a dinner to 297 persons at the Union League club by Captain William H. Stayton, chairman of the association against the prohibition amendment.

While the dinner was a private affair, to which newspaper men were not admitted, Captain Stayton told reporters the gist of his plan at his hotel before the dinner began. He said the fund would be used to send letters to 27,000,000 voters in the next four years in a campaign designed to learn the attitude of the people on the question.

Among the invited guests, all of whom hold views favoring a modification of the Volstead act, were Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; James W. Wadsworth, former U. S. Senator from New York; United States Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, and John Philip Hill, former congressman from Maryland.

The dinner was sponsored by four persons, headed by George W. Wightman, New York manufacturer, who previous to the gathering said that it was of no public or political significance. The names of the other sponsors could not be learned.

Captain Stayton said that he had addressed a similar group on the subject about a year ago and that he had since spoken to meetings in half a dozen clubs in New York city. Funds had been raised for carrying on the association's plans, he said, but more money is needed now, with a presidential campaign in the offing. He said it was planned to send two letters to 6,000,000 voters next year at an estimated cost of ten cents a letter.

Captain Stayton said his address was in reality an accounting of his stewardship during the last year. He declined to reveal details of this year's work.

Mr. Wadsworth let it be known, in advance of the dinner, that he expected to be a candidate for delegate at large to the next republican national convention.

"I trust that many other delegates will be chosen," he said, "who believe that the prohibition amendment should be wiped out or modified. I hope the national convention will meet the issue. It is here. It is everywhere. I for one, propose to meet it.

"My attitude is unchanged. It is the same as when I ran for the senate last year." (Mr. Wadsworth was defeated by Robert F. Wagner, democrat, in that election).

Dr. Butler today told George K. Morris, chairman of the republican state committee, that he would not be a candidate for delegate at the next republican national convention, and said he was not a candidate for any office.

Captain Stayton, in his talk to newspaper men, said that the association would not seek a wet plank in the platform of either the republican or democratic parties in their national conventions. He said he favored the incorporation of a national referendum plan, based upon the theory that it was the duty of a political party to find out what the people wanted.

If such a plan can not be obtained in the national party platforms, he said, the association believes that the state referendum plan should be carried out. The people, he continued, were entitled to be consulted directly before constitutional changes, such as the eighteenth amendment, were put through.

FRENCH BRANDY UNDER GUISE OF "TOMATO PASTE"

BOSTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—A conscientious customs examiner detailed to inspect the cargo of the Italian steamer Columbia today brought to light a shipment of 3,000 bottles of fine French brandy masquerading as "tomato paste." The seized liquor was valued at $36,000.

Inspector Arthur King found among the cargo items a consignment of 300 cases of "tomato paste." Opening one of these cases to make the required scrutiny, he found within the wooden outer casing a tin box hermetically sealed. The tin box covered a second wooden container in which 12 bottles of brandy were packed.

The entire lot of "paste" was seized and 250 of the 300 cases contained liquor. The manifest showed the goods to be consigned to order and in transit to the middle west. A careful examination of other cargo items was begun, but no arrests had been made tonight.

The Columbia arrived here from Italy by way of New York. Only 10 days ago more than 300 bottles of liquor were found in the hold of the American steamer Pipestone county when it docked here from French ports.

BORAH DERIDES OPPONENTS OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 28—(AP)—It might be possible to modify the Volstead act, under the constitution, without giving an alcohol content of intoxicating percentage, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, told an audience that packed Woolsey hall at Yale university tonight. But, he asked, "would this satisfy President Butler of Columbia university," and other opponents of the 18th amendment. This issue is not being fought out over an aroma. It is intoxicating liquor that the opponents of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act are seeking.

Senator Borah was the chief speaker on a program which included talks also by Major Chester P. Mills, of New York, former federal prohibition administrator of the second district, comprising New York and Connecticut, and Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass., general chairman of the woman's national committee for law enforcement.

"When it is proposed to graft upon our constitutional system deliberately, the doctrine of nullification, to get rid of a law, the question arises as to whether or not we are really an independent, self-governing community," Senator Borah said.

The meeting adopted the following resolution unanimously after listening to the speeches of Senator Borah and Major Mills:

"Whereas, The creation of greater respect for law depends on the appointment of men of the highest type to the judiciary.

"Resolved, That we instantly petition the U. S. senators from Connecticut to give their endorsement only to such candidates for the federal judgeship of the second district of Connecticut as are learned in the law, possess the judicial temperament, are of universally recognized probity and have not been actively associated with the organization work of any political party."

FOUR NON-ITALIAN CARDINALS TO BE CREATED

ROME, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The prospective creation of four non-Italian cardinals, announced today, shows the intention of Pope Pius to give preponderance to foreign elements in the sacred college perhaps in view of further developments of the "Roman question" as the conflict between the church and the Italian state is called.

The four new cardinals will be Monsignor Raymond K. M. Rouleau, archbishop of Quebec, Monsignor Pedro Segura Y. Saenz, archbishop of Toledo, Monsignor Charles Joseph Dinet, archbishop of Besancon, and Monsignor Alessio Lepicier, titular bishop of Tarsus, who replaced Cardinal Billot as French cardinal of the Curia.

Owing to a mistake which occurred through the announcement of the archbishop of Toledo in Osservatore Romano, official vatican organ, an error was made in the first announcement of the prelates due to receive the red hat. The original announcement was that Monsignor Zaccaria Martinez Y Nunez would be the new Spanish cardinal. He, however, is archbishop of Burgos and was transferred to Toledo at the same consistory which is to create the cardinals.

ANNULMENT STRAIGHTENS OUT A MARITAL TANGLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A marital tangle caused by an error of the war department which had reported her husband killed in action in France, was straightened out in supreme court today when Mrs. Izetta Ross, of Baldwin, N. Y., was granted an annulment of her second marriage, contracted in the belief she was a widow.

Mrs. Ross testified she married Horace W. Wilson in Paducah, Ky., in 1914, and that in 1917, he enlisted in the army and was sent to France. Subsequently she said she received word from the war department that he had been killed. Four years later, she said she married Bernard Ross, by whom she has a daughter. A chance meeting with old friends led to the discovery that her first husband was alive and a prosperous contractor in Memphis, Tenn. She said she plans to divorce him and re-marry Ross.

ABLE BODIED WHITE MAN TO BE SOLD INTO SLAVERY

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 28—(AP)—An able bodied white man will be sold into slavery at a public auction on the lawn of Tarrant county court house at noon Wednesday. County authorities today said they would not interrupt the auction.

The man, Alexander Christian Maddox, 21, of Fort Worth, World war veteran, declared he was unable to provide food and clothing for his wife and five children and as a last desperate means of raising money intends to sell himself into a year's voluntary slavery.

Maddox, who was named Alexander Campbell after the founder of the Christian church, said that the only terms he will ask of his "buyer" is that the children be provided with the necessities of life. His "master" will have the right to impose any kind of work or hours upon him that his owner wishes.

GRAFTON W. MINOT WEDS MRS. ANNE WARD BURDEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Grafton Winthrop Minot, New York banker and former secretary of the American embassy in Berlin, and Mrs. Anne Ward Burden of Newport, R. I., were married today at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Luther Kountze.

Minot, who gave his age as 35, was divorced at Salem, Mass., in 1923, by Mrs. Constance Gardner Minot on the grounds of desertion. Mrs. Minot, who was the only daughter of Representative and Mrs. Augustus Peabody Gardner, of Hamilton, Mass., was given custody of their two children.

Mrs. Burden whose age was given as 39, obtained a divorce from James Gordon Douglas, her first husband, at Newport in 1919 on the grounds of cruelty and non-support, obtaining the custody of their two children. In 1920 she married Willims Burden, but Mrs. Burden obtained a divorce from him in Paris last July.

KEZAR FALLS, Maine, Nov. 28—(AP)—This town is claiming the title of Sportsmen's Paradise. Hunters who took advantage of a recent snowfall killed 11 deer in one day within a short distance of the business section of the town, and set what is believed to be a new record for a day's hunting in this section of the state.

KOVNO, Lithuania, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Augustine Waldemaras, Lithuanian premier, is preparing to journey to Geneva to submit Lithuania's case against Poland to the League of Nations. He will reach Geneva, Dec. 5, when the vexed Lithuanian-Polish question comes before the council.

ADVENTURESS FINALLY SENTENCED FOR THEFT

SALINAS, Calif., Nov. 28—(AP)—Mrs. Genevieve Paddleford, who presided over the homes of three multimillionaires besides ruling a palace on the Nile, today was sentenced to prison after conviction of theft charges. Several hours after she was sentenced, she was started to the San Quentin prison in an ambulance.

Mrs. Paddleford, who is known virtually around the world as "the international adventuress," received an indeterminate sentence of from one year to 10 years when convicted on a shopkeeper's charge that she illegally acquired goods valued at $225.

The county physician last week informed the court which sentenced her that Mrs. Paddleford was "faking" illness. Her physician, Dr. Henry Murphy, informed the court that his patient was suffering from serious ailments.

Mrs. Paddleford's flitting from country to country has taken her into most of the old world cities—even into some of their prisons.

She gained a place in society here when she married George E. Paddleford of Los Angeles. However, in 1922 she charged her husband with desertion while he countered with allegations concerning her alleged European jail escapades.

They were finally divorced. Reports had it then that Paddleford had settled a large sum of money on his wife.

When next heard from Mrs. Paddleford was in jail in Lucerne, Switzerland, with her beautiful daughter, Cynthia, seeking funds in France. It was said that Mrs. Peddleford ran up debts of 37,000 francs at Lucerne and took "French leave." Vienna hotelkeepers also swore out warrants for her. From jail she was taken to a hospital.

PRINCE OF WALES AGAIN THROWN FROM HIS HORSE

MELTON MOWBRAY, England, Nov. 28—(AP)—The prince of Wales was tossed headlong from his horse while hunting with the Quorn hounds today, thus adding anxiety for his safety to the general sorrow over the death of Lady Victoria Bullock who was fatally injured last week following the same hounds.

The prince, who was in the fatal week-end party with the popular young sportswoman, the only daughter of Lord Derby, appeared unhurt by his hard tumble this afternoon. His horse attempted to take a fence of the post rail type, but his hind feet became tangled with the top obstacle and Wales was catapulted from the saddle.

Picking himself up, the royal heir caught his horse and quickly remounted. He continued in the hunt and later returned to London.

Today's hunt behind the Quorn hounds proved unusually hazardous, for besides the prince several other riders suffered falls.

SENTENCED FOR MURDER OF NEW BEDFORD MAN

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Nov. 28—(AP)—George McLain, of Danville, O., today was sentenced to serve from ten to twenty years in Auburn prison after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in connection with the slaying of William P. Murphy, of New Bedford, Mass., in this city on July 19. McLain originally was indicted for murder second degree, but was allowed to plead guilty to the manslaughter charge when he was placed on trial today.

McLain, a blacksmith with the Miller Brothers' 101 ranch circus, slew Murphy, a muleteer for the same circus, after an argument over the handling of a hitch of mules.

McLain's original story was that he drove a team in front of Murphy's six line hitch and then Murphy, becoming enraged, started for him. In doing so, McLain said Murphy tripped over some rigging and he (McLain) leaped on him and drove a knife blade into the man's stomach.

TO ATTEND THE NATIONAL GAME CONFERENCE IN N. Y.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 28—(AP)—The fourteenth national game conference which opens in New York city on December 5 for a two day session will be attended by Governor Trumbull, Senator Frederick C. Walcott of Norfolk, president of the state board of fisheries and game; John W. Titcomb of Bloomfield, superintendent of that board and other prominent Connecticut people.

Superintendent Titcomb will take an important part at the meeting, being a member of a committee created by the conference to study the problem of cooperation between "honorable sportsmen" and land owners. He will also lead one of the discussion groups of the round table. Gov. Trumbull will speak.

HOW MRS. BIRGE SAVED 40 ARMENIAN STUDENTS

BRISTOL, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Claiming forty Armenian students as "her sons" by writing her name after theirs, the late Mrs. Anna Harlow Birge, of this city, at the time of the Smyrna massacre in 1922, gained their escape with her to a destroyer lying in the harbor. The Turkish military official in charge saw the humor and heroic pathos of the act and granted Mrs. Birge and "her children" permission to board the vessel.

Today, in recognition of her act, a bronze memorial tablet rests on the wall of the Episcopal church here, the gift of Mrs. Birge's forty Armenian "sons." The presentation was made by Haroutoun M. Casaprian, a law student at the University of Virginia and one of the youths saved.

WILL FIGHT AGAINST DELAY IN OIL JURY CASE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—Indications that Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Votes Reduced Tax on Corporation Incomes

Committee Disposes of the Last of a Number of Major Issues.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—Over the protest of the solid democratic membership, the house ways and means committee today decided to make the proposed reduction in the tax rate on corporation incomes applicable to payments due next March 15. The vote was 13 to 10.

Determination of the question disposed of the last of a number of major issues that have developed during the drafting of the $236,000,000 tax reduction bill that the committee plans to present to the house shortly after congress convenes next Monday.

The committee also voted a reduction in the tax on insurance company incomes from 12 1-2 to 1 1-2 per cent. and approved a number of administrative changes in the present revenue statute.

In addition the committee voted to rescind its recent action in approving consolidation of the 64 offices of collectors of internal revenue with 36 offices of revenue agents. It agreed to let the present arrangement continue without change.

Mr. Green explained the committee reversed itself after being informed that under the proposed plan the government would lose a number of employes experienced in revenue administration.

CRUSHED BODIES OF TWO MISSING AIRMEN FOUND

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 28—(AP)—The rugged mountains of Pennsylvania, nemesis of aviators, have claimed the lives of two additional airmen.

Missing for three days, the crushed bodies of the airmen—Pilot E. R. Emery of Newark, Ohio, and Mechanic William D. Zolman of Fredericktown, Ohio, were found this afternoon in a dense forest near the top of a mountain ridge in one of the wildest sections of Fayette county. Strewn over an area of several hundred feet was the wreckage of the heavy Douglas 0-2 plane.

It was the general belief of airmen here that the aviators, beset by motor trouble and lost in a heavy mountain fog and rain Friday afternoon, abandoned hope of locating Burgess field on the outskirts of Uniontown and decided to jump. At the time it was believed that they were but 300 feet above the mountain tree-tops, not sufficient altitude to make their parachutes function.

Emery's parachute was partly opened while Zolman's was strapped tightly to his back.

CONFEDERATE FLAG RETURNED TO RICHMOND

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 28—(AP)—The captured banner of the Old Dominion floated again today over the Virginia state capitol after remaining in Massachusetts as a Civil war victory token for 62 years.

Returned by Frederick Atherton Stevens of Arlington, Mass., grandson of the Massachusetts cavalry officer who was the first Union soldier to enter Richmond upon its capture on April 3, 1865, the flag was received by Governor Harry F. Byrd with simple but impressive ceremonies.

While the Richmond howitzers fired a salute the flag was unfurled from the capitol dome. Many men and women who witnessed the entry of the federal troops in 1865, including Mrs. Charles H. Talbot who made the flag, were among the spectators.

President Coolidge sent a message congratulating Mr. Stevens on his gesture and cited it as another example that the animosities of the Civil war have disappeared.

Insanity Plea For Mrs. Ruth Snyder

Counsel Making Final Attempt To Save Her From the Electric Chair.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Insanity was brought forward today by counsel for Ruth Snyder in a virtual death-hour attempt to save her from the electric chair.

Almost simultaneous with the arrival here of Dr. Clarence J. Neymann, noted Chicago psychiatrist, was an announcement by Edgar F. Hazleton, Mrs. Snyder's counsel, that an injury to the head suffered when she was a child had made her mentally unbalanced.

Hazleton said he was told of this injury by her mother, Mrs. Josephine Brown, after the trial which ended in her conviction with her one-time paramour, Henry Judd Gray, for the murder of her husband, Albert Snyder. He said Mrs. Snyder has a swelling on her head which is steadily growing.

"Mrs. Snyder," he said, "does not want to be examined by an alienist. Before the court of appeals decided against her I respected her wishes, but now that she is in peril of the death chair I have decided to take matters into my own hands to save her."

Dr. Neymann, whose testimony was regarded as instrumental in saving Loeb and Leopold from hanging for the murder of 13-year-old Bobby Franks, arranged to accompany Hazleton tomorrow to Sing Sing prison ot see Mrs. Snyder.

Hazleton announced he also had retained a New York specialist to aid Dr. Neymann.

In the Loeb-Leopold trial in Chicago, Dr. Neymann testified the two slayers were victims of "folie a deux," a form of insanity in which two persons, though individually sane, might upon occasion be jointly mad. Counsel for Mrs. Snyder, it was indicated, hope to show that a similar condition prevailed between the former Queens Village housewife and Gray.

ALLOY THREE TIMES AS STRONG AS IRON

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—A new alloy, said to be three times as strong as iron and as light as aluminum, was brought to this country today by its inventor, Dr. Max Wurmbach, professor of metallurgy at the University of Munich.

The alloy, negnaleum, Dr. Wurmbach claims, is the most important discovery of the kind since the invention of duraluminum in 1907. A plano made of negnaleum, he said, would be so light that it could be picked up and carried by a small boy.

Its superiority over duraluminum widely used in airplane construction, he said, is that it can be melted and molded without loss of tensile strength. Dr. Wurmbach is president of the Negnaleum company of Zurich, Switzerland, organized to manufacture the product.

TRIO OF ROBBERS GOT AWAY WITH GEMS IN CLEVELAND VALUED AT $205,000

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28—(AP)—A trio of robbers—one woman and two men—entered the diamond establishment of Swirsky Brothers on the sixth floor of a downtown office building late today, held up clerks and customers and escaped with diamonds and other gems valued at $205,000.

Police, who had a detailed description of the trio from the elevator starter who took them from the sixth floor to the ground level, tonight had rounded up numerous persons.

Police believed the robbery perfectly planned and carried out with remarkable precision, had been executed by expert jewelry store robbers.

The robbery came at a time when Cleveland police were making a drive against undesirable persons whom they believe came to Cleveland following drives against them in Chicago, Toledo, Detroit and other cities.

The men and the woman entered the store and after an exchange of pleasantries with the proprietor, Alex Swirsky, asked to see some diamonds.

While the woman was examining the stones, one of the men according to Swirsky, drew a gun and ordered him to throw up his hands. His companion then walked to the front of the store and covered three clerks with a revolver. He then bound them with tape, picked up the diamonds and told the victims to make no outcry for 20 minutes or they would be shot. The robbers then left locking the doors and cutting telephone wires.

George Norcross, one of the clerks told police that he managed to free his hands and write a note telling police to "come to room 612" which he threw out of the window. A traffic policeman picked it up and sent in an alarm.

It was only the third time in seventeen years of competition that Uncle Sam's rural sons have been able to take the huge cup, emblematic of the championship.

Besides winning the wheat growing championship with a sample of hard, red winter wheat, the Montana farmer, who is the oldest exhibitor of the show, also won the Durum wheat cup for the third consecutive year, thereby gaining permanent possession of the prize.

So apprehensive are the authorities that even the several hundred employes of the league have been given special instructions as to how to enter the building, and orders have been issued that no automobile may park in the courtyard of the league. Detectives already swarm about the hotel where the Russian delegates will stay and where every employe, down to the fourth assistant cook, has been cross examined by the police and furnished with a card of identity with a photograph, so as to prevent strangers from entering the building.

RULING FAVORS ACCUSED IN REMUS MURDER CASE

CINCINNATI, Nov. 28—(AP)—Lay testimony was accepted in George Remus' murder trial today as having established that his mind was diseased prior to last Oct. 6, when he shot his wife, Imogene.

The ruling by Judge Chester R. Shook, threw wide the portals for introduction of a vast quantity of evidence touching upon the alleged causes of the aberration. Remus' sole plea is transitory maniacal insanity. He avers he was driven mad by misconduct of his wife with Franklin L. Dodge Jr., former agent of the federal department of justice.

Dodge obtained the conviction which wrecked the gigantic illicit enterprise Remus had evolved from a legally trained mind and sent him to the Atlanta federal penitentiary as a violator of the prohibition law. He was subpoenaed today as a defense witness. He previously had been summoned for the prosecution, but was held for use in rebuttal.

A start was made today towards the defense's effort to prove misconduct by Mrs. Remus while her husband served various prison sentences. It was delayed, however, by a ruling of Judge Shook that the possible causes of insanity could not be touched upon until it had been established there actually was a diseased condition of Remus' mind.

TAKING TESTIMONY IN THE LILLIENDAHL MURDER TRIAL

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Nov. 28—(AP)—Six witnesses gave testimony in the Lillendahl murder trial today tending to show that two Negroes said by the defense to be the murderers were nothing but figures of the imagination—so phantomlike they did not even leave footprints in a sandy road.

Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, the widow, charged with Willis Beach with the murder of her aged husband, Dr. A. William Lillendahl, bases her defense on the assertion that two Negroes bent on robbery, killed her husband after pulling her from the doctor's car.

The first six to reach the scene of the crime after its commission filed across the witness stand today and one after another said that the sandy road about the Lillendahl car showed no slightest of such a struggle as the widow described.

Today, the opening day of the trial, was marked by the traditional speed of Jersey justice. The jury was completed in an hour and a quarter; the opening address had been completed two hours after court opened; and ten of the state's 100 witnesses had been heard before adjournment for the night.

FOUR LOCAL SPORTS THRILLED AT ARMY AND NAVY GAME

Four members of the Sadine club were lucky to get four tickets to the Army-Navy football game at the Polo grounds, New York, Saturday. It was through President Billie Fitzgerald of the club that two tickets were secured by seeing an officer of West Point whom he knew well, who also is an ex-service man. Fitzgerald and the ex-navy man, Elliott Bennett, got two from a navy captain who attended Annapolis. Leaving at 5 o'clock Saturday morning in a sedan, hoping their team would win, Sullivan and Bennett for the Navy and Fitzgerald and Brown for the Army, they started for New York. Arriving there at 10 a. m., they went to the Hotel Commodore for dinner, then out to see the Army mule and Navy goat in action. The drilling of the gray and the blue was great, a sight that one might never see in a life-time again, also Lighthorse Harry Wilson in his last battle with the Army. He made two touchdowns by going around left end. Cagle also was a star and how he could heave a forward pass for 35 yards!

Lloyd, the 200-lb. fullback for the Navy moved the 76,000 fans to cheers by throwing a forward pass for 42 yards, gee what a throw! Like Babe Ruth hitting a home run! The cheering section of the Navy went wild. It was a great battle between two teams of the United States service but the Army won by a close score. Right after the game, the Noank sports started back to the village, well pleased with the game and the drills of the blue and gray. The members of the party were Billie Fitzgerald Elliott Bennett, Paul Sullivan, Howard Brown. Paul Sullivan will tell all about the battle at the next club meeting.

The soldiers of Fishers Island, the boys of Uncle Sam's army, came to the village on Saturday evening, their post basketball team ready to play the Crescents in the town hall before 150 fans. Fort Wright soldiers were in white suits with "11th Co." on their jerseys, while the Crescents came on the floor in their new black and red suits. Referee Fitzpatrick called both captains to the centre of the court and a coin was flipped, Capt. Gamon won the toss taking the east basket while Capt. Patterson had the west goal. Then the first quarter was under way. The Crescents were taking long passes and short shots. Uncle Sam's men kept right after the ball and the Crescents. The quarter was soon over with the half moon boys in the lead, 9-2. In the second quarter the soldiers had their marksmanship eye on the hoop and were putting the balls in like knocking over duck pins. They played the Crescents off their feet. Remillard, Fort Wright's fast forward called for time as he was hurt badly, his ankle being turned was soon swollen. Stretch Moran gave him first aid and he was helped off the court and the fans gave him an ovation for his gameness. A fresh man was sent in his place and soon the first half was over with the boys from the Fort 24, Crescents 17.

Both teams went at it again and were working hard for the lead. Timer Deveau blew the whistle, the third quarter was over, Fort Wright 23, Crescents 27. The fans were watching an exciting battle and could not tell who was ahead any time. The Soldiers' cheering section was shouting their lungs out for a victory.

In the final quarter the fireworks were set off, one side would get a basket and then the other side. It was a fast quarter and in the last 15 seconds Capt. Jack Gamon for the Soldiers made a short shot which proved the winning basket and the final score was Fort Wright 50, Crescents 49. It was a heart-breaking game to lose for the boys in the black and red suits. Gamon for the Soldiers got 8 field goals and Albert Patterson had 10 field goals.

Lefty Patterson garnered 11 field goals for the Crescents. Referee Fitzpatrick, Timer Deveau, Scorer Phelps. Dancing followed to melody by the Sousa Master Four from Stonington.

BILL SCHOFIELD WILL COACH DANIELSON TOWN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 28.—It was given out this afternoon that William Schofield, member of the faculty of Killingly High school, is to coach the Danielson Town basketball team this season. Basketball fans will greet this announcement with enthusiastic interest. Mr. Schofield has made a name for himself in college basketball, and is remembered as one of the greatest court men in New England when he was playing on the team of the Connecticut Aggies a few years back. He will undertake development of the team at once. Having excellent material to work with, it is anticipated he will develop one of the fastest teams in eastern Connecticut.

On our entire stock of silk and jersey dresses a 20 per cent. discount will be given until Dec. 3. The Alice-Eleanor Shoe.—adv.

An additional one per cent. dividend for the year, this being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, goes to the depositors in the savings department of the Windham County National bank this Christmas season. The directors at their regular weekly meeting reaffirmed a vote to this and passed at one of their meetings held last June. The bank thus releases a sum exceeding $60,000 to its many depositors, far and near, to benefit by this generous dividend, and it is of interest to note that this is the third dividend at this rate within the past few years.

With the payment of additional thousands of dollars to its Christmas club members within the next few days, a very merry Christmas seems assured to those so fortunate as to share in the disbursements.

THE HIGH COST OF LOW ENFORCEMENT IS EXPLAINED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 28.—In explanation of the difference in the amount paid in different courts hereabouts the past week by offenders against the automobile lighting law and other kindred violations, it was pointed out today that in a town court what are known as "actual costs" may be assessed, as was done in Killingly, but this practice is now permissible in justice's courts, where the full costs must go into the accounting. Actual costs in the Killingly court were only $2.27, whereas in justice's courts held in nearby towns to dispose of similar cases the full costs were $11.27. The fines here and in Brooklyn, for instance, were the same, $1 on each count. This explanation is made to clear up a matter that has proved of interest to many persons. No discrimination has been shown as to fines. The difference lies in the costs.

After nearly a month of work, crews operating under the direction of the selectmen of the town have gone a long ways toward repairing the damage done by the flood of November 2. Of course, all of the work has not been completed, but it is so far advanced that there is no great difficulty in getting over the highways of Killingly about any place one would care to go. What the costs are going to be cannot be determined at this time, but it will be heavy enough—that is already assured, running to several thousand dollars.

An aeroplane circling over Danielson this afternoon revived interest in a subject that has been in abeyance for more than a month. It is called to mind again that one of the things has on its mind is the development of a flying field. Some work has been done at Kimball field, four miles northwest of here, in a corner of the town of Pomfret, this fall, and this early work is regarded as the forerunner of a greater development there during 1928, this likely to include the construction of hangars.

Officers are to be selected at the December meeting of the Danielson chamber of commerce on the first Tuesday in December. A committee named at the November meeting will present nominations for the consideration of the members. The present year has been the most successful in a number of ways in the entire history of the local chamber. The organization has been alive, alert and active and has accomplished a number of well worth while things, largely increased its membership and getting greater co-operation from business and other interests, than ever before.

Cook; guide, Herbert Lyman; inside sentinel, J. E. Potter; outside sentinel, J. E. Kenne.

These new officers have been installed by Past Commander Nathan Cook.

How difficult it is to find a Christmas gift that is exactly fitted to the need. There's that friend far away—a card won't carry half the love it should. The folks back home may have everything they want—what can you give them? It taxes any imagination to select in every case the gift which carries just the proper shade of feeling.

That's why your photograph is such an ideal Christmas gift. To the friend it carries an intimate personal greeting. For the loved ones near and far, it has a wealth of sentiment because it's a gift that only you can give.

Our portraits are made to suit your tastes. You will like them yourself and be proud to give them to others. A few moments spent in our studio will solve at least twelve of the problems on your gift list.

Yours very truly,

SPECIAL DELIVERY MAIL

When users of the mails pay an extra fee for the faster handling of their letters they expect service for the price paid. When they pay for special delivery they expect to get special delivery. That means of course the speeding up of the delivery.

Whether as the result of protests or because of a general movement to better the postal service, the first assistant postmaster general has made an appeal to postmasters of the country to give their personal attention to the special delivery mail and to see that it does not become ordinary mail until every effort to effect delivery has been exhausted. In other words he asks that the contract with the person sending a special delivery letter be kept.

This is only wha tthe purchaser of a special delivery stamp expects when he affixes it to his letter. He anticipates that it will be gotten into the first outgoing mail and when it reaches its destination that it will be sent out from the postoffice by special messenger. Therein lies the special service and if the special delivery is made ordinary mail the extra fee that has been paid has been wasted. It goes into the postoffice receipts but the service which was paid for has not been rendered.

This the assistant postmaster general fully recognizes for he explains that when messengers are not available for speedy delivery, substitute employes and regular employes should be used to effect delivery of special delivery mail. He points out that there is just one set rule in the special delivery service and that is speedy delivery of the mail.

Apparently there is need for this matter to be called to the attention of the postmasters of the country. Mail service is expected to be kept up to the mark. It is grossly unfair to those having sufficient faith in the special delivery service to pay for it, or to those who are eagerly awaiting special delivery mail, when their money is taken but nothing is furnished in return. Many will attest to the fact that the assistant postmaster general is hitting at a much needed improvement.

UNREDEEMED BONDS

Just because the second Liberty bonds were called the middle of this month didn't mean that the government expected that they would all be presented for payment on that date or by this time. It was perfectly evident from the experience with government and other issues that there are always those who are slow about such matters and it is as good as certain that there will be a considerable amount of these bonds which will not have been presented for payment a year from now.

Previous experience teaches that some of these bonds will never be redeemed, but there will be more and more brought to light as the months and the years go on. This means a direct loss to the bondholders. The government will not have to pay but it will always be ready to do so.

How many people take their time in looking after their securities is evidenced by the fact that a week after these bonds were called there were something less than a quarter of a billion dollars worth of them outstanding. To the individual bondholder this might represent no great loss but taken in the aggregate it means that these holders have sacrificed over $120,000 in that week and will continue to lose a chance to get such interest each week that they fail to cash their bonds and put their funds at interest.

The United States treasury is making no complaint because the bondholders are dilatory. It would prefer to have its obligations cleaned up and not be obliged to carry the money for the payment of these bonds indefinitely. Nevertheless it means a saving running up into the millions when it isn't necessary to pay interest on the bonds any longer. The second week will probably show that there has been a considerable decrease in the unredeemed bonds, but the rate will not be so rapid as to exceed any speed limit. And yet if it were the other way around, and the government was slow in making payments for the called bonds, there would be no end to the grumbling by the bondholders who are now neglecting their own financial interests.

TURKEY AT ITS BEST

Since congress has refused to ratify the treaty that was negotiated between this country and Turkey no treaty exists. Our relations are maintained through a temporary understanding with some basis for the hope that eventually ratification will be accomplished.

Certain of the opposition that was raised to the approval of the treaty dealt with the fact that the treaty terms were the same as those extended to other countries, that all provisions were not what this country had sought and that we should hesitate to enter into treaty relations with a country which has a record like Turkey's.

It was evident to those favoring ratification that the terms were not all that were desired, but they were the best that could be obtained and corresponded to those extended to other countries. It was furthermore maintained that Americans in Turkey believed it desirable to approve the negotiated instrument and regarded conditions in Turkey as on a much better basis than heretofore.

An interesting light on the situation in Turkey has been thrown recently by President Caleb F. Gates of Robert college, Constantinople. He has been engaged in educational work in Turkey for 46 years and has been president of Robert college for 35 and he says that the present Turkish government is the best that he has known "and it is doubtful whether any country has ever made such radical changes in so short a time. The government has undertaken a very difficult task. It has adopted new codes of laws. It must train men to administer these laws. It must train teachers for its schools. And it must do all this with very inadequate financial resources. * * * The most that can be expected is that the government shall continue to make progress and for this the record of the past 10 years gives ground for hope and expectation."

This statement from one on the ground, very similar in character to what others have said, pictures Turkey through the eyes of those who would not be inclined to praise it if it didn't deserve it.

If we recognized Turkey at its worst, why should we hesitate to recognize Turkey at its best?

PATROLLING THE BORDERS

Those who can visualize the borders of the United States can readily appreciate the work that is faced by the members of the border patrol in upholding the immigration laws of this country. This is further impressed when it is realized that there are but 731 members of this force to guard the entire line between this country and Canada and between this country and Mexico.

In the past year this force has been increased by about 150 men but while there has been a numerical increase there has also been a valuable change in the type and character of those on the patrol. The process of weeding out the unfit and undesirable has been underway and the results are shown in the accomplishments. In the fiscal year there were 19,382 persons apprehended and delivered to other officials. This means about 25 persons on the average were caught by the members of the patrol, but how much more efficient it was in the past year than in the 12 months previous is shown by the fact that only 5580 were caught during that time by the 632 in the patrol, or only about nine apiece.

The importance of strengthening the patrol and bettering its equipment has been fully demonstrated by the results obtained. And yet it isn't established that the patrol is now able to apprehend all those who undertake to get across the line illegally. They are doing much better than they did and are now so organized that further improvement may be expected but the illegal admissions will never be shut off along the borders until the force is adequate to fully cover those long stretches.

SELLING OUR SHIPS

Getting rid of the government owned merchant vessels is a slow process. It is not expected that the government will give them away, or that it will entirely disregard the future service over these trade routes. And yet it is desirable to sell them while there is a market for them and while the best possible price can be obtained. Restrictions governing the sale are unquestionably important but they may well be tempered by the desirability of getting rid of the ships before they cost the government more than they are worth.

With three steamship lines operating between the Pacific coast and Asiatic ports ready to go to the highest bidder, there is a jam in the shipping board because it is impossible to come to an agreement over the guarantee that should be exacted from the purchasers. They are equally divided as to whether the buyers should be required to maintain the service for five or 10 years. There must be commendation for the desire to maintain the trade routes but if they cannot come to an agreement any other way the old time practice of splitting the difference might be resorted to without endangering the situation.

Those who take over and operate such lines under American laws know that they are going to be in competition with those who are engaged in similar transportation under much more favorable legislation. As for that the shipping board is powerless but it would doubtless find much more interest on the part of private capital in the operation of merchant vessels if that handicap did not have to be taken into consideration. At the same time there would be little or no question about the indefinite continuance of service over such trade routes. We want an American merchant marine under private control, but we offer no great encouragement.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.—Like the rest of the New England Congressional delegations, Connecticut members spent Thanksgiving at home, regarding it as the last breathing spell before a strenuous and long drawn out session of Congress begins on the first Monday of December. Congressman Fenn was an exception, as he and Mrs. Fenn are already established for the winter in an apartment up in the residential section of the fashionable northwest. Senator Bingham will be the first to arrive this week, as he is to fly from Bolling field on the outskirts of Washington, to Langley field down at Old Point Comfort early in the week, where, at the request of chief of aviation, Gen. Patrick, he will deliver an address on Aviation. Mrs. Bingham will reach Washington with the senator, and they will spend the winter at their former home here, on Sixteenth street, one of the finest locations in the city.

Flor Leader and Mrs. Tilson will be here on Tuesday, and other members of the delegation are expected during the week, so all will be in their seats when congress opens December 5th.

Practically every member of the Connnecticut delegation holds an important chairmanship, and even under reorganization of senate and house will continue to hold the same position, unless, through defection of some of the scant republican majority in the senate, that body organizes under democratic power, which at this moment is not considered as probable, although possible. The house is safely republican and the Connecticut members will not be disturbed in their chairmanships.

Opinions as to the probability to the seating or the rejection of Smith and Vare vary fully as much as opinions as to the Vermont meaning of the President's famous "I do not choose" statement. Talking with leaders and senate officials today, in reply to the question of "Will they seat Vare and Smith?" answers covered a long range. Said one leading republican "I don't see how they can help it;" said another, "I don't see how they can do it." There is the situation in a nutshell, and not until the votes are actually cast will predictions have a stable foundation.

There is no doubt but what conservative southern democrats are hesitating to furnish a precedent of denying admittance to men who present proper credentials; in this they are aided by Senator Borah, who is for seating Vare and Smith, and then unseating them, by the usual methods. But whether the conservative democratic element will stand the test when the vote is taken, is still a matter of doubt. It is rumored here that conservative, old time democrats are tired of the so-called coalition with republican insurgents, in order to win a point now and then against the administration. If this proves true, Vare and Smith have gained a point, but if the rumor is unfounded, they stand on an unstable threshold, and only time and votes will tell the story.

Members of the Vermont and New Hampshire delegation will remain in their own states, for the opening this week of special sessions of their legislatures, to make appropriations and formulate plans for road rebuilding and other state aid made necessary by the recent New England floods. Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the senate, has stated he shall ask federal aid in rebuilding state highways in New England.

The "I do not choose" of the president is still the topic of the day out here. Returning press correspondents, after a summer at home in New England are cornered on every hand, and asked the New England view of it. "What do you folks mean by I don't choose?" has become so frequent that the correspondent's ear is no longer tickled by it. But this writer got an entirely new version of the true Vermont meaning, a few days ago, that came directly from a neighbor of the president. It gives a new angle.

Up in Rutland, the writer chanced to see a typical old Vermonter raking leaves by the roadside. He was the sort of man one meets only in rural sections of New England, or perhaps in what are called "country cities" up that way.

"What do you folks up here mean when you say I don't choose?" queried the writer, after a few casual remarks about the weather. The old man took his pipe from his mouth and said with a quaint drawl and local accent, impossible to reproduce in print, "W-a-a-l, it all depends on how you say it. If ye' make it kind 'er smooth and even then it means 'I don't want to do it,' but if ye' sort 'er toss your head a dite, and bellow when ye' say 'chose' then it means, ye' won't do it no-how, and that's the end o' it. But ye' see Cal, he didn't say nothing; he wrote it; so I guess Cal is the only one who knows just what he did mean." And the old man put the pipe back in his mouth and went on raking leaves without adding a word.

The first two weeks of December will set the pace in political as well as social circles here. Not only does congress convene, but the republican national committee will meet and decide the time and place of the national convention, but the first of the series of white house state receptions will be given, thus setting both the political and the social ball rolling for the season of 1927-28.

EAVESDROPPING

The day had been uncomfortably warm and the children unusually trying, and as Lillian stood by the open window of the schoolroom watching for a very special car she wondered if her Saturday handicraft class were really worth while. Was the smattering of modeling, drawing and embroidering she was able to teach the little girls doing them any actual good? she asked herself dubiously.

Even now they were disobeying one of her rules—that they shouldn't linger around the school after she had dismissed them. Their voices floated up to her from the area beneath her window. She was about to call down to them to go home at once, when the sound of her own name arrested her and she decided to do a little eavesdropping.

"I wisht I had one of them little tight red hats like Miss Lillian's got," Rosybel was saying. "Ain't she swell in it?"

"Miss Lillian's told us over and over again that there's lots better adjectives than 'swell,' Rosybel, and any way you aint, I mean aren't, old enough to wear a hat like that, and it ain't, I mean aren't, right to say 'them' hats."

"Well, anyway, Maud, I wisht I had a red hat like it when I'm growed up, and I want to look just like Miss Lillian."

"How could you ever?" piped Betty. "Your hair's black, and Miss Lillian's reddish-yellow, just like sand I seen when she took us to the dunes, with the sun shining on it. Miss Lillian sure is awful pretty."

"And don't she talk nice?" asked Maud. "When I'm 20 or 30, like her"—Lillian gasped at this—"I'm going to say 'beg pahdon' the way she does." Lillian grinned and sighed to herself softly.

"And I'm trying now to eat the way she does. Miss Lillian don't never take no big bites when we're having our lunch together, and won't say a word, not a single one, when her mouth's full."

"And she don't ever put on rooje while she's eating, nor comb her bob. She says to me"—little Hulda paused impressively—"Miss Lillian says to me that the toilet should be made in private, and I ain't a-going to comb my hairs no more in public. I want to be just like her."

"Then you'll have to stop chewing gum, Hulda," admonished Maud. "It ain't, I mean it aren't, polite to chew gum in public, neither. And you'll have to have handkerchiefs, too."

"I got a handkerchief, Maudie. Ma washed it this morning."

Lillian, thinking about the dozen handkerchiefs neatly marked Hilda, which must be ready to bring next Saturday, was suddenly recalled by a remark from Rosybel.

"Say, ain't he kind o' late? I wisht when I'm growed up old enough I'd have a fellow like him with a swell car. I'm going to do just like Miss Lillian. When he comes for me I'm going to be all smiley and sort of surprised looking, just as if I didn't know all the time he was a-coming. I guess she's awful stuck on him."

Color brighter than any "rooje" that Miss Lillian had ever used suddenly flushed her cheeks.

"He's stuck on her, too," added little Hilda. "He oughter be, she's so awful sweet and stylish. I love Miss Lillian so hard that if she'd come to see me I'd put roses on the stairs."

Lillian's eyes quickly filled with tears. "Those dark and dingy stairs," she thought to herself. "How could I ever wonder for an instant if this class is worth while?" Then, patting her nose daintily with a tiny powder puff, she smiled as a very special car whirled around the corner and came to a full stop in front of the school.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Founders or Builders of Colchester

Mr. Editor: I must confess that the distinction between a "founder" and a "builder" is not very distinct in my mind, except that a "founder" must have arrived on the scene first, and in this case the "founder" found Jeremy Adams already on the spot. Well, either one must have had a job on his hands, and it is more than probable that both of them had a good sized one.

May I quote from Charles M. Tainter's book, "Extracts from the Records of Colchester," published in 1864, for I am sure that while it is of absorbing interest, especially to those interested in the "founding" and "building" of the town, many have never seen the book and many families have had to get along entirely without it. The reader must judge whether his characters are "founders" or "builders," or plain "settlers."

"Micaiell Taintor * * * was born in Brainford, Oct. A. D. 1652, being the second son of Capt. Michaell Taintor and his wife Elizabeth. * * * We find him in Windsor in A. D. 1679, where he married Mary, daughter of Thomas Loomis, and after her decease Mabel (Olmsted) Butler, widow of Mr. Daniel Butler of Hartford, in A. D. 1697. He was one of the leading men in Windsor, as appears by the records of that town, holding some of the highest offices in that township. He was, doubtless, one of the most active in procuring the grant of Colchester, being in the prime of life when he removed to that place to settle. He was the first, and for a long series of years the only justice of the peace in Colchester; town clerk for the space of thirty years, member of Conn. general assembly twenty-six sessions; commissioner, selectman, etc. * * * He died Feb. 1731, in his 79th year. His father, Michael, * * * was the son of Charles Taintor who was in Wethersfield in A. D. 1643, afterward deputy to general assembly, two years, from Fairfield, and who was lost at sea with Mr. Jeremiah Jagger in Oct. 1654. Michaell was master of a ketch, trading out of Brainford to Virginia previous to A. D. 1650, and for several years subsequent. He was commissioner, judge, deputy to general assembly, recorder, selectman, etc. He died in A. D. 1672-3."

So much for one of Charles M's characters, and there were others, but perhaps this is enough for one dose, homeopathic in quality but allopathic in size.

But, can no one answer my friend Case's question? How were Colchester's Arcadians cared for? It is a very interesting query, and an answer would be of still greater interest. Are the selectmen's or treasurer's books of that date, 1755-6 in existence, and do they give any information on the subject? All for this time.

F. C. BISSELL.

The Russian Churches

Mr. Editor: In Wednesday's issue of The Bulletin, there is a statement that "Archbishop John, head of the Russian Orthodox church in the United States is to be in charge of the services at St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox church on Convent avenue." Many people of this city are asking me, "Who is Archbishop John?" and "Where is Archbishop Platon?" May I have space in your paper to explain.

In 1922, the Orthodox church in Russia and America divided into two parts, popularly known as the "Tikhon church" and the "Bolshevik church." The head of the former was Patriarch Tikhon, elected to that office in October, 1917 at Moscow. He assumed at once an energetic attitude against the spreading wave of bolshevism, and became the embodiment of the conservative forces in Russia of sound Russian nationalism. The follower and representative of that church in this country is Archbishop Platon who lives in New York.

The other branch is known as the Living church, known among Russians as the "Bolshevik church" (supreme church soviet). The apparent aim of the soviet government was to destroy the influence of the organized religion of the Russian people. That government teaches that "Religion is opium to the people," (the words of Carl Marx written on the walls of the Kremlin.) That government in 1922 confiscated all the treasures of the Russian church, and now has organized a new movement under the name of the Living church and popularly known as the Bolshevik church, because that church in conference in Moscow in 1922, passed a resolution approving the revolution and the soviet system. This body accepted the principles of the soviet regime, and caused great alarm in religious quarters in Russia. From the beginning the Living church has had the support of the soviet government, (see Boston Sunday Advertiser Nov. 13, 1927) and it claims that communism is the concrete embodiment of the real spirit and purpose of Christ, (The Americana, 1926, Page 710). This church sent a representative to the United States to take over the Russian Orthodox church here and displace Archbishop Platon, (Americana 1924 page 196.)

Patriarch Tikhon refused to recognize this new movement, holding that it is unauthorized and without standing. (Americana, 1924, page 196). The conference which opened at Moscow May 3, 1923 unfrocked the patriarch and expelled him from the church as a traitor. He, in June, declared that he was still the patriarch of all the Russias and began a campaign against the Living church. Practically all the Russian Orthodox churches in America acknowledge Platon, the representative of the Patriarch Tikhon, as their head. The Orthodox church in Norwich until two months ago was loyal to Archbishop Platon.

Who is Archbishop John? His full name is John Kedrovsky, and he was appointed archbishop by the general council of the Living church held in Moscow in April and May 1923. (The Americana 1926, page 186 and the International Year Books, 1922 and 1923, page 649, and 672.) There are many Russian people in Norwich not in sympathy with him. In The Bulletin Oct. 31, 1927, it stated that "The meeting passed resolutions that they remain under the jurisdiction of Archbishop Platon and that they do not acknowledge Archbishop Kedrovsky who many Russians believe has the support and backing of the soviet government. It was also resolved to extend a vote of thanks to the rector, vestry and parish of Christ Episcopal church where the Russian people who do not acknowledge bolshevism have been worshipping temporarily."

ARCHPRIEST JOHN CHERNAVIN,
Rector of the Russian Orthodox church in Norwich.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

L. R. Powell, Jr., who at the age of 43 has been chosen to succeed the late S. Davies Warfield as head of the Seaboard Airline Railway company, becomes one of the youngest railroad presidents in America. The election of Mr. Powell adds another to the long list of railroad executives who have risen from the ranks. A Virginian by birth, he entered the employ of the Seaboard Airline immediately he had finished his schooling. From a clerkship he worked his way up to the comptroller's office. During the past few years he has been closely associated with the President Warfield in the expansion and development of the railway system and its territory, directing the construction of new lines and leasing and purchasing other units for the Seaboard. During this period he held the positions of vice president and comptroller.

Former Norwich Leaders

W. H. W. Campbell.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Dec. 16, 1892)

William Harvey Wilson Campbell, for many years editor of the Norwich Bulletin, died in New Haven today.

This well remembered and much esteemed gentleman, born in 1833, was the son of Harvey Wilson of Boston, who, with his wife and four-year-old child, migrated with a New England colony made up largely of Norwich people to Rockwell, Ill., a town named after a prominent family in the Rose of New England. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, within a day of each other, succumbed to an epidemic fever when William was just five years of age. The child was then adopted and educated by one of his father's friends in Boston, a Mr. Campbell, whose surname he thereafter added to his own.

He was graduated from Yale college in 1856, after making his scholarship and personal qualities a more than usually enduring impress upon the affections of those with whom he came in contact. Chauncey M. Depew was a member of the same class.

In the following year (1857) in the capacity of meteorologist, he accompanied a government surveying party across the Isthmus of Panama.

Mr. Campbell went to Norwich in 1859 through the agency of his friend the late George Pratt, and had a brief connection with the Norwich Courier then a daily conducted by the late George O. Smith. At that time the Bulletin (with which The Courier was subsequently merged) was, to use Mr. Campbell's own expression, "a frisky infant of a year." It was started in 1858 by Isaac H. Bromley, who became its chief editor, William D. Manning, who took charge of the mechanical department, and Charles B. Platt, business manager. Henry P. Goddard, a Norwich boy, since a resident of Hartford and Baltimore, was city editor. In the fall of 1860 Mr. Campbell was placed in charge of The Bulletin's telegraph news, a feature which just then was deemed of little importance, although political and military events soon gave it transcendent interest.

Owing to ill health, Mr. Campbell resigned his position early in 1863, and, having been appointed secretary of the senate committee on pensions, of which the Hon. L. F. S. Foster was chairman, he went to Washington, and was there during part or all of several sessions of congress. The insight he gained, into national questions and the character and motives of leading men in that period, added materially to his professional equipment.

The Bulletin meantime passed from the ownership of the founders to that of a corporation, of which Col. H. H. Osgood was president, and which some years later removed the business from Franklin square to its own handsome building on what is now called Post Office hill.

Only a few months after going to the national capitol, Mr. Campbell was recalled by the new owners of The Bulletin and a little later Mr. Bromley returned. For the next five years the two were associated in the editorial management, on terms of peculiar parity and fraternity—their relations to each other and to the paper not being fully understood, perhaps, even by their best friends.

Upon Mr. Bromley's retirement from The Bulletin in 1868, to accept a position on The Hartford Post, his confrere became more distinctively the chief editor; and in the fall of the following year he formed a partnership with William Pitch, a valuable member of his staff. To this firm, known as Campbell & Co., The Bulletin association sold the paper and good will, retaining only the real estate.

Much as he had done thus far to build up the enterprise, he now labored even more assiduously. But failing health again obliged him to surrender the responsibilities of daily newspaper work; and in March, 1873, The Bulletin was sold to the company which has since owned it. His closest relation with the paper ceased at that time, although for nine months in 1875 and a few weeks at a later period he was employed by the Bulletin company as chief editor.

Only men who have reached middle age can recollect the profound perplexities and excitements that beset American statesmen and patriotic editors in the war and reconstruction periods. Connecticut, moreover, with her annual spring elections, had her own difficult problems to deal with, while Norwich, besides taking an active share in the adjustment of these matters, and being absorbed in other local questions of moment, was the scene of the memorable sensational canvasses; one in 1866, when Mr. Foster, after twelve years' honorable service, was replaced at Washington by the Hon. O. S. Ferry; and the other in 1868, when our popular war governor William A. Buckingham, who had been a candidate against Mr. Foster two years before, was elected to fill Senator Dixon's seat.

These varied and frequent crises laid heavy taxes on Mr. Campbell's sagacity, tact and personal loyalty; yet he responded to them with lasting credit to himself and unquestionably to the advancement of the public weal.

As a journalist, Mr. Campbell was industrious, thorough, versatile and honorable. He closely studied the tastes and needs of the large constituency, which he did so much to secure for The Bulletin and Courier.

Since 1873 Mr. Campbell has led a rather migratory life. No less than eight times he went abroad, sometimes mainly for his health; at others largely on business; yet always with that pleasure which springs from keen appreciation of new scenes and experiences. The last of these tours undertaken in 1787, took him entirely around the globe.

During most of these years since leaving The Bulletin, when his health permitted, Mr. Campbell was engaged in literary work. He contributed to or actively assisted in editing a large number of periodicals, including "Our Little Ones," "Good Cheer," "Golden Days," "Argosy," "The American Garden," "The American Agriculturist," "Our Country Home," "Munsey's Weekly," and "Christian Union." One of the best pieces of work he did in all this time was his volume prepared as a memorial of the late Judge Foster, for which task his intimate friendship with that gentleman as well as his own fine endowments peculiarly fitted him.

Few in Norwich, who knew Mr. Campbell well realized his fitness for commercial business or were aware of the clever strokes he made in this direction. Among those was his negotiation with the Boston school board for supplying drawing instruments, at the time they were being introduced, 1873-4.

In Birmingham, England, he was initiated into certain mysteries of the pen trade at this time; and soon afterward he became involved in a patent conflict with Edison, which resulted in the famous inventor's surrender.

While in Norwich, Mr. Campbell was a member of the Second Congregational church, and conducted a Bible class for adults in the Sunday school. He was married to Elizabeth Painter of West Haven, Conn., who survives him.

His malady, locomoter ataxia, seriously threatened death so long ago as the fall of 1888, while he was yet in southern California, and in May, 1889 he was brought east for treatment.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolvent. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's self—is an acrid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

STATE NATIONAL GUARD HAS OVER ENLISTMENT

The over enlistment in the Connecticut National Guard is a temporary matter. The commanding officers are asked to put men who apply for enlistment on a waiting list. If a unit is over its quota the extra men will be put in the reserve and called back into their respective units when men are discharged due to end of term of service. Any drills that are authorized will carry drill pay. Orders from the adjutant general were not to cut down the present strength of the units but to stop enlistments until the authorized strength of the national guard of the state as a whole was not exceeded. The reduction in maximum enlisted strength allowed, made last summer before camp, applied to only a few of the national guard units, such as the Headquarters Batteries and Combat Trains.

POST OFFICE GIVES DIRECTIONS FOR EARLY HANDLING OF CHRISTMAS MAIL

Early Christmas shopping so that there can be early Christmas mailing to accomplish early delivery is urged by the postmaster general in circular instruction that he has sent to the post offices all over the country.

These instructions give all the information about preparing packages and letters for the Christmas season mailing as follows:

All parcels must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Umbrellas, canes, golf sticks, should be reinforced their full length by strong strips of wood tightly wrapped and tied to withstand transportation.

Hats: Packed in strong corrugated or fiber boxes. Ordinary pasteboard hat boxes must be crated. Ladies' hats and stiff hats easily damaged should be marked "fragile."

Shoes: Pack in strong boxes, preferably corrugated cardboard. Wrap with strong paper securely tied with heavy twine.

Cut flowers: Place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin, or heavy corrugated cardboard. Wrap with tissue to retain moisture.

Candies: Inclose in strong outside boxes of containers.

Drawings, paintings, unmounted maps, etc., pack in strong material to avoid damage. When not flat, roll around a wooden core and then wrap and tie carefully or place in strong pasteboard tube.

Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments or tools must have points and edges carefully guarded to prevent injury to clerks in handling or damage to other mail. Crate suitably or thoroughly wrap so that they can not cut through the wrapping.

Fragile And Perishable.

Articles easily broken or crushed must be crated or securely wrapped. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, or like material, in, around, and between the articles and the outside container.

Glassware, fragile toys, crockery must be packed so as to prevent the escape of particles or pieces if broken in transit.

Cigars: Ordinary boxes of cigars wrapped in paper only will not be accepted. Pack in a manner to prevent damage by shock or jar. Wrap in corrugated pasteboard or similar material.

All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "fragile."

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "perishable." Use special-delivery stamps to expedite delivery.

Address

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, post office box or rural route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. Affix the required amount of postage in the upper right corner. Full information concerning postage rates can be obtained at the parcel-post or stamp window.

Limit Of Weight And Size.

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery locally and in the first second, third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones, 50 pounds.

Early Mailing.

During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to insure delivery of their Christmas present, cards and letters by Christmas day, the public should shop and mail early. Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings, and letters to relatives, friends, and loved ones at least a week or 10 days before Christmas, according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas day, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend Christmas day with their families.

Christmas Cards.

Patrons sending a quantity of Christmas cards, say 10 or more, should prepare and mail them two or three weeks in advance, as millions are mailed and they can not possibly be handled and delivered if mailed only two or three or four days before Christmas. To avoid this, patrons may mail their cards two or three weeks before Christmas, if delivered to the post office or postal station in person, or tied together in a bundle, labeled to show that they are Christmas cards, and deposited in a street letter or package box. They will then be segregated, stamped with the date on which to be delivered, and delivery effected one or two days before Christmas.

Christmas cards and gifts addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed in no event later than December 20; within two days' travel, not later than December 18; within three days' travel, not later than December 16; for more distant points, not later than December 14. Parcels and cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than December 21. Parcels and envelopes may be indorsed, "please do not open until Christmas."

Special-Delivery Service.

The use of a special delivery stamp will insure delivery on Christmas day, or on Monday, December 26, if mailed at the proper time. Special delivery service means immediate delivery at office of address. It is obtained by affixing a special delivery stamp of the proper denomination, or its equivalent in ordinary stamps, in addition to the regular postage. When ordinary stamps are used, the words, "Special Delivery" must be written or printed directly below, but not on the stamps. It is urged that all mailers desiring immediate delivery of any matter mailed by them affix special delivery stamps thereto. Special delivery is for speed and not for safety. Valuable mail should be registered or insured.

To expedite parcels in handling and transporting, as well as delivery, a special handling stamp, in addition to a special delivery stamp and regular postage should be used. This will insure the maximum possible service.

Special Handling.

Special handling means the handling of parcels in the same manner and with the same expedition as first-class letter mail. To obtain this purchase a special handling stamp for 25 cents and affix it to your parcel in addition to the regular postage required. This will assure the same dispatch, handling, and delivery of your parcel as is given to letter mail.

Where To Mail Parcels.

Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes at all classified stations and branches and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations.

Written matter in the nature of personal correspondence can not be inclosed in parcels.

Communications attached to parcels: A letter placed in an envelope, addressed to correspond with the address on the parcel and fully prepaid at the first-class rate, may be tied or otherwise securely attached to the outside of the parcel in such manner as to prevent separation therefrom and not obscure the address on the parcel.

Insure Or Register Valuable Mail.

All valuable domestic parcel post mail should be insured.

Insurance fees: Value not exceeding $5, 5 cents; not exceeding $25, 8 cents; not exceeding $50, 10 cents; not exceeding $100, 25 cents.

Coin, currency, jewelry and articles of similar value should be sent as sealed first class registered mail.

Parcel post, also third-class, matter may be set C. O. D. from one money-order post office to another.

Fees (in addition to regular postage): Value not exceeding $10, 12 cents; not exceeding $50, 15 cents; not exceeding $100, 25 cents, to be prepaid with stamps affixed. The C. O. D. fee also covers insurance against loss or damage up to $10 for a fee of 12 cents; up to $50 for a fee of 15 cents; and up to $100 for a fee of 25 cents, actual value.

Parcels For Foreign Countries.

Parcels of mailable merchandise may be sent (subject to certain limitations and conditions) by international parcel post to all foreign countries except Spanish Guinea and Tristan Da Cunha. Foreign parcel post packages should be mailed at the main office or large classified stations.

Owing to the long sea travel involved as a rule and to customs inspection abroad, foreign parcels should be very carefully packed and should be mailed in November.

For further information on any of the above subjects or concerning any other postal matter, inquire at the proper window—stamp, parcel post, money order, registry, etc.—or see the postmaster or one of his assistants.

PASQUALE ORSINI FOUND HIS WIFE IN WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 28—Trailed from Youngstown, Ohio, to Worcester by her husband, Mrs. Rose Orsini, 25, formerly of Norwich, Conn., and her alleged paramour, Fred Carburn, 25, also a former Norwich resident, were arrested here on charges of misconduct and sentenced to six months in the house of correction in district court today. They appealed.

The alleged lovers were convicted on the testimony of the woman's husband, Pasquale Orsini. He told the court that he and his wife lived in Norwich until last year. Business became so poor that they moved to Youngstown. About six months ago Carburn, whom they had known in Norwich, visited them and stayed two days. Carburn was then ejected from the house by Orsini because of the latter's suspicions. The day later his wife disappeared, Orsini testified. Orsini searched in vain for the couple until he unearthed information which turned his search toward Worcester. Reaching here he learned that Carburn was working as a state hospital attendant and Orsini easily secured his address and found out that the missing Mrs. Orsini was also living there. Orsini was with a police raiding squad when the two were arrested at the house.

Mrs. Orsini testified that she came here to work and not with Carburn. Both denied the charges made against them.

The Orsini family formerly resided at 90 Chestnut street in this city.

Thanksgiving at Homestead

A pleasant Thanksgiving day was enjoyed at the home of Frank Greenman at the Gallup homestead in Portertown. Seventeen of his friends sat down to a hearty dinner prepared and served by Mrs. Phebe Jacques. The dinner consisted of roast turkey and roast goose with dressing, mashed potato, mashed squash, mashed turnip, boiled onions, cranberry sauce, hot biscuits, four kinds of pie and two kinds of cake, everything that a good Thanksgiving dinner requires. The party of friends came from Plainfield, New Haven, Bailey Pond, Ekonk and Rockville, R. I. The afternoon was greatly enjoyed by all with music and games.

RABBI ROSENBERG SPEAKS BEFORE MINISTERS' MEETING

The Norwich Ministers' association held its regular monthly meeting Monday noon at the Community house, with most of the clergymen members present. The speaker was Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg of the Congregation of the Brothers of Joseph. Luncheon was served and was followed by a short talk by Frank W. Barber, state director of the Connecticut junior achievement. Mr. Barber, with the aid of various articles made by children, gave interesting facts relative to his subject. Mr. Barber said the main purpose of his work is to get the young people of the church interested in making articles, not only for their own use, but to sell. The money they earn in this way is given to the church, rather than money given them by their parents.

Rabbi Rosenberg was introduced to the gathering by Rev. A. N. Foster, president of the association. Rabbi Rosenberg offered his apologies for not being present at the luncheon, stating that he could not be present owing to religious reasons. He explained briefly why the Jews partake of only certain foods. Explaining the Jews' attitude toward meats, he said that only certain kinds of animals can be used. That a certain process is used in slaughtering, the meat is treated specially, is prepared specially and is served in special dishes. The method used by the Jews is to sever the jugular vein of the animals with a sharp knife.

The next step is to properly wash the meat, and it must soak in water for not less than half an hour. Other steps taken before the food is ready for the table were explained by the rabbi. Three sets of dishes are used by the Jews and the rabbi explained the use of each set. The speaker explained other interesting facts relative to Jewish domestic life.

There are in Norwich about 240 Jewish families and about 1,200 Jews, in all, Rabbi Rosenberg said. The Jewish population support a Hebrew school, with three teachers and 140 students. The rabbi was asked if it is possible for a Gentile to become a Jew and Rabbi Rosenberg said it is possible. If a person desires, he can be converted to the Jewish religion. The speaker said the Jewish people do not believe in missions. He told of the remarkable work carried on by the Jewish people in this vicinity. During the war, he at one time, as treasurer, sent away $40,000 raised by a local committee for Jewish relief work.

He explained the so-called community chest idea carried out by the Jews. A definite amount is raised yearly for the Jewish school, relief work, local charities, fund to aid travelers, and a fund to loan. Rabbi Rosenberg said it is not a custom among the Jews to see one of their race begging. This community has a fund by which needy Jewish travelers are taken care of, fed and lodged and money furnished to get to their destination. The loan society makes loans to the Jewish merchants of the town who are unable to obtain loans any other way. Less than $200 has been lost by this system and it has been in existence for about 10 years. Asked if the Jews would co-operate along certain lines with the Gentiles, Rabbi Rosenberg said they would. He was given a hearty vote of thanks for his interesting talk.

CITES NEW PUBLIC ACT IN COMMON PLEAS SUIT

Basing his argument on the new public act that went into effect Aug. 1, to the effect that a concern out of this state, doing business in this state, must file with the secretary of state $250, in order to be able to recover loss in such business, Attorney Charles V. James, representing the defendant, in the case of the E. T. Burrows Co. against John K. Foran, of New London, for breach of contract, argued his motion to erase the case from the docket, before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas at its motion list in New London Monday.

Attorney James claimed that the company had in its complaint failed to allege that it had complied with the statutes by filing with the secretary of state a copy of its charter and amendments. Attorney James said that this suit involved more than a sale. He said that it involved an order for some weather-strip and also its installation.

Attorney Nathan Belcher, representing the plaintiff concern, argued that the public act was not in force at the time of the transaction and that the motion was not proper. The company claims that the defendant refused to allow it to install the weather-strip.

At the conclusion of the arguments, Judge Waller took the papers and reserved decision. The argument of the motion caused much comment in legal circles due to the fact that if the public act was complied with the plaintiff company would put down $250 in an attempt to collect about $150.

Judgment for the balance due on a note, according to an accounting to be turned in by Attorney Belcher, counsel for the Union Guaranty Co., against John W. Perry, of New London, was ordered.

Permission to amend answer and counter claim were given in the case of John Meldelci & Co. against Genare Gabaldella.

Disclosure of defense within 10 days or judgment was ordered in the case of Joseph K. Panek against Nicholas Tymcheck.

Natural Products Co. against S. Patterson, Inc., judgment on sworn bill of particulars.

Annin & Co. against The New London Dailey Globe, judgment on sworn bill of particulars.

The following motions went off:

Joseph J. Chinigo against Harry Weinstein, et al., default for failure to plead.

The Dime Savings bank against Theodore Larsen, et al., disclosure of defense or foreclosure.

The Dime Savings bank against Hans Larsen, et al., disclosure of defense or foreclosure.

Marian Hall Ferrier against Estelle Louise Whipple, disclosure of defense or judgment.

DR. O'BRIEN'S ADDRESS OPENS CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

Dr. John F. O'Brien, superintendent for the past seven years at The Seaside at Niantic, the state sanatorium for the treatment of non-pulmonary tuberculosis, preached the gospel of plenty of fresh cool air and sunshine for the whole family when he spoke Monday night at the assembly room at the Central Baptist church in opening the local Christmas seal sale for the anti-tuberculosis work. Besides telling of some of the remarkable curative results obtained in children's cases at the Seaside, Dr. O'Brien said it was the purpose of his talk to make people think more of sunlight and fresh air which would mean better health for them and for their children.

Dr. O'Brien was introduced by Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve after the meeting had been opened by a selection by the Sunday school orchestra.

Before showing a number of interesting stereopticon views and a reel of motion pictures, Dr. O'Brien spoke of the treatment given at the Seaside, which he said was much the same as to diet and rest at Uncas-on-Thames, but the sanatorium at Niantic pushes to the extreme the sunlight and fresh air treatment. It is probably the only sanatorium in the world where no clothing except trunks is worn at any time in the year by the patients. It is the theory that the blood stream takes up energy from the sun and when this energy is conveyed to the body cells it helps in their functioning. It is important that the fresh cool air shall come in contact with the skin and this treatment actually prevents colds and coughs. After about ten days of the sun treatment, the pain from bone tuberculosis disappears, he said, and there had been no cases of pneumonia while he had been at the sanatorium.

Dr. O'Brien warmly commended the work that is done in Norwich by the public health nurses under the United Workers and urged that the Norwich public respond liberally to Christmas seal appeal, remembering that 85 percent of the money raised through the sales is expended right here in town.

Members of the public health nursing staff distributed literature at the meeting and the picture machine was operated by Jean Kieffer of Uncas-on-Thames.

GAVE TALK BEFORE GIRLS' WORKERS COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of the Council of Girls' Workers was held Monday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. A. C. Freeman, on Union street. The devotional part of the meeting was in charge of Miss Ruth Hamilton and was followed by a very interesting and inspiring talk by Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee, of New London, who spoke of her work with girls, referring especially to Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Lee's talk was followed by a business meeting at which Mrs. Freeman presided. It was voted to omit the December meeting, but an invitation to meet with the Taftville members for the January meeting was extended and accepted.

Several dates for future events were selected. The date of February 24 was selected for stunt night, with a patriotic programme. Miss Margaret Slattery has been secured for Girls' Sunday, March 11, and the annual mothers' and daughters' banquet is to be on Friday, May 18.

The business meeting was followed by a social hour and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Dawley.

"With a Smile"

"SEND him away with a smile" might easily have been written as the slogan for YUBAN—the famous Arbuckle Guest Coffee.

A cup of YUBAN, or perhaps two, will send the man-of-the-house away with a smile. And he will return with a smile, eager to have another cup of the same delicious coffee at dinner. In fact, a great number of men are so appreciative of YUBAN that they have requested their favorite clubs and restaurants to serve it.

How to Make Percolator Coffee

Use a rounded tablespoonful of ground YUBAN to each cup of fresh water briskly boiling. Pour the water into the percolator, then place coffee in the filter and let water percolate over the coffee 5 to 10 minutes, depending on the heat and strength desired. With electric percolator take 15 to 18 minutes.

CUYLER TRADED TO CUBS FOR SPARKY ADAMS AND PETE SCOTT

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, crack outfielder and center of baseball's most sensational controversies, tonight was traded by the Pittsburgh Pirates to the Chicago Cubs in exchange for Earl (Sparky) Adams, second baseman, and Floyd J. (Pete) Scott, outfielder.

Sam Watters, secretary of the Pittsburgh baseball club, announcing the trade tonight, said the deal had been arranged on a straight player basis with no money involved. Pittsburgh was represented in the negotiations by President Barney Dreyfuss and Manager Donie Bush, while the Chicago negotiators were President William Veeck and Manager Joe McCarthy.

Trading of Cuyler had been forecast in the middle of last season when he and Bush became involved in a controversy that resulted in the speedy outfielder occupying the bench for the most of the National league season and during the entire world's series.

Cuyler had objected to being placed second in the batting order where he contended he seemed unable to hit within many points of his usual batting average. Later he was fined $50 for failure to slide into second base on a close play during an important series with the New York Giants. Protesting against the fine, Cuyler maintained that he had made the correct play inasmuch as by going into the base standing up he had prevented a possible double play.

Shortly after the fine, Cuyler was benched and Clyde Barnhart was sent into left field. After Barnhart was hurt the Pirates recalled Adam Comorsky, a recruit, from the western league, to succeed him and kept Cuyler on the bench. From time to time Cuyler was used in a pinch-hitting role, but during the world's series he was kept strictly on the bench. Appeals of Pittsburgh fans that he be given a chance went unheeded.

Pirate officials regarded the trade as certain to strengthen the team for the 1928 season. They pointed out that the National league champions were in need of a good second baseman and that Adams was regarded as one of the best in the circuit. When the Pirates slumped badly early in the 1927 season, George Grantham was shifted from first base to second and Joe Harris, veteran slugger, was stationed at first base. That lineup was preserved during the rest of the season but Harris, handicapped by various injuries, played most of the time "on his nerve," his batting and fielding suffered as consequence.

Cuyler came to Pittsburgh from Bay City, Mich., in 1921 but was sent back for further seasoning the following year. He returned to the Pirates in 1923 and became a regular in the next year. He batted .354 in 1924, .357 in 1925 and .321 in 1926.

This year he compiled a batting average of a few points over .300 and led his club in stolen bases although he appeared in only a few games. He is one of the fastest men in the league and during his service with the Pirates consistently ranked with the leaders in stolen bases.

C. F. C. Ready For Coming Games.

At a meeting of the C. F. C. basketball team held at the Y, the officers were elected for the season of 1928. Floyd Lambert was elected captain and Stanton J. Smith was elected manager. There are several games on the club's schedule, some of which are with Hartford, Westerly and surrounding towns. There are several open dates and they would like to hear from some of the teams from this part of the state.

Games can be arranged for through the manager addressed to 65 Warren street, Norwich, Connecticut.

SCOTT KNOCKS OUT MUNN IN LAST ROUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—With but eight seconds of the bout to go, Phil Scott, heavyweight champion of England, knocked out Monte Munn, larruping legislator from Nebraska, in a ten-round match at the St. Nicholas arena here tonight. Scott weighed 195, Munn 219.

Scott, who was knocked out by Knute Hansen, the "melancholy one" of Wisconsin, in a single round in his first start here, finished Munn with a single right to the chin after outscoring him from the third to the tenth rounds. As Monte toppled, he pulled Scott to the floor with him. There had been no previous knockdowns.

Munn regained his feet a fraction of a second after the referee finished his count and just eight seconds before the final bell would have ended the match. Scott scored with solid right hand punches to the head throughout the match and opened a cut over Munn's left eye in the third round.

The Nebraskan was the aggressor most of the way but could not evade Scott's right counters. The Englishman forced Munn to clinch frequently with his steady punching to the head.

Ringside critics gave Scott an edge in all but the seventh round, where Munn's aggressiveness appeared to give him a slight margin.

Morgan Gardner, son of Jack Gardner, first of the light heavyweight champions, made his debut in New York rings by knocking out Johnny Casanava, of New York, in one round Gardner tipped the scales at 179 pounds, the best fighting weight of his famous dad. Casanava weighed 139. Young Gardner hails from Lowell, Mass., where his father began his ring career almost two decades ago.

Charlie Arthurs, 166, of Newark, N. J., defeated Jess Stringham, 168, of Salt Lake City, in a six-round preliminary.

INT. LEAGUE RATIFIES TRANSFER OF JERSEY CLUB

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Ratification of the transfer of the Jersey City baseball club to Montreal and the naming of opening and closing dates for the 1928 schedule formed the principal business of the annual meeting of the International league here today, President John Conway Toole announced.

George T. Stallings, Walter Hapgood and Carlos Ferrer, appearing as representatives of the new Montreal ownership, outlined bright prospects for the club which has a park with a seating capacity of 25,000.

The 1928 campaign will open on April 18 and close Sept. 23. The schedule details will be worked out by a committee to be appointed at another meeting here on Dec. 15.

Acknowledgement was made of the new owners of the Rochester club, including Walter Hagen, the golf star, and John Ganzel, formerly manager of the team. John L. Hicks and William Gilbert were the former owners of the club.

President Toole will represent the league at a joint meeting of minor baseball organizations at Dallas, Texas, beginning Dec. 3. An increase of $1,000 in salary was voted for William J. Manley, secretary of the league for the past 15 years.

The clubs were represented as follows: Toronto, Lawrence Solman, James Dunn and Bill O'Hara; Buffalo, S. L. Robertson, William J. Clymer; Rochester, Hagen and Ganzel; Syracuse, Warren C. Giles; Baltimore, Jack Dunn; Reading, E. J. Poole, Walter Ludwig; Newark, James P. Sinnott, John Boyle and Wilbur Crelin; Montreal, Stallings, Ferrar and Hapgood.

LOMSKI OUTPOINTS MARRULLO IN EVERY ROUND

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Out-pointing his opponent in every round, Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Washington, tonight easily won the judges decision in a 10-round bout with Tony "Young" Marrullo, New Orleanns at the arena. Each weighed 172 pounds.

Lomski, a prominent contender for light heavyweight championship honors, carried the battle to Marrullo from the opening gong. In the fifth round he had the New Orleans fighter hanging on the ropes after landing several vicious body blows and in the eighth Marrullo took such a beating that the fans yelled for the referee to stop the bout.

Marrullo, however, managed to withstand the bombardment by clinching and runnning away from Lomski. In the final round Lomski tried for a knockout, but he appeared nearly exhausted from chasing Marrullo around the ring and his blows lacked the necessary powers.

PLAINFIELD TO PLAY MERIDEN INSILCOS WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 28.—The Meriden Endees Monday night called off their scheduled game with the Plainfield Pros set for Plainfield Community house Wednesday night. However, in their place cames another club from the Silver City, the club that gave the city its name, the Meriden Insilcos.

There is little to choose between these two Meriden outfits. Last year, in the city championship series, a two out of three affair, the Endees won out by taking the two games only by one point margins. The scores of the games were 28 to 27 and 35 to 34.

They will bring Drueht, McCarthy, Evans, Hurwitz and Warner to battle it out with the Community house boys and Plainfield, outfucked of late, intends to give them plenty to think about. Plainfield will have Dissinger and Normandin at the forwards with Stavnitsky at center and Whitey Bernot and Madden at guards. Billy Schofield and Eddie Nichols will also be on hand.

The cancellation of the Endee attraction was necessitated by a change in dates of the newly formed State league. The Endees learned at a meeting Sunday that their initial game comes Thursday at Waterbury and as two umps in consecutive nights would not have them at their best, the Bearing Makers were forced to shift a bit. They will probably be seen at Plainfield later in the season.

The Buddies will play the Baltic Independents Wednesday night in the preliminary. Incidentally, the Buddies would like games with strong teams in this section. Address the Plainfield Community house.

Molleur will referee Wednesday and the preliminary goes on at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday, Dec. 7, the Boston Whirlwinds come to Plainfield.

RUETHER AND SHAWKEY UNCONDITIONALLY RELEASED

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Walter (Dutch) Ruether and Robert J. Shawkey, veterans pitchers of the New York Yankees, were unconditionally released today.

In announcing the release of the two pitchers, Ed. Barrow, secretary of the Yankees, disclosed that Shawkey might be retained as a coach. The players were let go to make room for new talent.

Ruether, a southpaw, was acquired in 1926 from the Senators on waivers. He started baseball with the Portland club of the Pacific coast league and has played in the majors eleven years.

Shawkey, a righthander, had been with the Yankees since 1918 when he was secured from the Athletics on waivers.

Ruether had a good start early in the past season but lost his effectiveness in the closing weeks of the campaign. Shawkey was used chiefly as pitching coach during the 1927 drive and had marvelous success in developing George Pipgras.

COLLINS SURE OF PLACE WITH ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Eddie Collins is a "fixture" with the Philadelphia Americans and may remain with the Athletics as long as he wishes to continue in baseball, Manager Connie Mack stated tonight in announcing that he and Collins had reached an agreement for a 1928 contract.

Mack said Collins would sign the contract within a few days. He declined to reveal any of it's provisions.

"Eddie will be a fixture on the club," said Manager Mack, "and will be captain of the team again next season. He probably will not play much but will be available whenever he is needed and will be used a lot as a pinch hitter.

"Eddie will be a sort of lieutenant for me, helping in the coaching of players and acting as general assistant."

Collins, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, was one of the "big three" signed by the Athletics prior to last season. The others, Ty Cobb and Zach Wheat, have been released.

P. G. A. RE-ELECTS PIRIE PRESIDENT FOR ANOTHER YEAR

DETROIT, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The opening date of the inaugural golf championship tournament of the Bahama Islands was fixed today as March 3, by the Professional Golfers' association at its annual business meeting here. The tournament, which will last four days, will be held at Nassau County club with $3,000 first prize stakes.

The association also will sponsor the first Bahama open championship, with $1,000 prize money, it was announced. The open will precede the main event during the same week.

Three bids will be considered by the association tomorrow in awarding the 1928 national tournament. French Lick Springs, Ind., Fresh Meadow club, of New York city, and Baltimore Country club, have entered bids.

Alex Pirie, of Chicago, was re-elected president for a second term today. Willicogg, of Worcester, Mass., J. H. Patterson, of Los Angeles, and W. H. Way, of Cleveland, Ohio, were named vice presidents. Joseph Mitchell, of Montclair, N. J., was elected secretary, and J. B. Mackie, of Long Island, treasurer.

Harmon Stops Sailor.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Willie Harmon, veteran New York welterweight, stopped Young Sailor, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here tonight. Harmon hammered Sailor into helplessness in the first five rounds and the Charleroi boy's handlers tossed in the towel in the sixth round. Harmon scored a knockdown in the third round.

Jack Katkish, rugged New York welterweight, won a decision over Walter Dickerson, California, Pa., in eight rounds.

Rosen-Travers Bout Tonight.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Charlie Rosen, of New York, will meet Tony Travers, of this city, in the feature bout on a professional card at the Arena tomorrow night.

Arthur De Champlaine, of Wallingford, will meet Joe Currie, of New York, in the semi-final bout.

INTERSCHOLASTIC GRID SEASON ENDS WITH ACADEMY AND STONINGTON TIED

Things went along pretty much as to custom during the last week of the grid season of the "Big Six." The season is now a matter of bitter history to practically all high schools of eastern Connecticut for none, with the exception of Stonington maintained the 1926 standard.

Scores last week:
N. F. A. 0, Alumni 15.
Stonington 0, Westerly 0.

Alumni Too Strong.

The Alumni win was a victory for brawn and experience. Outweighing the present wearers of the Red and White tremendously, the graduates, however, had to call on all their power to get two touchdowns, a point after and a safety.

Neither team could gain on a running attack. The Alumni's husky forward wall smothered the varsity's backs while the varsity's lighter but more- coordinate line stopped a disorganized Alumni buch of ball carriers.

The Alumni got all the breaks. The safety was the result of a bad pass from center and the first touchdown indirectly resulted from an intercepted forward.

One of the largest crowds of the season, estimated at about 1,200 saw the game.

Westerly-Stonington.

The scoreless tie at Owen field on Thanksgiving was a moral victory for Westerly. Stonington had weight and a better record in addition to the advantage of the home field, but the Granite Men fought them to a standstill and when the game ended Stonington was being pushed back considerably.

These rivals have some tough days for their clashes for the rain of Thanksgiving only teamed up with the poor condition of the field on Armistice day at Westerly.

Stonington won five, lost three and tied one and she considers her season a success for in addition to beating the Academy, she copped the Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island league title and won from Westerly in the first game.

The season's work of the six leading teams of this section follows:

	W	L	T	Pts	OP
N. F. A.	5	2	1	82	71
Stonington	5	2	1	81	34
Windham	4	3	1	77	63
Westerly	3	4	4	25	73
Chapman Tech	1	6	0	19	101
Bulkeley (N. L.)	0	6	3	12	130

Bits About the Big Six.

Westerly played four scoreless ties during the season.

There was only one undefeated team in intra-Big Six games, Bulkeley. She played a tie with N. F. A.

Tech was the only team to have all games to to decision.

Only two of the "Big Six" won more than half their games and only three outscored the opposition.

All teams lose greatly by graduation.

A proper ranking for teams of the "Big Six" after their records have been inspected seems to be N. F. A., Windham, Stonington, Bulkeley, Westerly and Chapman Tech.

Windham's annual banquet for the football team comes tonight.

Now for basketball.

In Other Sections.

Things are pretty quiet just now around the state high schools, about the only news the past week being that Wilby defeated Crosby Thanksgiving, 8 to 6 at Waterbury.

MORE TOUCHDOWNS MADE IN PRESENT COLLEGIATE SEASON THAN EVER BEFORE

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The 1927 college football season has produced a bumper crop of touchdowns, one of the greatest on record, as the forward pass has come back into its own as a scoring weapon.

The sharp rise to high scoring levels by teams throughout the country, after a five-year period in which the general tendency has been to tighten up the defense, is one of the most striking features of a campaign that is all over but the shouting in the south and the far west.

The records of 138 college elevens representative of every section of the gridiron map, reveal a total of 18,015 points tallied in 1,180 games.

Reduced to a simpler basis, these figures represent an average of 130.5 points per team, the highest since 1922, and an average of 15.3 points per game.

These figures are still below the record season of 1922 when the averages were 19 points per game and 133 per team but they represent a big jump over 1926 and indicate a sharp return of offensive power.

Greater concentration on drives for touchdowns, instead of resorting to field goal attempts, plus greater dependence on the pass, are chiefly responsible for the scoring spress that punctuated the 1927 campaign.

It was with the idea of extracting some of the foot from football that the rule-makers put back the goal posts this year and they seem to have accomplished this object.

The absence of many games decided by field goals is in striking contrast with the records of the 1926 season, when the toe was so frequently a deciding factor.

Forward passing attacks such as those displayed by Dartmouth, Southern California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Vanderbilt, Missouri, Georgetown and New York university helped boost the touchdown total.

An astonishing total of tie games as well as a large number of battles decided by a single point also are disclosed. There were 81 deadlocks in the list examined, as compared with 28 last year. One-point margins were enough to settle 38 games as compared with 25 in 1926.

The addition of ten yards to the distance to the uprights brought about a sharp reduction in the number of successful kicks for point after touchdown. In the Nebraska-New York university game, as an example, only one of seven tries were made good. But on the same day, by way of contrast, Paul Scull of Pennsylvania booted the extra point after all five touchdowns scored against Cornell. Specialists such as Scull, however, were fed and far between, one of them being Filbert of Roanoke, who booted 15 straight goals after touchdowns.

The scoring records for 1922-27, inclusive:

Year	No. College	Games	Total Points	Ave Per Team	Ave. Per Game
1922	82	593	11,000	133	19
1923	100	814	12,634	127	15.5
1924	95	790	11,363	119	14.5
1925	108	895	13,150	122	14.7
1926	120	957	13,960	116.3	14.6

CUYLER WILL ADD STRENGTH TO CUBS

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The acquisition of Hazen ("Kiki") Cuyler, by the Chicago Cubs was the chief deal on which the Cubs had decided for this winter to strengthen the team To get Cuyler, the Cubs had to turn over one of the best second basemen in the major leagues, Earl "Sparky" Adams, and Floyd Scott, an outfielder.

The addition of Cuyler gives the Cubs one of the greatest collection of fly-chasers and hitters in baseball history. Hack Wilson, Riggs Stephenson, Earl Webb and Cliff Heathcote are the present Cub fielders. Stephenson and Wilson, with Cuyler in right field, probably will compose the regular trio.

In Adams' place at second, the Cubs will have Freddy Maguire, former Holy Cross star, and second baseman of the Toledo American Association champions. At short, the Cubs already have another Toledo star, "Woody" English, and at third is Eddie Pick, former Kansas City player. These three youngsters on the infield will be steadied by Capt. Charlie Grim at first.

BILLY EVANS TO BE GENERAL MANAGER OF INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Selection of Billy Evans, American league umpire, as general manager of the Cleveland baseball club was announced tonight by President Alva Bradley. In this capacity evans will be executive head of the club, handling most of the duties that were looked after last year by former President E. S. Barnard.

When Barnard became head of the American league and the tribe was sold to a Cleveland syndicate headed by Bradley, the latter decided to revise the executive management.

A new manager will be employed as Jim McAllister, who piloted the team last year, has been given his unconditional release. The manager will continue to direct the team, but Evans, through his experience of twenty years as an arbiter in the American league, will be equipped to advise the pilot on the field as well as to handle executive duties.

The new general manager will direct the activities of the scouts and with the co-operation of the manager will put through deals for players.

Before he became an umpire, Evans was a sports writer for the Youngstown Vindicator.

Blitman Kayoes Roache.

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Harry Blitman, 130, of Philadelphia, knocked out Larry Roache, of New York, 130, in the second round of a scheduled eight-round battle here tonight.

TO START ON MAJOR LEAGUE SCHEDULES SOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Preliminary arrangements for the major league baseball schedules for next season will be made within the next few days by John A. Heydler, president of the National league, and Ernest S. Barnard, new head of the American league, it became known today.

President Heydler indicated he would meet with Barnard in two or three days, possibly at Pittsburgh. To guard against hasty reconsideration of the schedules by eleventh hour consultation as developed last year, the league heads have decided to confer in private before the meeting to be held here next month.

FIFTEEN TEAMS IN SIX DAY BIKE RACE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Fifteen teams will compete in New York's 43rd international six day bicycle race starting next Sunday night at 9 o'clock in Madison Square Garden. Reggie McNamara, the "Iron Man", and Franco Georgetti, of Italy, motor paced champion, of America, the combination which won the last New York race, are paired again and favored to repeat their victory.

Other strong riders paired are Fred Spencer and Charley Winter, Gernard Debetts and Gaetano Belloni, Cecil Walker and Anthony Beekman, Alphonse and Emil Aerts, Carl Stockholm and Paul Croley.

SPORTING NOTES

Two presidents of the United States, Andrew Johnson and James A. Garfield, were ardent baseball fans.

The trotting horse is an institution of the last century. Before 1800 running was the only method of racing.

The Prairie Hockey league will open its season December 5 with teams in Moose Jaw, Regina and Saskatoon.

The principal stake events at the winter meeting of the Havana-American Jockey club will be run on Saturdays and Sundays, which are always the big days in Cuban racing.

Frederick C. Russell, who passed away recently in Boston, was the originator of the semi-public golf links, where a person might play at any time for a nominal fee.

The next big event in professional billiards will be the match between Welker Cochran and Jake Shaefer for the world's 18.2 balkline championship, to be played in New York, Dec. 19-31. The title is now held by Cochran.

I'm getting mine with a pipe and P. A.

HAVE you never bent over a tidy red tin and caught that marvelous P. A. fragrance? Only a great tobacco could smell as good as that. You prove how good it is on the very first fire-up. What a taste, Men!

Cool as an immigration-officer. Sweet as getting in. Mild and mellow as you expect a smoke to be, yet with that full-bodied flavor that makes every puff a pleasant experience. I wish I could put the taste right on your tongue, but you'll have to do that.

P. A. in a pipe is cool and long-burning, right to the bottom of the bowl. This one brand is bought by more men than any other tobacco in the world. There's only one way to account for that—P. A.'s quality!

The sooner you get started, the better. A load of P. A. in the bowl of your pipe will be a load off your mind. And I don't mean that for any wise-crack. No matter what your present program is, try Prince Albert on the word of a friend. I'm telling you straight, you'll make no mistake.

More for your money in every way—TWO full ounces in every tin.

THE NEW FORD CAR

An announcement of unusual importance to every automobile owner

by HENRY FORD

NINETEEN years ago we made and sold the first Model T Ford car. In announcing it to the public we said:

"'We will build a motor car for the great multitude. It will be large enough for the family, but small enough for the individual to run and care for. It will be constructed of the best materials, by the best men to be hired, after the simplest designs modern engineering can devise. But it will be so low in price that no man making a good salary will be unable to own one.'

"If I were starting in business today, or asked to restate my policy, I would not change one sentence or one word of that original announcement. In plain, simple language it gives the reason for the very existence of the Ford Motor Company and explains its growth.

"IN THE last nineteen years we have made 15,000,000 Ford cars and added to the world nearly 300,000,000 mobile horse-power. Yet I do not consider the machines which bear my name simply as machines. I take them as concrete evidence of the working out of a theory of business which I hope is something more than a theory of business—a theory that looks toward making this world a better place in which to live.

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. There was no conscious public need of motor cars when we first conceived it. There were few good roads and only the adventurous few could be induced to buy an automobile.

"The Ford car blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads. It broke down the barriers of time and distance and helped to place education within the reach of all. It gave people more leisure. It helped people everywhere to do more and better work in less time and enjoy doing it. It did a great deal, I am sure, to promote the growth and progress of this country.

"We are still proud of the record of the Model T Ford car. If we were not, we would not have continued to manufacture it so long. But 1927 is not 1908. It is not 1915. It is not even 1926.

We have built a new car to meet modern conditions

"We realize that conditions in this country have so greatly changed in the last few years that further refinement in motor car construction is desirable. So we have built a new car. To put it simply—we have built a new and different Ford to meet new and different conditions.

"We believe the new Ford car, which will be officially announced on Friday of this week, is as great an improvement in motor car building as the Model T Ford was in 1908.

Smart new low lines and beautiful colors

"The new Ford is more than a car for the requirements of today. It goes farther than that. It anticipates the needs of 1928, of 1929, of 1930.

"The new Ford car is radically different from Model T. Yet the basic Ford principles of economy of production and quality of product have been retained. There is nothing quite like the new Ford anywhere in quality and price.

"The new Ford has exceptional beauty of line and color because beauty of line and color has come to be considered, and I think rightly, a necessity in a motor car today. Equally important is the mechanical beauty of the engine. Let us not forget this mechanical beauty when we consider the beauty of the new Ford.

"The new Ford has unusual speed for a low-price car because present-day conditions require unusual speed.

"The world moves more quickly than it used to. There are only so many hours in the day and there is much to be done.

"Fifty and sixty miles an hour are desired today where thirty and forty would have satisfied in 1908. So we are giving you this new speed.

Quiet and smooth-running at all speeds

"The new Ford will ride comfortably at fifty and sixty miles an hour. It has actually done sixty-five miles an hour in road tests.

"Since modern conditions demand more speed, they also demand better brakes to balance this speed. So we are giving you four-wheel brakes in the new Ford.

"The new Ford will be quiet and smooth-running at all speeds and you will find it even easier to handle in traffic than the old Model T Ford.

"The new Ford has durability because durability is the very heart of motor car value. The Ford car has always been known as a car that will take you there and bring you back. The new Ford will not only do that, but it will do it in good style. You will be proud of the new Ford.

"THIS new Ford car has not been planned and made in a day. Our engineers began work on it several years ago and it has been in my mind much longer than that. We make automobiles quickly when we get in production. But we take a long time planning them. Nothing can hurry us in that. We spent twelve years in perfecting our former Model T Ford car before we offered it to the public. It is not conceivable that we should have put this new Ford car on the market until we were sure that it was mechanically correct in every detail.

"Every part of it has been tested and retested. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it represents the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the making of 15,000,000 automobiles.

The new Ford will sell at a low price

"The price of the new Ford is low in accordance with the established Ford policy. I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small margin of profit than to sell a few cars at a large margin of profit.

"We never forget that people who buy Ford cars are the people who helped to make this business big. It has always been our policy to share our profits with our customers. In one year our profits were so much larger than we expected that we voluntarily returned $50 to each purchaser of a car. We could never have done that if this business had been conducted for the sole benefit of stockholders rather than to render service to the public.

"No other automobile can duplicate the new Ford car at the Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do.

"We make our own steel—we make our own glass—we mine our own coal—we make virtually every part used in the Ford car. But we do not charge a profit on any of these items or from these operations. We would not be playing fair with the public if we did so. Our only business is the automobile business. Our only profit is on the automobile we sell.

"WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great increase in our own costs.

"We did not set out to make a new car to sell at such-and-such a figure. We decided on the kind of car we wanted to make and then found ways to produce it at a low price.

"The new Ford car, as I have said, will be officially announced on Friday of this week. In appearance, in performance, in comfort, in safety, in all that goes to make a good car, it will bear out everything I have said here. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

A Cat's Soliloquy

Poor puss beside the fire sits
And meditates, or seems
To think—well, call it what you will,
Thinks, meditates, or dreams.
And I, who've watched her when these moods
Hold her, as if by spell,
Have come to know through sympathy
Her musings far too well.

I grieve with her the painful lack
Of justice she is shown
In this cold world, the pitfalls, snares,
That in her path are strewn.
"Because I catch a bird or two
I am condemned to die.
But think of all the good I do,"
I seem to hear her sigh.

"Did I not keep the rodents down
That on folks' cupboards prey,
A sorry pass they'd all be in;
And who, forsooth, are they
To make such fuss because I kill
For sport sometimes as well
As from sheer hunger; they kill, too,
I've often heard folks tell.

"Our Uncle Sam, so I am told,
To guard the mails from mice
And rats, has on our services
Affixed a goodly price.
'O Lord, what fools these mortals be'
That they would put an end
To me—with misdirected seal—
Their true and faithful friend!"
—LOUELLA C. POOLE.

Why We Keep Thanksgiving.

I am a little Pilgrim maid,
I lived long years ago;
When first I saw New England shores
The ground was white with snow.

The Mayflower was a little ship,
It sailed for many a day,
It landed on a great big rock,
Within a quiet bay.

How would you like to be so cold,
That you froze your hands and feet?
How would you like to go to bed
Without one bite to eat?

We thought we'd almost starve to death,
But an Indian came one day,
And taught us how to hunt and fish,
For well he knew the way.

He taught us how to sow the seed,
We reaped a bounteous store,
A gracious harvest did proclaim
That starving time was o'er.

We said we'll set a day apart
To thank the Lord each year,
That's why we keep Thanksgiving,
Remember that, my dear.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

What do you suppose happens to the old worn out paper money that is taken out of circulation by the government? For one thing, millions of dollars in paper money, torn and tattered so that it is practically worthless, so far as circulation is concerned, is being made into writing paper and fancy stationery. More paper money is being used by the people of the country than ever before and is wearing out more rapidly than ever before.

Paper money now lasts only about nine months and then it has outlived its usefulness, as it is worn out. It is folded and refolded a great many times, and it is continually changing hands. Garage men and mechanics are largely responsible for the rapid wearing out of the paper money, as grease and oil cause more damage to the paper money than almost anything else.

The worn out and damaged paper money is finally returned to Washington where the treasury department gives out new money in exchange for the old bills. Nearly fifty carloads of worn out paper money is returned each year to Washington and great care has to be exercised in disposing of it to prevent it from falling into the hands of dishonest men and women.

In years past this money has been turned into low grade paper pulp but recently the government has found a way to make fine writing paper and printing paper from it. The new plan of disposing of the old paper money will save much money for the government as the "paper money writing paper" will bring a much higher price than the low grade paper pulp into which the paper money has been converted in past years.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES.

Picking Berries.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my sister and I went to the pasture to pick blue berries. My friends, my aunt and my sister started before us. We each had a little pail and a big one between us. When we got to the pasture we picked our little pails full and then dumped the berries into the big pail. My father had some cattle in the pasture where we were picking the berries. The cattle came and we didn't want them to see us so we hid back of a tree. When they all went away we got up and picked some more berries. When our pails were full we went home. Quite awhile after that the rest came home. They were quite surprised to know that we had been down and back before them.

My Hunting Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide-a-Wakes. I hope they will enjoy reading it. One night last week my cousin and I went to the woods. We went to get squirrels. As we were going by a nut tree we looked up and saw a small chipmunk. I shot at it and killed it. Later on, my cousin shot one. It was then getting dark. So we went back home. We got home at half past five.

My Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed. This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story. My little dog is black and white and has a fluffy tail so I call her Fluffy. She looks very proud because she has six babies. They were born only this morning. She would not let me touch them but I took one to show my mother. I gave that one to my cousin.

The Story of Thanksgiving Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: When the Pilgrims landed in America in 1620, it was very cold. They suffered very much from cold and hunger. Many of them died but the rest would not return to England. All of them would have died if the Indians had not given them food.

In the spring the friendly Indians taught the Pilgrims how to catch fish from the rivers and to plant corn or maize. In the autumn they had a large harvest so they did not have to suffer the next winter. Their storehouses were all filled with crops. Their governor then proposed to set aside three days during which they gave thanks to God. They also invited Chief Massasoit and 100 of his braves as guests to their feast. They had many good things to eat including pumpkin pies, cakes, vegetables and corn to which the Indians added wild turkey and venison. The Pilgrims and the Indians feasted and played games for three days.

From then on it has been a custom to celebrate Thanksgiving every year. The president issues a proclamation each year setting the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving. On this day we give thanks to God for all his mercies.

Our Neighbors

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about "Our New Neighbors." Last week the house next to us, which had been vacant so long, took on signs of life, and I waited eagerly to learn who would be our new neighbors. Brother Phil and I hoped there might be young people of our ages, and, when the family arrived, we were watching. Our hopes were not in vain for, besides the father and mother, the family consisted of a boy who looked but a little older than Phil, a girl, who seemed to be just my age, and two smaller children. The father and mother were very pleasant appearing and Phil and I were quite sure we should enjoy them all very much. We could scarcely wait for the time to come when we could make their acquaintance, and kept asking mother if we could not go over and offer to be of service. She told us we had better wait until they were settled, and, of course, we had to do so. The day finally came when we were allowed to call and great was our delight. We found that Dick and Frieda had been just as impatient as we; so we soon became acquainted and made all kinds of plans for the winter, which we are looking forward to very much.

A Visit to Middletown.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a trip to Middletown. We started out at half past eight in the morning and got there at ten o'clock. We went in the five and ten cent store and stayed there about fifteen minutes. Then we went to see a moving picture and a vaudeville show. It was a very nice show. After the show we started for home.

Just as we were about to cross the Connecticut river bridge I heard a whistle. My father stopped and in a few minutes the bridge opened. A man closed a gate so that cars should stop. All of a sudden you could hear a loud whistle and a huge white ship came down the river. My father said that it came from New York.

After it had passed the bridge, another whistle was heard and the bridge started to close. After it was closed the man opened the gate and the cars started to go. We reached home at four o'clock and ate supper.

We Went Camping.

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer my two cousins, my brother, four of my friends and myself went camping on a small island on our lake. My cousin Moe took a small camping stove and some cooking utensils, and I took the two camps on one boat and the others went in another boat to get the things set.

When we arrived at the island we unloaded the things and started back at breakneck speed. We went home and packed a large box full of food. We made sure there was plenty of fruit, cereals and eggs to last us a week. We decided to come down to the farm to get milk, cream, butter, bread and cheese as we could not keep these more than one or two days.

We hurried back and arrived just in time for lunch. The girls had cooked some eggs and other things and the boys had gathered firewood and picked two quarts of berries to go with our cream.

After lunch we pitched our tents and made everything comfortable.

We enjoyed ourselves very much as we had alot of pleasant things to see and do instead of running after cows that liked to run away.

We went swimming every day as there was a pretty beach on that island. We had many boat and swimming races.

When we came back home after two weeks of camping our mothers hardly recognized us we had become so fat and robust. They said they would send us back to the island for the whole summer but they were only fooling. I am going to go camping next summer again.

The Library.

Dead Uncle Jed: Across from our church there is a library. It is made of wood and is painted red like our school house that I told you about. Inside there are lots of windows, and two big rooms. In one big room the books are kept. There is one place where the children's books are kept. The rest are for older people. All are kept on shelves which reach around the room. Then there is another room where meetings are held. There are pictures hung around the room, too. A fire place is in one corner.

In the big room there is a glass cage in which are many kinds of birds, and birds' eggs, worms, butterflies, and a bird's nest.

Then on top of one of the shelves is a small cage with some birds in it. I think the prettiest bird is one which is all red. I get a book there almost every Sunday.

A Rainy Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: I enjoy the Wide Awake letters. We have so many faithful writers too. We should have a long honor roll. I think I should "chip in" as one would say, and do my bit. I am going to tell you how to spend a rainy day.

Surely mother has a box that her coat or dress came in, or dad's box which he got his overcoat in. Take this box, scissors, and old catalog. Divide the box into rooms as a contractor makes his floor plans. Find a suitable dining room, bed room, and living room set. Then furnish your home. Perhaps mother has a few scraps of crepe paper or bits of cloth for curtains, rugs, table cloths, etc. Then select a family. It would be nice to ask your friends to make them too, and ask them to see your tenants. Perhaps you could give them to the Red Cross to give to sick children in hospitals. This is a very educational and entertaining way to make a rainy day seem short.

The First Submarine

Dear Uncle Jed: The first submarine was made by an American man, David Bushnell (1754-1824). After he graduated from Yale in 1775 he built a boat called the Turtle to blow up the British sixty-four gun ships in the New York harbor.

Robert Fulton built the Nautilus in which he remained under the water for five hours. In our Civil war a confederate submarine came out of Charlestown harbor and sank the United States steamer called the Housatonic, but the submarine was lost itself.

Many experiments were made in Germany, France, England and Russia. France was the first to adopt the submarine torpedo boat as a war vessel. The submarine is able to steam on the surface and dive like a duck and stay under the water as long as it has to. In the beginning of the war its speed on the surface was fifteen miles an hour.

The largest German submarine of 1917 ran two hundred miles or more under the water. When the submarine returns to the surface the motors are run as dynamos and the batteries are recharged.

A Hunting Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I went hunting in our woods. I saw a rabbit. As I got ready to shoot it a dog came and frightened it away. I went to look for him but I could not find where he ran away.

Then I went on and I saw a squirrel. I shot him and brought him home. My father skinned him and my mother cooked him for dinner.

DOMINICK FATIFENE, Age 11.

Sugar Cane

Dear Uncle Jed. I am going to tell you how sugar cane grows. The sugar that we use in the United States is made chiefly from sugar cane. Sugar first grew in southern Asia. It was spread to Africa, and then to Spain. After the Spaniards took it with them to the West Indies. Then a few years later this sugar was sent to Louisiana. It is now raised in most of the southern states.

In very hot countries the sugar plantation can last about nine or ten years. But in countries where it is cooler this sugar must be planted every two or three years.

Sugar cane is a kind of grass which looks almost like Indian corn. It has a hard stem which sometimes grows three times as high as a man. The leaves of the sugar cane are dark green and have a point at the top.

When the sugar cane is ripened in August it is cut down and taken to the mill and made into the sugar.

My Cousin's Party.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about my cousin's party. He was two years old. We got there at six o'clock. What a nice table it was covered with witches and all kinds of Hallowe'en trimmings. And all good things to eat. We played pin the donkey's tail. At eight o'clock we went home.

RUTH KILROW, Age 7.
Norwich.

Helen Keller.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you about my eleven ducks and I am going to tell you about the life of Helen Keller.

Helen Keller has not seen or heard anything since she was a baby. Yet she is a useful woman. When Helen Keller was a baby she lived in a beautiful home in Alabama. She was very happy when she was a baby, but for a few days she caught a fever and when she became well she could not hear or see. Helen was very cross because she could not see or hear what other people said to her.

When Helen was six years old her parents sent for a teacher to teach her to talk and understand what people said. Helen could not see her teacher.

Miss Sullivan read stories into her hands and Helen understood what they were. There are not many books for blind people.

When Helen grew older she wrote several books which people like to read. Helen's parents sent her a long way off to school where deaf and blind children go. Helen was very glad her parents had enough money to pay Miss Sullivan for she could not do much without her.

Helen knew many blind and deaf children that have poor parents. When you go to a library and borrow one of Miss Keller's books you can see pictures of her and some of the letters she wrote to her mother.

Uncle Jed, I read in the Bulletin my story and I noticed my name spelled Joseph Olinick, but it is Josephine Olinick.

My Small Puppy.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

Trail, a very cute little puppy of six months, was given to me for a birthday present. He was sent in a basket, and attached to the handle was a tag which read, "To Medora, from Uncle Joe." I took off the cover, and there was Trail with a nice red bow on his neck. He jumped out and began licking my hands as if he knew that he belonged to me.

My Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about my pet dog. She is a German police and is of a rare color and has black on her back. She can do some tricks. She can sit on a chair and can stand on her hind feet. She knows many more tricks which I will not mention.

Corns

Lift Off—No Pain!

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and calluses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothesome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm every time.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store. Try it!

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has not been dosed with opiates; he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are sound and his little bowels are strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be—his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infant. And how they love the taste!

One word of warning; get the pure real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind the doctor's specify. And with every bottle comes a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother. So remember; tell your druggist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Cubby Squalls.

For all mistakes we have to pay.
Alas! There is no other way.
—Cubby.

Cubby has found this out for himself. Of course, his mother could have told him that this was true. Almost any one with experience could have told him. But almost every one has to find it out for himself. It was just so with Cubby.

He had made the mistake of not looking closely enough at the big footprints in the snow that he had been following. Had he looked at them as he should have looked at them he would have known at once that they were not made by Mother Bear. But just because they were big footprints Cubby took it for granted that they were Mother Bear's. So, galloping along carelessly, he ran around a great windfall and almost headlong into a great big bear who was not his mother at all. In fact, the big bear was his father, Buster Bear. But Cubby didn't recognize his father and Buster didn't recognize Cubby.

For perhaps one minute they stood staring at each other. Then with a deep rumbly-grumbly growl great big Buster Bear jumped toward Cubby. Cubby gave a frightened yelp and started up the nearest tree. My goodness, how he did go up that tree! Chatterer the Red Squirrel never went up a tree any faster than did Cubby. And he kept right on going just as far as he could go. And when he found he could get no farther he began to bawl. Yes, sir, he did so. He began to bawl. You see, he was a very scared little bear, so being so badly scared he just had to bawl.

Buster Bear came over to the foot of the tree and looked up. All the time he was growling that deep rumbly-grumbly growl of his. Then he sat up on his haunches and looked at Cubby. Then he stood up on his hindfeet, and very tall he was as he reached up and dug the claws of his forefeet into the bark of that tree. Yes, sir, you would have thought just that. It was all because Cubby was so badly frightened. The moment his father dug his claws into that big tree Cubby was sure that he was just as good as caught. Little bears are like some little boys—ready to cry before they are hurt. My, think of all the tears that would be saved if people just waited to be hurt before crying! Half the tears in the world are shed in anticipation.

"Stop that noise or I'll come up there and eat you up," growled Buster.

"Stop that noise or I'll come up there and eat you up!" growled Buster.

At that Cubby bawled louder than ever. "I don't want to be eaten up," he wailed. "You go away and leave me alone. I want my mother! Oh, Oh, I want my mother!"

Buster Bear didn't like that noise. It made Buster uneasy. He glanced this way and he glanced that way, and again he looked up at Cubby. It was almost time for Buster to go to bed for the winter. In fact, he had been thinking that after one more meal he would go to bed. This young bear bawling up at the top of that tree would make a good meal. In fact, he would make a splendid meal. He would make just the kind of a meal to go to bed on. Buster looked all about once more in a hesitating manner and then abruptly dug his claws into the tree. He would go up and get that noisy little bear.

REACTION IN STOCK MARKET DUE TO TEMPORARILY OVER-BOUGHT POSITION

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—The stock market underwent a sharp reaction today in which many of the leaders lost 1 to 3 points, and some of the high priced specialties as much as 5 points, but independent strength was nevertheless shown by a score widely assorted issues. Wall street was inclined to attribute the reaction to the marking up of the call money rate from 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 per cent, the first change in about a month, and to the publication of the first official announcement of the new Ford car, but in banking circles the setback was regarded as a correction of a temporarily overbought position following the recent sustained advance in prices.

General Motors, which profited most by the Ford shut down and is therefore expected to feel keenest the competition of the new Ford car, was rather freely supplied throughout the session, but received strong support just above 125, closing at 123 1-2 for a net loss of 3 1-2 points. On the other hand, Timken Roller Bearing, which is reported to have received large Ford orders, was run up nearly 6 points to 123 7-8, closing at the top. Most of the other motor and accessory issues were resitionary net declines of a point or so being recorded by Hudson, Mack Trucks, Hupp, Pierce Arrow preferred, Gabriel Snubber and Jordan. Studebaker crossed 58 and then fell back to 55 1-2, up to 1 1-2 net.

U. S. Steel common also yielded readily to selling pressure, breaking 2 points to 144 and then recovering about a third of its loss. American Smelting, Radio corporation, Woolworth, American Sugar Refining, International Business Machines, Mathieson Alkali, Pittsburgh Coal and Union Carbide yielded 1 or more points while Allied Chemical, American Tobacco issues, Atlas Powder, Brooklyn Edison, Rossia Insurance, Shubert Theaters, and Warren Bros. lost 3 to 5 points.

American Republics, which sold as low as 49 last week, was run up 10 points today to a new high record at 73 1-4. Kresge Department Store preferred also jumped 10 points to 11, while Air Reduction, Macy & Co., Pacific Coast common and second preferred, Peoples Gas, Twin City Rapid Transit, and Westinghouse Electric first preferred, showed net gains of 3 to 5 points.

Publication of relatively poor October earnings reports by the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and other large systems brought fresh selling into the rails, although the losses were held to a point or two. St. Paul issues were quick to respond to the announcement of the United States supreme court decision favorable to the reorganization plan, which now only awaits the approval of the interstate commerce commission. "Soo" preferred and New Haven preferred attained new peak prices for the year.

Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent, advanced to 4 and thence to 4 1-2 as banks called about $30,000,000 in loan slip preparation for month-end demands. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

In the commodity markets, cotton broke about $2.50 a bale on reports of further mill curtailment and a poor spot demand, the active months touching the lowest levels since last August, but part of the losses were recovered. Wheat, coffee and sugar futures also were slightly reactionary.

Foreign exchange were mixed, with a firming up in demand sterling to $4.87 5-16 and a 10-point jump in Japanese yen to 45.50 cents as the only features.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL, IN COMMITTEE, CONSIDERS THE ANNUAL BUDGET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 28—The city council, sitting as a committee, convened at the municipal building this evening and considered the annual budget, which will be presented to the council shortly for approval. The budget is being prepared for the purpose of determining what the running expenses of the city will be for the fiscal year.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS FOUND MINUS REQUIRED LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 28—Tonight came near being "Drunken Drivers" night in New London. Two arrests were made for driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor and with their arrests the drivers are fortunate that their acts did not result in serious injury to themselves or other occupants of cars. Leo Murray, 75 Howard street, was the first driver arrested. Besides being charged with driving an auto while drunk, he has the additional charge against him of driving without having a license. Murray, who is a service man, was driving northerly on Howard street and when in front of the Pequot Laundry, he guided his car in such a manner that it took up not only the entire width of the highway, but went to the opposite side of the avenue and struck a car in which was Mrs. Mary McPartland of Perry street, who was in conversation with a friend. Murray's car not only collided with the McPartland auto, but climbed on top of the hood of the motionless machine, causing damage to both cars. A report of the crash was sent to police headquarters and Sergeants Patrick Murphy and John Cavanaugh were assigned to investigate. When they found Murray in an intoxicated condition he was arrested.

The other driver was William Peltz, United States Coast Guard and like his fellow-service man, besides being charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, he also was charged with driving without having a license. Peltz was on Williams street and upon passing the intersection of Main street, was given a signal to stop by State Police Officer Donald Johnson, who desired to determine whether Peltz's car equipment was proper. Instead of stopping Peltz continued through Williams street. Officer Johnson gave chase to Peltz and when he caused the driver to stop Peltz was adjudged to be intoxicated and was arrested. When Peltz was stopped he assumed the attitude of a pugilist and starting performing tactics that govern fistiana, but they were of short duration. Peltz was quickly landed in a cell at police headquarters.

There were 28 cases of automobile violation in Groton town court this morning, the offenses being for driving without proper equipment being attached to the automobiles. Some of the drivers were discharged, but in every case where a fine was imposed the fine was $5, with costs annexed of $11.55. In these cases Judge Cornelius C. Costello ordered that $5 of the fine and $7 of the costs be remitted so that all that the offending driver was compelled to pay was $4.55. There were several other cases presented, two of them being for driving while under the influence of liquor. They were Louis Senecal, this city and Edward Fuller, Groton. Both cases were continued a week, for partial testimony was taken, but the state desired to summon other witnesses. Another case of reckless driving was presented and a continuance of a week in this instance was also ordered. Five cases of trespassing upon property of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad were presented and in each case a fined of $1 and costs, the latter amounting to $2.55 was imposed.

John A. Johnson, 242 Ledyard street, was arrested this evening charged with breach of the peace. He is locked up at police headquarters and will be in court tomorrow morning. Johnson had been drinking during the afternoon and when he went home he quarreled with his daughter, Emily, who was entertaining a male acquaintance. Johnson became enraged at his daughter having company and attacked her with a flow of language that was so abusive the young man was forced to leave the house in order to avoid trouble. The daughter was so humiliated that she made complaint to the police and Patrolmen Elwood Bailey and Louis Wheeler who went to the Johnson house arrested Johnson on the disturbance charge; the man was not sufficiently intoxicated to be arrested on that charge, although it was apparent that he had been drin'cing.

Harry Brooks, 5 Mitchell court, was arrested tonight by Patrolman John Sullivan charged with violation of the state traffic laws. The officer was on duty at the corner of Bank and Howard streets and as Brooks approached in his auto he was given a signal to stop. Brooks did not heed the signal and when he failed to stop the officer arrested him.

Thomas F. Morton, of Waterford, who has been a patient at Home Memorial hospital several weeks and where he underwent a serious operation, has so far improved that he was able to return to his home today. It will, however, be several weeks before Mr. Morton fully regains his strength for the ordeal through which he has just passed has sapped his vitality greatly.

The scarlet fever cases in this city do not cause the health authorities any special alarm. There are now seven cases. The two latest reported to Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell are those of Kenneth Lucas, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Lucas, of 23 Waller court and Stephen Wierzorik, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wierzorik, 28 Harrison street. In both cases it was stated that the disease is in a mild form.

Nine cases of whooping cough have been reported to the health department the past week.

A Chevrolet truck, owned by G. F. Radway, proprietor of Radway's Dairy, Broad street, was destroyed by fire Sunday. Fred Dunn, of Fifth avenue, driver of the truck narrowly escaped being severely burned. The truck was driven to the gasoline supply station on the farm and was receiving a supply of fuel when flames from some unaccountable cause, ignited the fumes. The blaze was communicated to the tank, with the result that the gasoline ignited and enveloped the truck. Dunn leaped from the truck and an alarm was rung in from Box 395, Broad street, summoning a half dozen pieces of the city's fire fighting apparatus. The truck was pushed from the service station, but not before the building had been ignited. By the time the firemen arrived the building was in danger of serious damage, but chemicals quickly removed the danger for the fire was speedily extinguished.

UNCASVILLE FARMER DIES—ATTACKED BY VICIOUS COW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 28—Meyer Simenowitz, 67, farmer of Uncasville, died at Home Memorial hospital Sunday from internal injuries which he sustained Saturday when he was attacked by an infuriated cow. Simenowitz was married and besides his wife, is survived by a son, Attorney Samuel Simenowitz, of New York.

Simenowitz went to the pasture of his farm Saturday morning and shortly afterwards the cow plunged at the farmer with the result that Simenowitz was forced against a fence and crushed. The fence gave way and as Simenowitz fell to the ground, the maddened cow fell upon him, inflicting additional injury. Simenowitz did not cause a physician to be summoned until Sunday when he experienced severe pains. When a physician arrived he ordered Simenowitz taken to the hospital, where he died while preparations were being made to operate upon him.

Eugene A. Cook, 53, a flagman in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad many years, died this morning at his home, the Morgan farm, Eastern Point, Groton, after a brief illness. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Albert R. and Embry J. Cook and two daughters, Mrs. Ed L. Gay and Miss Cora E. Cook, all of Groton. Mr. Cook was born in Sidney Center, N. Y., but had resided in Groton for a long time.

Hilding Carlson, Jr., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Carlson, 36 Orchard street, died Saturday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Burial was this afternoon in Jordan cemetery.

Marian Lewis, colored, 33, was in the police court today charged with conducting a house of ill fame. Daniel W. Douglass, 48, white and single; Erma McRae, 23, Negress, Hempstead street; Erma Morris, colored, 32, married and Ethel Daly, 34, Negress, married, were charged with frequenting. All of the cases were continued to the 30th inst. The Lewis woman was held in bail of $250 and the frequenters in bail of $50, each. The lone man and the women were arrested Saturday night when the police swooped down on the resort at 80 Potter street, in the rear of police headquarters. The place has long been a resort for blacks and whites.

Joseph Wilson, former soldier, puglist and railroad employe, was presented on a charge of breach of the peace and carrying a concealed weapon. He was held in bail of $100 for his appearance Monday next. Wilson, who has been arrested many times, but has never been sentenced to jail, was complained against by Mrs. Margaret A. Post, of 20 Crystal avenue. Mrs. Post said that about two weeks ago, Wilson, who is a lodger at the residence of Mrs. Bertha McMoran, Brewer street, assaulted her brutally, also brandished a revolver when he forced his way into her home. Mrs. Post said that she was entertaining several friends and Wilson appeared at the door, intoxicated. She refused Wilson admission to the house and then extinguished the lights. In a few minutes Wilson, who had found a window unlocked and had opened it to get inside the house, appeared in front of Mrs. Post and her guests. He abused Mrs. Post and her friends and after displaying the revolver he struck one of the guests and then attacked and beat Mrs. Post. Wilson's blows bruised Mrs. Post and one tooth was knocked out. The beating Mrs. Post received, she says, kept her confined to her bed five days. Mrs. Post made complaint to the police Sunday and Wilson was arrested by Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh.

Five drunks were in court. Four of them were fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended. The other was sentenced to jail for 10 days, with execution of sentence suspended. This fellow has been before the court many times and but for the fact that his wife and three children need his support he would have served numerous terms in jail.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

Mrs. Rudolph Valentino will be seen the last time tonight in When Love Grows Cold, a story of tangled lives and emotional conflict, at the Strand. With a sterling cast headed by Clive Brooks, Mrs. Valentino steps forth to add to the laurels she has gained in other fields as one of the really talented actresses of the day.

Fighting Hearts with Alberta Vaughn in the leading feminine role, is the first of a series of pictures to be shown at the Strand every Monday and Tuesday, each picture a complete story in itself. It is interesting and amusing.

Breed Theatre

"The most beautiful woman in motion pictures" has become the most popular actress on the screen. The woman is Vilma Banky, whose latest picture, "The Magic Flame," now playing at the Breed.

Miss Banky came to Hollywood less than two years ago, and has appeared in only five pictures. Yet with these five pictures she has endeared herself to millions all over the world.

A short time ago, the New York Daily News ran a contest to determine the most popular motion picture actress. Nearly a million votes were cast and the contest was won by Vilma Banky.

Her charm is so elusive that even F. Scott Fitzgerald, creator of the "flapper," admitted recently that he couldn't define her other than to say that she was "feminine" and, of course "beautiful."

Ronald Colman plays two roles in "The Magic Flame". He is at once the villain and the hero and in the course of the film he wrestles with himself, kills his other self, impersonates his other self and wins the girl from the other Colman.

Mrs. Thaw—Piano Recital

The pianoforte recital to be given by Mrs. Edward Thaw in Slater hall on Wednesday evening, December 14, is certain to arouse great interest in the community at large. As an artist performer, Mrs. Thaw ranks with the foremost woman pianists of today and her recent concert appearances have created a decided position for her in the musical world.

Mrs. Thaw is a pupil of the eminent pedagogue, Theodore Leschitzki, who was probably the most famous of recent great piano teachers. Both Paderewski and Gabrielowitch were confreres of Mrs. Thaw, all exponents of the Leschitzki school. Paderewski studied with none other but this master, and many prominent pianists of today owe some part of their equipment to this same teacher.

Besides her artistic capability Mrs. Thaw possesses an arresting and vivid personality, which combined with the originality of her interpretations, makes her recitals unusually interesting and satisfactory. It is hoped the public will respond, and welcome this artist, especially as it is given complimentary to the Norwich Music association in the interest of local music.

Palace Theatre

A worth while show is on tap at the Palace theatre for the first three days of the week, both vaudeville and picture attractions being above par. On the stage is Gus King's Melody Land, a company of five talented musicians who specialize in syncopation and classical music. There is one member of this act who is a very clever dancer in addition to his musical ability. Other features include Fred Leightner in a comedy skit "In the Hotel Lobby." Burke and Burke, who bill themselves as "Trying to be Funny" and really are. Janet Childs, the singing comedienne and Frank Ladent and Partner in a juggling fantasy described as "A Bagdad Festial" conclude the vaudeville program.

The screen photoplay "The Spotlight" is as the name implies, a story of the stage. Esther Ralston is cast in the leading role with Neil Hamilton playing opposite her. It is a story of real life and love and the problems that life and love bring. Centered around the character of Lizzie Stokes, a stock actress who suddenly finds herself drawn from obscurity to fame through being made a Broadway stage star. The problems that confront her after stardom are not exaggerated in the least.

The screen attraction for Thursday is one that will undoubtedly be remembered for some time to come. Replete with mystery, thrills, excitement and drama "The 13th Hour," should prove ideal entertainment. In the cast are Lionel Barrymore, Napoleon (the police dog) and Jacqueline Gadson.

Broadway Theatre

At the Broadway theatre today and tomorrow a UFA picture that is released by Paramount is holding the spotlight. It is a cinema that was adapted from an operetta that played very successfully in New York at the Century Opera House. Its name, "The Last Waltz" has not been changed. It is a delightfully romantic tale of a Balkan intrigue of love and loyalty.

The leading actor, Willy Fritsch is a star in Europe and he gives many reasons for his holding this high spot in the eyes of the old world. Suzy Vernon who is the female lead, is a French girl who has captivated the continental film lovers to so great a degree, that the mere mention of her name is enough to pack any European theatre.

The story is simply told and the action has no drag at any time. Some of the shots are artistic to the extreme. Most of the outdoor photography was obtained at St. Moritz, the famous winter resort of Switzerland.

More countries are represented in this picture than perhaps any other that has ever been shown on this side of the ocean. Arthur Robison, an American, directed. Charles Whittaker, an Englishman, supervised. Willy Fritsch, a German, has the male lead. The female lead is Mlle. Suzy Vernon, a French girl and the rest of the cast is made up of people from nearly every other country in Europe. This is truly an international picture.

TWO MEN SUFFER BURNS IN FIRE AT PONEMAH CO. TAFTVILLE BARN

Two men were severely burned in a fire which practically destroyed the large horse barn at Taftville owned by the Ponemah Mills Co., late Monday afternoon. The Ponemah Mills fire department, the Taftville fire department and two pieces of apparatus from the local department fought the flames for nearly an hour and a half before the fire was under control. A large quantity of hay in the barn was destroyed.

William Emerson, Thomas Brown and Harold Cady were working on one of the company's motor trucks in the barn during the afternoon and shortly before 3:30 o'clock the truck caught fire from some unknown cause and was almost instantly enveloped in a sheet of flame. The men rushed out and before they could reach a telephone the hay in the barn was flaming.

Hurry calls were sent to the mill fire department and to the Taftville fire department and a call for help from the local department resulted in the despatching of two pieces of apparatus, Engine No. 2 and Squad A from the city. Chief Howard L. Stanton also responded. Several streams of water were played on the flames and the flames were under control about 4:30. Two trucks were destroyed in the fire. The flames spread very rapidly and in a short time the entire building was in flames. All but one section of the barn was destroyed. The eight or 10 horses housed in the barn were all out working at the time the fire started.

Two of the men who were working on the truck, Thomas Brown and Harold Cady, were quite painfully burned. Brown is suffering from burns about the hands and Cady from burns about the hands and face. Both were attended by a physician.

It is alleged that an agreement was entered into between the parties on May 28, 1927, whereby the plaintiffs were to build a swimming pool for the defendants at a price of $775, and also extra work amounting to $187. Chinigo and Thoma allege that they performed all the work to be done on their part, but the defendants have only paid to them the sum of $500, leaving due a balance of $462, which sum, it is claimed, they refuse to pay.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT BROUGHT FOR $2,500

Settlement out of court was effected Monday in the $2,500 damage suit brought by Helen S. Dahinden against Lawrence and Fred Bowers, all of New London. The case was scheduled to be tried before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas Monday.

It was alleged that on the morning of June 11, 1926, the plaintiff was pinned between two automobiles in Church street, New London, when a team of horses owned by the defendants became unmanageable and when the dump wagon to which the horses were hitched locked one of its wheels into one of the parked automobiles, dragging it ahead and into the other machine.

The plaintiff claims that the driver of the team was in fault because of his careless management of the horses and that she was forced to jump between the two machines to get out of the way of the rearing animals. She claimed permanent injuries.

CUT BY BROKEN GLASS WHEN AUTO HIT POLE

Mrs. Frank L. Kimball, 155 Spruce street, was painfully injured Sunday afternoon, when the automobile in which she was riding, with her husband at the wheel, in the Military highway near the submarine base, skidded on the wet road surface and crashed into a telegraph pole. The car was damaged to a considerable extent and Mrs. Kimball received severe lacerations about the face and head from the broken glass of the windshield.

After receiving treatment at the submarine base hospital, she was able to return home. Her husband was not injured.

SUES FOR $5,000 FOR AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES

On a claim for $5,000 damages for injuries in an automobile accident, David Feister of this city has brought suit in the superior court against Henry Ragin of New London doing business at the Norwich Steam Laundry, Inc. The suit is returnable in December.

The plaintiff claims that he was riding as a guest of Henry Hyde, a motor driver for the laundry company, from New London to Norwich on Feb. 2, 1925, when the automobile hit a tree because of the negligent operation by the driver and Feister was severely injured.

A suit between these parties was heard in the superior court recently, resulting in a non-suit being granted upon motion made by the plaintiff. The complaint in this action is different from the preceding case.

U. S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE STRIKES BACK AT CRITICS

President Pierson Maintains That Business Organizations, After Careful Study by Competent Experts, Have Not Only the Right, But the Responsibility to Express Their Mature Judgment on What Appears to Be a Safe Tax Reduction—No Reference Was Made to President Coolidge, Who Has Expressed Displeasure at the Chamber's Efforts to Bring About Revenue Law Changes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—The chamber of commerce of the United States struck back tonight at critics of its tax reduction program.

It avoided, however, any direct reference to President Coolidge, whose displeasure at the organization's efforts to bring about revenue law changes favored by a majority of its membership, was disclosed last week at the white house.

Breaking a silence which officers of the chamber have maintained since the views of Mr. Coolidge became known, Lewis E. Pierson its president, in a formal statement, issued tonight, said:

"When national revenue measures are being considered the chamber of commerce of the United States maintains that business organizations, after careful study by competent experts and after full discussion and after widespread referendum vote have not only the right, but the responsibility to express their mature judgment on what appears to them to be a safe tax reduction.

"Our government is a representative democracy.

"The chamber of commerce of the United States asks both political parties to join in a non-partisan bill for the immediate and adequate reduction of taxes. This will give the country much needed relief from war-time taxes so that industry may be strengthened to meet increasing competition in world markets, to continue employment of wage earners and to enlarge the country's earnings and buying power.

"This is the position of American business clearly shown in the overwhelming vote which was recorded last week. This vote was secured through a referendum among the 1,600 trade associations and chambers of commerce throughout the country with an underlying membership of 850,000 individuals, firms and corporations making up the federation of business represented in the membership of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

"Each member of congress next Monday will receive the usual complete tabulation of the vote of the referendum showing just how each chamber of commerce and trade association voted on each question.

"The national chamber is committed to the following principles of taxation:

"A national expenditure properly planned and controlled by the national budget.

"Statutory requirements for annual reduction of national debt.

"The chamber is opposed to all measures of taxation in excess of these requirements.

"It does not believe that unusual surpluses now should be amassed to be used for debt retirement. From sinking fund requirements of congress alone, the national debt will be reduced in the next 14 years to an amount equal to the reduction in the last eight years. To this figure must be added end-of-the-year surpluses, foreign debt payments, and other items which will go to further reduce the national debt.

"All of the tax reductions and repeals advocated by the chamber would cut our national revenue not to exceed $400,000,000. The last official estimate of the treasury points to a surplus of $455,000,000 on June 30, 1928, after making provisions for statutory requirements for national debt reduction. Therefore, a tax cut of $400,000,000 on the taxes paid in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, would use only $200,000,000, leaving a surplus of at least $255,000,000.

"It is evident that a continuance of the normal increase of business and the growth of earning power of the country will increase return in taxation more than sufficient to care for the full needs of the government in 1929 and thereafter.

"The economy program of the administration which the national chamber strongly supports adds another reason to the belief that the chamber's tax position is sound and practicable.

"The national chamber has always loyally supported the budget. More than once Vice President Dawes when director of the budget, and General Lord the present director, have paid high compliment to the national chamber for its stand in promoting economy and efficiency in the government. x x x

"The national chamber is convinced that the tax program adopted last week by the members of this federation of American business is both sound and practicable and in harmony with the constant progress toward economy and efficiency in government which it has consistently espoused since its inception."

NO SEPARATE TRIAL FOR POWERS HAPGOOD

BOSTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—Two motions presented on behalf of Powers Hapgood of Pittsburgh on trial in superior court here on charges of rioting growing out of Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations, were denied today by Judge Nathaniel Jones.

The first motion requested a trial for Hapgood separately from the other defendants in the Sacco-Vanzetti riot cases on the ground that he is a Harvard graduate and represent a "better element" than some of the other defendants. The second asked that the several complaints against Hapgood be tried separately.

As a result of the court's action Hapgood was placed on trial with Cosmo Carvotta of Boston, a co-defendant.

The previous record for the date was 62 degrees in 1913.

TRACED DETERIORATION OF GEORGE REMUS' MIND

CINCINNATI, Nov. 29—(AP)—Deterioration of George Remus' mind was traced by a witness in his murder trial today to the time he was told Franklin L. Dodge Jr., had assisted in packing for removal the furniture stripped from his showplace home here.

The occasion was when Remus, just released after he had served a penitentiary term for violation of the prohibition law, still clad in the clothing given departing convicts, went to his Cincinnati mansion for a change of apparel.

The witness was Benton S. Oppenheimer, former judge of the court of common pleas here. At the time he represented Remus in a divorce suit which had been brought by the wife he later was to slay.

"Remus passed from room to room, wringing his hands and uttering cries of amazement that he had been treated in that manner," said the judge.

He followed William Mueller, for eight years caretaker at the Remus home to the witness stand.

LITTLE GIRL LED POLICE TO BODY OF TAXI DRIVER

GARDNER, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Led through miles of devious and remote country roads by a seven-year-old girl, police and highway officers this afternoon uncovered the partly buried body of Joseph Markus, 52, taxi driver, in a clump of bushes a short distance from a by-way in Templeton, near the Hubbardston line.

Markus had been shot through the heart at close range and Medical Examiner Dr. Edward A. Sawyer pronounced it a case of murder. Most of the body was covered with two raincoats and a sprinkling of dirt and leaves but the feet were uncovered.

The dead man disappeared yesterday. His pockets were empty of everything except his watch when the body was found and the authorities at present incline to robbery as the motive for the crime.

AMERICANS TO MOVE TO ANCIENT EGYPTIAN CITY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Five thousand American men, women and children plan to move to an ancient Egyptian city by the Nile and prove they can live harmoniously and progressively without benefit of conveniences. This was the announcement made today by Dr. H. Spencer Lewis, national president of the Rosecrucian order, a philosophical cult.

Dr. Lewis declares plans were being made to have the expedition sail late next year.

The city of Tel-El-Amarna, Sun City of Amenhotep the Fourth, founder of the Rosecrucian order, is the site picked for the experiment, Dr. Lewis said. The expedition will contain an approximate even number of men and women, all carefully selected for their physical fitness and devotion to the principles of the teaching under which they are to live.

BLOOD STAINS FIGURE IN THE LILLIENDAHL TRIAL

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Jersey mosquio, famed in song and story for his stiletto stinger, was driven into the legal lists today in defense of the innocence of Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, on trial with Ella Beach for the murder of her aged husband.

Most of today's afternoon session of the murder trial was taken up with a long technical description of the way in which a chemist had determined that tiny stains on the clothing Mrs. Lillendahl wore the day of the killing were human blood.

Most of the stains, the chemist said, were no larger than fly specks and the largest was a quarter of an inch across.

When the testimony was completed, Robert H. McCarter, chief counsel for the widow, rose and faced the witness, Dr. Louis H. Meyers of Atlantic City.

"Did you never yourself," he thundered, "have blood stains on your stockings from mosquito bites?"

"No," the witness replied.

"And you live in Atlantic City?" McCarter sneered and the courtroom crowd broke into laughter at this variation of the Jersey skeeter joke that has convulsed vaudeville audiences for generations.

McCarter made Dr. Meyers, who qualified as an expert over strenuous defense objection, relate in detail just how stains are proved to be human blood. The witness had testified that he had found such stains on Mrs. Lillendahl's dress, her belt, her stockings, her pocketbook and three of five, five dollar bills, that were in the pocket book.

BURGLAR OPERATING IN NORTHWEST WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A burglar whose feline tread and frequent escapes have brought him the newspaper cognomen of the "cat" has fashionable northwest Washington on the qui vive.

Ten days ago he began jimmying locks and prowling about bedrooms, now his career is an endurance contest, with the frazzled nerves of past and prospective victims barely holding their own against his ability to remain uncaptured.

Whether the "cat" is one person with the proverbial multiple lives or several burglars with the formal number, bent on cashing in on the "cat's" publicity campaign, is not of record. Neither does that concern the northwest neighborhood; it is interested only in the "cat's" or "cats" extermination.

Equipped with the tools of the trade, pistol and flashlight, the "cat" has probed drawers, pants pockets and other treasure troves, nearly always with a profit. Once he had to cover his retreat by a shot and another time he tarried to listen to a sermon from a minister-victim, who talked him out of the spoils.

NEW HAMPSHIRE VOTES FOR $3,000,000 BOND ISSUE

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 29.—(AP)—In less than four hours today the New Hampshire legislature in special session passed a bill which will provide funds to repair the damage to highways and bridges in the state resulting from the recent flood. A bond issue of $3,000,000 was authorized and to cover interest and sinking fund on this issue the legislature adopted a gasoline tax of four cents.

This raises the gasoline tax in New Hampshire from three to four cents, placing the levy in this state on the same basis as that of Maine. The additional cent is expected to provide $400,000 a year in revenue, which will pay interest on the bond issue and provide sufficient as sinking fund to retire the loan in eight years.

The expected opposition to the measure failed to materialize and it passed the house of representatives by voice vote afterwards passing in the senate in record time. The legislature convened at 11 o'clock in the forenoon and by 2:40 o'clock in the afternoon the bill had been passed in both chambers. The measure as finally adopted followed exactly the terms of the message with which Governor Huntley N. Spaulding introduced it.

Boston Police Used Guns and Gas Bombs

In Four Hour Spectacular Battle With Inmates of a Disorderly House.

BOSTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—Fifty policemen armed with riot guns, revolvers and tear gas bombs were held at bay for more than four hours today in a spectacular battle with occupants of a three-story brick house in Wellington street in the South End.

The battle, which caused an uproar in the thickly settled district populated largely by Negroes, ended with the capture of two men, both Negroes, and two women, one of whom was white. They were Robert Poindexter and his wife, 30, Negroes, George Cooks, 32, a Negro and a white woman who gave her name as Mrs. [illegible] J. Coyne, of Roxbury.

Brooks had bullet wounds in his neck and was taken to the city hospital, as was Mrs. Poindexter who was suffering from scalp wounds and a lacerated hand, injuries which she said were inflicted by her husband. Patrolman John V. Miller, who volunteered to climb to the roof of the house and drop gas bombs through the skylight, was himself overcome by the fumes and taken to the hospital.

Police who had been called to the house to quell a disturbance were greeted by a volley of shot. Reserves were called out and returned the fire with their riot guns and pistols. The house was riddled with bullets and every window shattered before the exchanges ended with the occupants surrendering. Warrants charging assault with intent to kill were issued against Polite and Brooks, while Polite and his wife also faced an additional complaint of keeping a disorderly house.

500 LIVES WERE LOST IN THE ALGERIAN FLOODS

PARIS, Nov. 29—(AP)—Every new report from Algeria reveals that the floods thought to have taken 500 lives over the week end were much worse than were supposed at first. In addition hard and steady rains continued today to menace the devastated province of Oran.

"The efforts of two generations have been wiped out," said Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior, today after receiving more complete reports of the situation. He estimated material damage at $20,000,000, mostly at Perregaux, Mostaganem and Tenes. Many small villages, however, have been washed away entirely.

The first shock of 25,000,000 cubic yards of water piled up above the Perregaux dam broke it and wiped out nearby railway shops, carrying giant locomotives a distance of 500 yards.

Although reports are still meager it is believed that the whole triangle of territory which has its summit at Mascara and its base between Tenes and Saint Denis is paralyzed. The entire plain today was covered with mud and sand a foot deep and the deaths were still uncounted.

GOV. TRUMBULL'S BIGGEST KICK OUT OF AVIATION

HARTFORD, Nov. 29—(AP)—"The biggest kick," he has received out of aviation in his recent flying, Governor Trumbull revealed today, came a few days ago when he flew with Major Talbot O. Freeman, his first instructor, as a passenger. Major Freeman, who, as commander of the 118th observation squadron first let the governor handle the "stick" of a plane in the air, flew with the governor this time at the latter's request. On landing, at the suggestion of a by-stander, Major Freeman offered Governor Trumbull $5, the usual fee for a brief flight. The governor has made 16 solo flights, but not even his first solo attempt, he said today, gave him the thrill he received from taking Major Freeman aloft as a passenger. Governor Trumbull took his first non-flying passenger on a flight Saturday when Roger Mills, of Bristol flew with him for 20 minutes. Governor Trumbull has recently been elected a director of he Fairchild Aviation corporation.

One Slaying, Three Bombings in Chicago

Bombings Were Attributed to Quarrels of Gangsters Over Bootlegging.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Chicago police charged the war between rival gangsters with responsibility today for one slaying and three bombings.

The body of Carmen Ferro, Chicago, was found on a lonely road near Bensonville, Ill., west of Chicago, a bullet through his head. He carried considerable money which was untouched although marks of identification had been ripped from his clothing.

Police decided that Ferro had been "taken for a ride," shot through the head and his body dumped from a speeding gangster's automobile, although his connection with the gang fight had not been made clear.

Three bombings were all attributed to the quarrel over which gang shall rule gambling, vice and bootlegging. One of the places bombed was a real estate office and soft drink parlor owned by John P. Remus, former state representative. Remus said he refused to buy alcohol from two Italians two weeks ago and attributed the bombing to this. One of the other places bombed was a West Madison street building that had been the target of the gang factions.

"Scarface" Al Capone, head of one of the gang factions who was reported to have fled Chicago with a score of his followers, was reported by the Daily News to have established headquarters in a resort just outside Cook county to which he has summoned his followers for conferences to make plans for keeping him in power.

AL. SMITH TO WRITE ON POLITICAL QUESTIONS

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 29—(AP)—Income from literary work, plus an annual pension of approximately $6,000, will keep the wolf from the doorstep of Governor Alfred E. Smith after he retires from public office.

Friends of the governor let it be known today that the state's chief executive is planning to devote his time as a private citizen to writing articles on political and governmental questions for magazine publication, if, as many democratic leaders confidently believe will happen, Governor Smith should receive the democratic presidential nomination and subsequently be elected, the pension will be paid, but the literary work will be deferred until Mr. Smith's ultimate return to private life.

The governor has made no formal statement regarding his aspirations as a writer, but those who are in his confidence assert that he believes he can serve the people through his published dissertations on public questions, and at the same time, be assured of a comfortable financial return from that source.

When Governor Smith's fourth term expires on Dec. 31, 1928, he will have thirty years in public service, as a city, county or state official.

Besides the pension of $6,000 a year, the governor will have to his credit a reserve of $84,000 in the state retirement fund.

Carillo, who was born in South America, spent most of his life in France as an author, writing both Spanish and French.

One of his books was "The Mystery of the Life and Death of Mata Hari," the beautiful and captivating dancer who was shot as a spy at Vincennes during the war after a trial which caught the interest of all France because of her friendship, actual or alleged, with many men in high places.

Her name was connected with M. Malvy, war time minister, but a colleague, General Messimy later explained that it was he and not Malvy who came under the influence of the dancer's charms.

FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN FOR $3,000,000 FUND FOR DRY REFERENDUM LAUNCHED

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—A financial campaign for $3,000,000 for a prohibition referendum was formally launched by the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment at a dinner tonight attended by New York bankers and business men.

The association's campaign was outlined by its president, Captain William H. Stayton. The meeting, held at the Hotel Astor, was attended by 36 men, who he said represented 25 committees of the association in the New York district.

Approval will be sought at the coming session of congress of a national referendum at the 1928 presidential elections on repeal or modification of the prohibition amendment, he declared, and failing in that the fight will be carried to the individual states.

The $3,000,000 fund, he said, would be needed to circularize 30,000,000 voters of the nation.

Captain Stayton disclosed that simultaneously with the approval of a national referendum the association hopes to offer a solution of the liquor problem submitted by a committee of 50 men and women who have been studying the problem for a year.

This committee, he said, is composed of college presidents, senators, congressmen and industrial leaders, and three sub-committees have been making personal investigations of conditions in Canada, the British Isles and the Scandinavian countries.

He asserted the association is opposed to the return of the saloon and that any solution finally adopted would provide that no liquor be consumed within 100 yards of the place of sale.

Tonight's meeting, he said, would be followed by a similar meeting of senators and representatives in Washington after the convening of congress.

WOULD DOUBLE SALARY AND RE-ELECT COOLIDGE FOR LIFE

Such is the Policy Voted by the Republican Town Committee of Sudbury, Mass.—Its Members See in Calvin Coolidge the Personification of the Mythical "Uncle Sam"—The National Republican Committee is Looking Forward to a Definite Statement by President Coolidge When He Receives Its Members at the White House Next Week

SUDBURY, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Double the salary of President Coolidge and re-elect him for life. This is the policy voted by the first republican town committee in Massachusetts to take action on the candidacy of Mr. Coolidge in 1928.

Undaunted by the coolness recently shown at the White house towards those who are agitating for the renomination of the president, the republican town committee has voted not only to support Coolidge delegates to the republican national convention next year but to promote a life presidency for Mr. Coolidge. The vote was 6 to 1.

Irving A. Priest, Boston banker, who is secretary of the committee, explained the action of the body in this state:

"We have no apologies to make for our zeal in seeking to perpetuate this Massachusetts man in office. Good and sufficient collateral for his zeal lies in the knowledge that in the flesh of Calvin Coolidge has come to life in very fact the long-treasured, long-idealized, mythical Uncle Sam—thin, sharp-featured, grim, deliberate, cool, firm, thrifty, patient, sagacious, tolerant, kind, Christian. It is our fixed purpose to work first and last to consummate this lone instance since General Washington, wherein the presidential office has sought the man."

LOOKING FORWARD TO STATEMENT BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Interest in the selection of a convention city here next week by the republican national committee was overshadowed today by speculation regarding the announcement that President Coolidge contemplates an address to members of the committee when he receives them in the east room of the White house.

The announcement was not accompanied by any indication as to what the president intends to say but the fact that it was made at a regular White house press conference gave weight to the suggestion that his remarks may be of more than passing interest to the public.

Presumably because Mr. Coolidge has maintained unusually close counsel with himself regarding his political plans since he issued his "do not choose" statement in the Black Hills, the committeemen are coming to Washington professing more or less perplexity as to the president's intentions. Although a number of them declared themselves to be so earlier in the fall when they met here at the call of Chairman Butler, Mr. Coolidge did not avail himself of an opportunity to enlighten them at a White house breakfast to which they were invited.

Since then, however, the White house has felt it necessary to repudiate an attempt through the circulation of petitions to force the drafting of him as the republican nominee next year, but whether the apparent inability of the public to make up its mind as to the exact meaning of the Black Hills statement has moved Mr. Coolidge to contemplate some sentimental remarks is something totally in the realm of speculation.

The exact time at which the members of the national committee will be received at the White house still is to be determined, although it probably will be Tuesday. After an executive meeting of the committee Monday the question of a convention city will be taken up by the whole committee Tuesday with a selection Wednesday expected.

Meanwhile a group of cities is waging campaigns for the convention, with San Francisco, Detroit and Cleveland appearing to figure most prominently in the discussions of the committeemen. In addition to selecting a convention location, the committee will decide upon a temporary convention chairman.

VARE CONFIDENT THAT HE WILL BE SEATED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, one of the two men around whom is to revolve one of the most bitter contests in the senate in several years, came to Washington today with an announcement of his entire confidence that he will be seated.

Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, whose right to a senate place also is challenged because of primary campaign expenditures, will arrive in a day or two for conferences with his friends before the conflict begins on the floor with the convening of the 70th congress Monday.

While the two senators-elect will be asked to stand aside when they present themselves for the oath of office, republican leaders are hopeful of an agreement to defer the war of words over their rights to seats until the senate can be reorganized and the way cleared for President Coolidge to send up his annual message Thursday.

Senator-elect Vare said he came to Washington with "the absolute expectation" that he would take the seat "to which the people of the state of Pennsylvania elected me."

PLAN FOR COMMUTING OF FOREIGN BORN CANADIANS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—Arrangement under which it is believed foreign born Canadians now commuting across the border to employment in the United States will be able to adjust themselves to American immigration laws without hardship was announced tonight by the state department after prolonged conferences with the labor department. The situation as it now stands is understood to be satisfactory to the Canadian government.

The new plan calls for the back-dating of applications for immigration visas, required of foreign born Canadians under immigration order No. 36, which becomes effective at midnight tomorrow, to the date of their application for border crossing cards they now hold. The result will be to give this group, in the event they have made application for immigration visas, a degree of priority in the granting of visas and enable them to evade the long waiting list at the bottom of which they would otherwise stand.

Coupled with th's plan for expediting immigration visas for the 1,000 or so individuals involved is the fact that examination by immigration officials at the border under the new order will require considerable time which, it is expected, will permit virtually all of the foreign born Canadians in this class to obtain visas before it is necessaryto deny them entry.

DEVELOPMENTS IN OIL TRIAL CONTEMPT CASES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—As one phase of the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy case closed today with the serving of a contempt citation on Harry F. Sinclair, another developed.

Chairman Norris of the senate judiciary committee, announced he would introduce a resolution into the whole naval oil leasing situation. The committee particularly would try to determine whether any of the profits of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada reached Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior when the Teapot Dome lease was negotiated.

In the conspiracy case which ended recently in a mistrial, the government charged that $230,500 in liberty bonds out of $3,000,000 worth purchased by the Continental company reached Fall through his son-in-law M. T. Everhart of Pueblo, Colo. At the trial Everhart refused to testify on the grounds that to do so might incriminate him.

LINDBERGH MAY ACCOMPANY BYRD ON SOUTH POLE FLIGHT

HARTFORD, Nov. 29—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, first aviator to make a non-stop flight from New Yokr to Paris, will accompany Commander Richard E. SHIPPING BOARD ORDERED SALE OF PACIFIC LINES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Shipping board ordered the sale of three Pacific lines today ending a two month controversy among its members by offering them under two methods of bidding. The lines, the American-Australia-Orient, the American Oriental Mail and the Oregon Oriental Mail, operate 27 ships to the principal ports of the far east.

Under one form of bids the lines may be purchased for a 25 per cent. cash payment, with the balance in ten yearly installments, the ships to be maintained on their present routes for a term of five years.

The alternate plan provides for a cash payment of 10 per cent. with the balance in ten or fifteen yearly installments, the lines to be maintained on their present routes for at least three years. If the purchaser wishes he may then turn the vessels back to the board and the balance due will be cancelled.

Under the second method the lines also may be turned back at the end of any year, if the board is given a six months' notice.

ABATEMENT OF POLITICAL TENSION IN LITHUANIA

KOVNO, Lithuania, Nov. 29—(AP)—Although much uneasiness still prevails here over the friction with Lithuania, the political tension which threatened domestic trouble seems momentarily to have abated.

The social democrats are not hopeful of the results of efforts by Premier Waldemaras to get favorable action by the league of nations council on claims arising out of the boundary dispute with Poland. As Eustace Kairys, leader of the social democratic bloc in parliament and city engineer of Kovno, told the Associated Press today, the premier could only hope for success if he carried a mandate from the whole country whereas the opposition against him is strong.

The socialists would willingly cooperate with the government on broad democratic lines in the opinion of Kairys but otherwise they would prefer to hold aloof. In the event of a pact of Lithuanian independence, however, the socialists would prove as patriotic as any party.

ROSEBROOKS FINED AND GIVEN A SUSPENDED JAIL SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 29—Fred Ward Rosebrooks of this city was fined $250 and given a six months' suspended jail sentence at the criminal session of the Windham county superior court here this afternoon after he had pleaded guilty to driving a motor vehicle in such a manner as to endanger life and limb. The charges of manslaughter and reckless driving were nolled by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin. The case was the aftermath of a collision on upper Jackson street Saturday afternoon, July 3rd, 1926, about 4:30 oclock, in which a truck operated by Rosebrooks crashed into a pleasure car, causing the deaths of Raymond Nye and Jennie M. Nye, both of this city. The attorneys for the accused were William A. King and John Hamilton King. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford was assisted by Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher.

At the opening of the session, the defendant through counsel entered a plea of not guilty. The first witness was John F. Collins, civil engineer, who displayed a map which gave the measurements of the location. An estimate was made that the fatalities took place about 430 feet from the John W. Spencer store at the corner of Bolivia and Jackson streets.

Francis A. Boucher of 230 Jackson street said that he was working on his car in the yard of his home some 1,400 feet from the scene of the accident and about the time of the accident he saw a pleasure car containing four members of the Nye family proceeding in a northerly direction on Jackson street at a slow rate of speed. Shortly afterwards, his attention was attracted by the sound of a fast moving vehicle which proved to be a heavy truck driven by Rosebrooks, going in the same direction. He went to the scene of the accident shortly afterwards and saw that they were the cars that he saw passing.

George W. Spencer of 220 Jackson street, electrician, was coming out of his father's store and saw the truck passing by at a fast rate of speed. He went to the scene after his attention was attracted by the crash. Arthur G. Nye, husband of Jessie Nye, and father of Raymond Nye, who were killed in the collision, said that his wife and son sat in the front seat and that he and his daughter occupied the rear seat, that the car was not traveling over 20 miles an hour, that it was on the right side of the road and that he did not hear any warning signal of the approaching truck. Miss Grace Nye was another witness, saying that the car was jammed against a tree by the impact. Former Selectman Russell A. Andrews of 169 Ash street was of the opinion that the truck was traveling about thirty miles an hour. Miss Nye recalled to the stand, said she overhead a conversation between her father and the accused in which Rosebrooks admitted that he was to blame for the collision. Charles B. Pomeroy of South street testified as the first defense witness as to the character of the accused and that he had always known Rosebrooks as a careful driver. The defendant said that he was 31 years of age and that he was driving a truck for the Willard H. Smith Inc., to the pumping station for a load of ice as the fatality took place. He said that the steering gear would not work and he was traveling at the rate of 15 to 20 miles an hour. He said that the wheel would turn but that the steering gear would not.

Withdrawal of one of the two civil cases scheduled for yesterday was announced, that of Clara G. Bullard vs. Howard R. Bullard, both of Putnam. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant had illegally used money that was in her name in various banks and collected rents.

This morning in police court, Arthur L. Steitz of this city and Edward P. Lyman Jr., of Eagleville were each fined one dollar and costs, amounting to $8.52, by Judge Frank H. Foss for a violation of the motor vehicle laws, in having defective taillights on the cars they were driving November 22nd.

Mrs. Minnie W. Avery who died Monday afternoon at her home in South Windham was highly esteemed in that community where she was ever engaged in humanitarian endeavor and was actively employed whenever possible in any task that was for the welfare of the community. She was born in Norwich, November 3, 1861, a daughter of Charles B. and Mary (Armstrong) Woodworth, but she had resided in South Windham since she was seven years of age. She was united in marriage in January, 1882, to Edward W. Avery who survives her. She was a past matron of Radiant chapter No. 11, O. E. S.

Funeral services for James P. Bath were held in the First Congregational church Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock and Rev. William S. Beard officiated. The services were largely attended and a profusion of floral tributes were in evidence. During the services, the business places of the city were closed. Delegations from the various organizations of which the deceased was a member or with which he was connected were in attendance. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Christopher C. Case, Kenneth N. Hillhouse, James P. Mustard, Harry W. Standish, L. F. Hartson and Harold S. Maine. Avery & Van Zandt were in charge of the arrangements.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Duda Geer was held Tuesday morning from the late home on Walcott street with a high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock, Rev. Paul J. Bartlewski being the celebrant. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance presided at the organ. As the remains were being borne into the edifice, Miss L. Monica McKeon rendered "Nearer My God to Thee"; at the offertory, "Pie Jesu" and as a waiting hymn, "Thy Will Be Done." Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery, a committal service being conducted at the grave by Rev. Father Bartlewski. Killourey Bros. were in charge of the arrangements.

The annual football hop of Windham high school will be held Friday evening in the school building. Edward Saba is chairman in charge of the committee of arrangements for the affair which promises to be one of the social successes of the season.

ROTARY CLUB ENTERTAINS WINDHAM FOOTBALL TEAM

With the 31 players on the squad were their coach, Thomas A. Callaghan and Principal Egbert A. Case, both of whom gave talks. Coach Callaghan was presented with a token by the squad, the presentation being made by Captain Max Heler. The meeting was convened by the president of the club, Richard E. Dodge and the program was in charge of Kenneth N. Hillhouse, chairman of the boys work committee. Shortly after the opening of the session the assemblage stood in reverent memory for James P. NOANK

A large flock of wild geese was flying over the village Monday night, going southward where the sun is shining on both sides of the street. When geese are headed south it means that the good old Indian summer has left and winter wil soon be here. The honking the geese were making meant "We are going where we need no over-coat." One resident of the village who is a good sharp on the weather told his friends that it is to be an open winter, not much snow. He believes in the geese signs. He told that once in 1915, in November, a flock of geese went south and it turned out to be a severe winter, with lots of snow, which stayed on the ground for months. But he is sticking to the open winter prediction this year.

One lobsterman, Capt. Ernest Franche believes in getting ready for next year's lobster season by building his lobster pots now and in the cellar of his home he is hammering away on the pots. Capt. Franche is hard at it. Every year, Capt. Roswell Lamb has been the first one to start work for the next year, ahead of his brother fishermen; but Capt. Franche put one over on his rival Capt. Lamb. Both men had a successful season and can sit on a cracker barel at the corner store and tell the customers how many lobsters were caught in a pot, and how many pots were carted off by a night steamer, and have gone to the bottom of the ocean. The two skippers have nothing to worry about until next spring.

Edward Mahoney has resigned his position as driver with the Tourjee Truck Co.

He thanked them all and Morgan said it is from the members of the Noank Crescents basketball tossers. Flash McDonald said "All together! Three cheers for the newlyweds." Barnard Carson sang a comic song composed by himself. Stretch Morrison told about his trip to Boston in a wagon for a bet of $50. Near Providence a gang of children put the stones to Stretch, which made the horse do the 210 gait. That was in 1919. Mrs. Smith served sandwiches, cake and coffee. The members sang and gave their team cheers. The radio played dance numbers, as Capt. C. Patterson did the black bottom.

Ringing of the bell on the outside of the local mill brought out the mill firemen for a drill this week. Chief Hollis Crowell was on the pumps and at the nozzle were Foreman Neil Roberston and Hoseman Robert Tooker. In 15 seconds water came through the hose. Engineer Alfred Balerstrina saw that the pumps were running all right. A small crowd gathered to see them in action. The girl employes put away their aprons as leader Nonina Colecclus said "Forward march". They marched to the fire escapes and were soon on the ground to safety. It was their drill in case of a fire. Lindy Franklin gave an exhibition of saving a person from a building. He carried Miss Nellie MacCarr down two flights of stairs. The other girls cheered him.

JEWETT CITY

HENRY WALLACE SHOOTS BIG GAME IN MAINE HUNT

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 29—According to letters and cards received in town this week from Henry "Doc" Wallace which was dated at the Suboomook camps, Somerset Co., Maine, he is right in with the big game and has downed his bear.

The "Doc" familiarly known as the dead shot of Lisbon, has had his life's dream realized, and has been hunting big game for three weeks with a party of sportsmen, who invited him to come along.

"One day last week, the weather being warm, a bear was tracked down a ravine, which," as the letter tells, "narrowed and the sides grew steeper, as we followed it up. Soon we came in sight of a vast jam of logs and stumps, filling the whole gorge before us to the height of twenty or thirty feet. Some heavy freshet had lodged them there.

"Following cautiously after the dog, we espied where the bear had gone in between two great pine logs, near the bottom. The hole was about three feet in width and looked as if it might lead back into a pretty roomy cavity. "A dozen charges of shot were fired at the den, but nothing was heard from within. Mr. Durkee, the dog's master, refused to let him go in, although he seemed anxious to, judging from the way he barked and growled around the hole. All attempts at smoking the game out proved a failure, on account of the numerous leaks all about the upper part of the great jam."

The "Doc" always carries his first aid kit, which contains among the various vials and such, a small bottle of chloroform, "handy," he says, "if I had to perform an operation while on some of my hunting trips."

Mr. Durkee had seen chloroform tried on wood chucks and was sure it would do the job.

"A long white birch pole was cut, a rabbit we had shot was tied on the end and its fur saturated with the chloroform. Very cautiously the bait was shoved in, ten, twelve, fifteen feet. Then came a rumble, and a snort from far in, and the pole was jerked sharply. We all ran back a ways and waited, soon all was quiet inside, and the pole lay still. It was now coming on dark, and as one of the party named Palmer, approached the opening and peered in, with a lighted roll of bark held out at arms length, there was a squealing noise as sharp as that of a pig.

"Out burst, not one bear, but two. The doc had his trusty rifle ready and dropped the first one in its tracks; but the other and smaller of the two, escaped down the gorge, and made off into the rapidly darkening woods. The doc says he had 'em doped fast enough but the trouble was, they got up in their sleep."

Gets More Dirt

How Often Should Bobbed Hair Be Shampooed?

As often as a man's, say authorities, that is, about once a week. Use a good soap to banish germs with the dirt—the pine tar in Packer's Tar Soap (the standard shampoo soap for 55 years) is antiseptic. Use two latherings and rinse thoroughly with HOT water. Massage, too, is helpful. You can get Packer's at any good store.

IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT THE NEW FORD CAR

Complete details of the new model will be available this FRIDAY in this city

FRIDAY of this week will unquestionably be one of the most important days in the entire life of the automobile industry. On that day, complete details of the new Ford will be available in this city.

You will be surprised when you get the facts about the new Ford car, for you never have dreamed that such a really fine car could be produced at a low price. As Henry Ford himself says—

"The new Ford car embodies the best results of our experience in making 15,000,000 automobiles. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

The new Ford car is distinctly a new and modern car, designed to meet new and modern conditions. It is more than a new automobile. It is the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

An entirely new car in every respect.

The minute you see it—ride in it—you will realize that it is not a mere refinement of the former model T Ford, but a new car from radiator cap to rear axle! Many features of it are exclusive Ford developments. Some are wholly new in automobile practice. There is nothing quite like it in quality and price.

The new Ford car has unusual beauty of line and color. . . . It has a 40-horsepower engine. . . . It will do 55 and 60 miles an hour with ease and has actually run 65 miles an hour on road tests. . . . It is quiet and smooth-running at all speeds. . . . It is remarkably quick on the get-away. . . . It has specially designed mechanical four-wheel brakes. . . . It has hydraulic shock absorbers. . . . It has a standard, selective gear shift. . . . It is quick and easy to handle in traffic and steady and sure on the open road. . . . It runs 20 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline, depending on your speed. . . . And it has the stamina and reliability that you need for mile-after-mile and year-after-year service.

The new Ford car has exceptional beauty of line and color. It is, in every respect, a new and modern car, designed and created to meet modern conditions.

The new Ford car will sell at a surprisingly low price

When you think of such features as these, you think instinctively of a car costing much more than the new Ford. The low price is as unusual as the appearance and performance of the car itself.

The low prices of the six body types are undoubtedly lower than you thought they would be when you first heard that Ford was making a new car. They are, in fact, lower than we thought they could possibly be when we started to make this car.

We determined to bring new comfort, beauty, speed, safety, economy and reliability within reach of everybody who drives a car, and then forced ourselves to find ways to make the low prices possible.

The new Ford car is the result of years of careful planning. Every part of it has been tested and retested in actual practice. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it is the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the lifetime of the Ford business.

The new Ford has unusual speed and power. It will do 55 and 60 miles an hour with ease and has run 65 miles an hour on road tests.

Some of the features of the new Ford car

In this connection we call your particular attention to the new engine; the new pump, splash and gravity oil system; the multiple dry-disc clutch; the new pump and thermo-syphon cooling system; the new battery, coil and distributor ignition; the low center of gravity and minimum unsprung weight which combine with the hydraulic shock absorbers to make the new Ford such an easy-riding car; the irreversible steering gear, with the column and the housing of the steering gear mechanism welded into a single all-steel unit; the seamless, all-steel torque tube; the new one-piece, welded, steel-spoke wheels; the three-quarters-floating rear axle in a forged-steel housing of exceptional strength; the theft-proof coincidental lock; and the aluminum pistons which were selected after many tests because of their light weight and heat-conducting qualities.

"The new Ford car embodies the best results of our experience in making 15,000,000 automobiles. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

Henry Ford

Steel forgings are used throughout except, of course, for the engine castings. More steel forgings, in fact, are used in the new Ford than in almost any other car, regardless of price.

WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great increase in our own costs. Because we own our own ore mines, coal mines and timber lands and the source of most of our raw materials. Because we make virtually every part used in the new Ford car. Because it is the Ford policy to make a small profit on a large number of cars, rather than a large profit on a small number of cars.

There is nothing like it in quality and price

No other manufacturer can possibly duplicate the new Ford car at the Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do. The public made this business possible. We believe we should share our profits with the public by continually giving greater and greater value for the money.

There are good and substantial reasons, therefore, why the new Ford car is the most unusual value ever offered in a low-price car.

By all means, learn about the new Ford on Friday when it is officially announced in this city. You will know then that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in quality and price.

THE NEXT CONGRESS

Next Monday will mark the opening of the 70th congress and those who have been elected to that body are gradually making their way to Washington to be on hand for the organization. It has every promise of being a session of unusual interest. It will have the customary amount of business but there are a number of big questions to occupy its attention and in addition it is the session preceding the national conventions of the respective parties and that always means plenty of political maneuvering from first to last.

In all probability the democrats will make no determined move to organize the senate, although they might succeed if they tried. They will prefer not to assume such a responsibility at this time, but when it comes to legislation they will display a different attitude although it is known that there is a feeling among many of them that the manner in which they have been playing with the republican insurgents hasn't brought them much satisfaction.

Right at the start it can be expected that the Smith and Vare cases will command close attention. There is a division of views, regardless of politics, which creates much uncertainty as to what will be done or just what course will be pursued.

When it comes to legislation the house proposes to get several of the big bills out of the way before Christmas. It will have to set the revenue bill in motion, which it is ready to do and it will probably be able to express itself in regard to the Mississippi valley flood prevention work. There will also be the deficiency bill to be gotten out of the way and possibly one or two of the appropriation bills can be acted upon.

It is the object of the house to get down to business right away and make the most of its time, but that doesn't necessarily mean that the senate will respond in a similar vein. It is the close party division in that body which is going to make possible most of the fireworks that are to be expected at this session.

This congress, it will be remembered has business hanging over its head which should have been disposed of by the 69th congress and would have but for the filibuster which characterized the closing days. Included therein is the alien property bill providing for the return of property in this country belonging to German nationals and the settling of American claims against Germany.

There will be legislation proposed for the development of various power projects, and in view of the failure of the Geneva conference there will be a call for a new naval programme. Of course much attention is going to be given to farm legislation, while there will be the regular appropriation bills, certain appropriations for projects previously approved and the customary crist of new measures with which every session is faced.

Some idea of what lies ahead can be gauged by the statement of Senator Smoot when he states that he dreads it the most of any session in which he has ever participated.

A REAL DANGER

"Fumes from the exhaust of an automobile or other gasoline engines are poisonous and have often caused death. The danger is due to carbon monoxide, a colorless, odorless gas contained in the fumes. The degree of combustion in the engine has an influence on the amount of carbon monoxide discharged, but even under the best conditions the amount liberated poisons the air to a dangerous degree unless there is abundant ventilation."

Thus reads a warning that has been issued by the District of Columbia health department. It is intended to place such information before motorists that they will avoid running their engines in closed garages. It is nothing new but it is necessary to repeat such a warning at the advent of cold weather each year. That doesn't prevent many from losing their lives but it will if it is heeded. Since death is the quick and certain penalty from disregarding this warning the individual is vitaly cloncerned.

The too frequent cases of sudden death from inhaling this gas tell their own story. They prove all that has been said for the protection of human life. They ought to be warning enough in themselves. Reinforced by other notices concerning the danger, there can be no excuse for the motorists who disregard the efforts of those who are trying to make careless persons be their own life preservers. There is no reason for throwing life away by refusing to be careful.

RUSSIAN PARTICIPATION

At every effort of the league of nations to deal with the question of limitation of armaments it has been pointed out that no progress could be expected because Russia was not represented. This attitude was because there are so many countries next to Russia that they would never think of entering into any disarmament proposition unless Russia did likewise. Thus with Russia free to do as it pleased they were not interested in placing any halters on themselves.

Russia has been brought to a realization of the position which it holds and has agreed to send a delegation to conference on the limitation of armaments at Geneva, and it intends that it will be a strong delegation which will carry with it a Russian programme for world disarmament. Russia doesn't do things by halves and it indicates that it has an ideal scheme. Of course Russia thought the world revolution was about right so there's no assurance that just because Russia will have a scheme it will be eagerly accepted by the other nations. Should such a plan fail it has views on gradual disarmament.

It will be well to have Russia represented at Geneva. It will afford an opportunity for an exchange of views that will be beneficial. It will not be surprising, all things considered, if the conference does not cotton to the idea of being run by Russia. Nevertheless if it will eliminate some of the uncertainties by having Russia participate it is well that the soviet government has consented to be represented.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

It is only a matter of a few days before the 70th congress will be in session and there will be many matters of much importance before it. Had the Geneva conference been successful there would have come up the question of ratifying whatever was done, but in the place of that there will be the usual naval apropriations with some provisions for new construction within the limits permitted by the Washington agreement.

There has been reason this month for feeling that certain efforts have been indirectly made in England for the purpose of influencing the action on naval construction in this country. That had to do with the inquiry concerning the Geneva conference and the announcement that the plans for the building of two of the three 10,000 ton cruisers would be scrapped. This country, however tried the same tactics prior to the Geneva conference but it failed to work. We refrained from a big appropriation but we approved a programme the appropriations for which can come later.

In spite of the desire for a further limitation of armament there is a strong feeling that this country is not called upon to do all the sacrificing of naval construction or of naval vessels. It set a wonderful example at the time of the Washington conference, but it doesn't plan on handicapping itself every time on the scale. At least it doesn't in the sentiment expressed by Chairman Butler of the house naval committee when he says that "America will never again break up ships and property while other nations build."

There is, however, a need for stopping the endless race that is bound to continue between nations in the building of auxiliary naval craft and regulating new construction in accordance with defensive needs with the hope persisting that the time is not far distant when the leading nations can come to an understanding that will be beneficial to all without handicapping or endangering any of them. We are not impressed by the idea of scrapping too much of the first line of defense and neither are we keen for building too much.

OBSTRUCTIVE POLITICS

We do not know what has strired up Senator LaFollette to resume his activities against the idea of a third term, unless it be the increasing evidences of the desire for the renomination and reelection of President Coolidge, but when he undertakes to get congress to adopt a resolution against a third term with the Coolidge demand in mind he is simply involving himself in more obstructive politics.

He makes the statement that he wants to see the precedent established by George Washington maintained. Even if Mr. Coolidge should be renominated and reelected there would be no breaking of the Washington precedent. It is perfectly clear that George Washington was twice elected as president and served two full terms. It was against a third election as president that he spoke.

There is no such situation in the Coolidge case. Because he was vice president at the time of President Harding's death he filled out the term as he is required to by law but he was never elected to the presidency for those 18 months. He has been elected to the presidency just once and should he be elected again it will be only such a reelection as Washington accepted. Washington considered two elective terms enough. Mr. Coolidge has said he does not choose to be president again but if the country wants him it is certainly entitled to have him and without going contrary to the Washington precedent.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Are you giving due attention to the chance to help by getting some of the Christmas seals?

The doctor who speaks of candy as a reducing food probably has reference to the pocketbook.

Football has now been shelved for the winter except for the working out of the All American elevens.

The man on the corner says: If it isn't too late, this might be termed the "Get-a-Look-at-the-Ford" week.

The advice to congress to plunge into tax reduction even though it does invite a deficit is liable to bother the advisor when congress applies it to appropriations as well as tax cutting.

"You're wrong whatever you do," a Massachusetts autoist may think since he would probably have been arrested if he had refused to obey the policeman's order to chase another motorist and because he stepped on it hard enough to get the fellow he has lost his license for speeding.

MAKING UP

There never was a girl so well satisfied as Myranne. In the first place, from the moment she was born her doting parents thought there never had been anything so beautiful; and, strangely enough, she did grow up beautiful in a distinctive way. Every one admired her, waited on her, showered her with pleasant things. She had barely to wish for a thing and, behold, it was hers. Whatever she did was hailed as superlative. At 21 she was a thoroughly selfish little brute, but nobody told her so because she was so lovely to look at—that satisfies most people.

It was tacitly acknowledged that whatever man she designed to marry would be lucky beyond all his deserts. And seventeen masculines dreamed dourly of suicide when she decided to become Mrs. Clinton De Witt.

She had an utter genius for putting the other party of a conflict in the wrong, and that was why Clint, two years after their marriage, was horrified to find within himself a mad desire to cuff Myranne on her shell-like ears as he waited grimly for the pearly tears to overflow and the rose lips to tremble on the occasion of their 416th disagreement.

"You don't care how I look," she wept. "You have no pride in seeing me properly dressed!"

"I know doggone well I can't afford a $200 evening dress now!" Clint repeated for the eighth time. "And you don't need it! Your wardrobe is stuffed full of 'em! None of the other girls have as many gowns as you do! Do be reasonable, Myranne!"

She was in a distracting boudoir outfit looking like a scene from a Cecil De Mille movie and she pushed away her tray of chocolate and toast with superb and dramatic dispair.

"I wish," she said distinctly, "I wish that I'd marired Tom Hobart! He wouldn't have been stingy!"

For a brief interval Clint stared at her. Then he turned and walked out of the room and apparently over the edge of the world, because from that moment he absolutely vanished. For a while people were so busy sympathizing with and cheering up Myranne that she had little time for genuine grief. But between the occasions of being a lovely and distracted wife she did have jabs of conscience. Clint really had been crazy about her and it was her fault he had been driven to—well, nobody knew what he had been driven to.

Detectives and newspapers alike failed to locate the missing young man. And she did not like that "awakened" look in Clint's eyes the moment before he had turned on his heel. It was as though he actually had no use for her and was contemptuous in the bargain; as though he did not admire her in the least.

Drab days followed when Myranne went through dresser drawers and sewed on all of Clint's long-missing buttons, when she let her pretty gowns hand in the wardrobe unused, when she grew thin and forgot her powder and rouge. She went nowhere because she did not dare leave the vicinity of the telephone. A call might come any time. She could do nothing until Clint had been located and she had made that admiring look return to his eyes. Without it she was lost—bewildered.

They found him a great deal later. Out in a foreign district of the city on business, Clint had been knocked down by a truck and the driver, frightened, had taken the unconscious man to his own home, fearing the law. For weeks Clint had not been himself, but when he did recover under the ministrations of the side-street doctor he came home.

He unlocked his front door and surveyed Myranne, who sat listlessly in one corner of the divan—the corner nearest the telephone. She looked up at him unbelievingly without moving as he stood in the doorway.

"Well," he said, his mood a hangover of the miserable weeks he had endured a cracked skull and shattered memory. "I'm sorry to upset any matrimonial plans you may have, but here I am again! What'll we do about it?"

Myranne completely forgot the look of admiration she had desired. She forgot her weeks of mental anguish, her own injury. She even overlooked the roughness of his greeting and, with arms outstretched, bore down upon him, laughing, crying.

"Clint, Clint!" she cried. "My poor Clint! You look so ill, so tired! Never mind where you've been—you're here, your're home again! Oh, Clint!"

"Migosh," Clint De Witt murmured shakily a few minutes later, trying manlike to gloss over emotion, "why, I believe you really do love me, after all, Myranne! Your face looks like the deuce and you don't seem to mind!"

"I don't mind anything!" Myranne cried, bending close to him. "Now that you're back I don't even care whether you like me or not! Just a few things really matter—and I've discovered what some of them are!" —Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

HELPLESS CRIPPLE MADE HAPPY

By W. W. Keen, M. D. Philadelphia, Pa., Member Gorgas Memorial.

A 10-year old boy who was born defective became an inmate of the Philadelphia Home for Incurables about twenty-five years ago. He had a serious spinal malformation, was ruptured on both sides, and when he sat on a chair his little spindling, undeveloped legs hung flabbily, motionless, cold and useless fro mthe knee down. They were impediments rather than helps to his activity.

After looking him over very carefully I decided upon what might be called a surgical campaign for his restoration to an active life. It required a year.

First, I operated on his back. After waiting a suitable time for him to recover from the shock of this operation, I operated on the rupture on one side. When he had recovered from that, the rupture on the other side was attended to. Then, after a suitable interval, I amputated one leg at the knee. Again, after a considerable interval for thorough recovery, I amputated the other leg at the knee. Finally his alterations and repairs had been finished, and a friend provided him with artificial legs. He became accustomed to them in time, and was able to run races with other children and climb trees up to the topmost branch that was strong enough to bear his weight.

His name, from the fact of his being the seventh child in the family, was Septimus. His other name I never knew; it was not necessary, for there has been but one Septimus in my whole long surgical experience.

Modern surgery opened the door of happiness to this poor cripple, apparently condemned from birth to lifelong immobility, for he could never have used crutches.

The Discovery That Brought Peace of Mind!

Corrects the Chemistry that Make One's Pores Offend

Do you know why thousands of people who never have to take a laxative, do eat a candy cascaret now and then?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It pervents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarize the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every drugstore has for 10c and 25c.

"IT WAS YEARS before I knew the one best way to conquer sluggishness. Now, I can do so with the comfortable feeling that I'm removing all taint to perspiration, too. That's the big virtue I see in the candy laxative—

Buster Bear Has A Sudden Change of Mind

The wise their plans will so arrange
That they are subject to a change.
—Buster Bear.

There is nothing obstinate about Buster Bear. He is not foolish enough to think that because he has made up his mind to a certain thing he cannot change his mind. Buster changes his mind whenever it becomes necessary or seems to him wise to do so.

That squalling little bear up in the treetop made him both angry and hungry. He didn't know that Cubby was his own son. All he knew was that Cubby was a nice little bear, tender and just the thing for a nice meal before going to sleep for the winter. To be sure, it was quite an effort to climb that tree. But good things usually require an effort. They wouldn't be good if they were not worth an effort. So Buster made up his mind that there was nothing for it but to climb that tree.

Now I suppose it seems a very dreadful thing to you that Buster Bear should even think of eating a little bear, but such things are not so dreadful among the little people of the Green Forest. You see, he didn't think of that little bear as a bear at all. He just thought of him as fresh meat. It was all because Cubby was so small. Had he been a little bigger Buster wouldn't have given him another thought.

Now all this time Cubby was bawling as only a little bear can bawl. He couldn't read Buster Bear's thoughts, but he could read Buster's actions. He wanted his mother. No little bear ever wanted his mother more than Cubby wanted his mother right then. He had a feeling that if only Mother Bear would come all would be well. So up in the top of the tree he clung with might and main and bawled with might and main. He didn't look down to see what Buster Bear was doing. If he had he would have seen a surprising change come over Buster. Really, it was a change of mind. One instant Buster was all set to climb that tree. Just one look at him would have told you that his mind was made up to have tender cub for dinner. The next instant he had turned and was silently moving away from that tree, looking back over his shoulder rather anxiously and taking the greatest care to make no noise, despite his hurry. Could you have seen him you would have known instantly that he didn't want a cub dinner that all he wanted was to get away from there as quickly as he could.

What was it all about? Well, crashing through the woods came another bir bear. It was Mother Bear! Her little eyes glowed red. Her lips were drawn back, showing her teeth. She didn't care anything about moving quietly. All she thought about was getting to that tree and getting there in a hurry. Buster Bear had heard her coming and he was safely out of sight before she got there. He had no desire at all to meet Mother Bear when she looked like that.

Now all this time Cubby was bawling as only a little bear can bawu

At the foot of the tree she glared this way and glared that way, and such an ugly growl as came out of her throat. Then she looked up in the tree. Already a small bear was scrambling down as only a small bear can scramble. Cubby knew he probably would be spanked, but the way he felt just then no spanking could make him feel anything but joyful.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rochester's Action.

Mr. Editor: Now that we have pronounced a feast-ful farewell to the Thanksgiving turkey and have not quite opened the door wide to Santa Clause, I am asking small space to say that Rochester has lately returned to reason; for on last election day, November 8th, just a few weeks back, the people of Rochester settled the vexing question of standard time, or the so-called daylight-saving time. By more than 5,000 votes Rochester folk decided to stay by standard time hereafter. Their neighbor, Syracuse, came back to sanity on the same question a year ago. It seems that both of these cities are located on a great railway system and have their contributions to the United States mail carried in closed cars—not in open trucks.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

SELECTMAN SAYS TOWN AND CITY ARE AT LIMIT IN BONDED DEBT

First Selectman William S. Murray gave a very instructive talk upon the finances of the town when he spoke Tuesday evening before the membership meeting of the Arcanum club which followed a supper which was served at 6:30 at the club house.

Selectman Murray was presented to the club members by President Tyler D. Guy, who reminded his audience that the selectman was now in his third term in that office to which he had been elected by an almost unprecedented majority and the club president commended the administration of town affairs by the selectman.

In opening his talk, Mr. Murray mentioned that the town has an area of 26.3 square miles and a population of 29,285, according to the 1920 census, which is now estimated at 33,000. He went on to speak of the different elective and appointive officers who constitute the town officials and took up the financial record of the year up to Sept. 15, 1927. The grand list of the town was $22,725,739, on which the 26 mill tax was estimated to raise $590,869.21. Practically all of that sum was spent and of the total amount there was $145,806.97 expended on orders through the selectmen's office, amounting to about 6 1-2 mills.

The selectman then detailed payments which are made but over which the selectmen have no control as to the way the money is expended.

Outside of Selectmen's Office.

The town paid to the city in June the lump sum of $23,000 for the town's share in taking care of 42 miles of roads in the city, and $30,000 was appropriated for the care of the 76 miles of town highways, purchasing the equipment and paying for all care. To the county commissioners the sum of $15,443.75 was paid, this being a tax levied on the town by the county. A tax was paid to the state amounting to $24,002.13, in addition to $5,000 for the support of the national guard. The sum of $4,500 was paid to the trustees of the Otis library. This was raised to $6,500 by vote of the town meeting this year. For educational purposes there was expended $290,748.92 for the public schools, besides $67,500 to the Norwich Free Academy, $10,500 for medical inspections in the schools and $300 for transportation to the Putnam trade school. This makes a total of $369,048.92 for educational purposes and a grand total of $440,994.80 of money from the town which is expended outside of the board of selectmen's office, almost 19 1-2 mills, Mr. Murray said.

The town spent for charity purposes, for the poor and indigent and for neglected children the sum of $37,407.03 but collected back about $7,000. Of the total amount there was $11,802.43 for insane paupers alone at the Norwich and Middletown asylums, and $1,752.11 for tuberculosis patients. When patients in the state tuberculosis sanatoriums cannot pay their bills, officials of the institution do not allow them to stay, said Mr. Murray, but the insane patients have to be kept.

For the almshouse expenses there was an appropriation of $10,000 but the net cost was $7,754.26 for the over 45 inmates. The average cost is $4 a week, which provides them with food, clothing and tobacco.

There was $6,210.76 expended for aid of indigent widows with children under 16 years old. There are 31 widows receiving such help. They must be widows whose husbands were citizens of the United States, not aliens.

Trees and Lights.

There had been $1,500 expended under the personal supervision of the selectman for the care of trees. With this it had been possible to trim and treat 134 trees along the highways and also some trees along the state aid roads, but these latter trees will be no longer under the care of the town but of the state highway department. Spray treatment had also been given to 136 elms to preserve them from the attacks of insects.

For street lighting the town has a monthly bill of $627.33, which will be larger because of the new lights that have been voted. There are 245 bug lights, ten arc lights of 600 candle power and 15 incandescent lights.

Bonded Debt of Town.

The total gross bonded debt of the town, Mr. Murray said, was $699,801.41, with $85,252.03 due on rate bills for 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926 in uncollected taxes, 1926 personal tax and cash in hands of treasurer and sinking fund, leaving a net debt of $614,049.38.

All the bonded debt is at 4 1-2 per cent. It is made up of the following items: Elizabeth street school house bonds dated March 15th, 1923, for $259,000.00, maturing $10,000 annually March 15th, 1924 to 1948, $219,100; court house bonds refunded January 1st, 1925, for $115,000.00, maturing $5,000 annually January 1st, 1926 to 1948, $105,000; new school house bonds, Bishop school, dated May 15th, 1925, for $100,000, maturing $5,000 annually from May 15th, 1926, to May 15th, 1945, $90,000; town deposit fund for public school, $13,301.41; town order for Gallows Hill road improvement, $22,000; new school house bonds, Huntington school, Norwich Town, dated Aug. 1, 1927, maturing $5,000 annually from 1930, $225,000; town order for Laurel Hill bridge, $25,000.

Regarding the Gallows Hill road note, Mr. Murray said he had just received from the state a check for $5,250 towards this and the town would apply enough more to reduce the note to $15,000. This road had been a good investment and there is no further maintenance cost on the town.

The town's total grand list, the selectman said, is $29,814,565, which includes $6,950,161 of exempt property, and the town debt is now 2.7 per cent. of the taxable property. We have reached the limit of borrowing from a bond standpoint. The total debt of city and town is now $1,500,000, which does not include the gas or the water departments and neither city nor town, he said, is in a position to raise any more money on bond issues until the grand list shows a substantial increase. If it becomes necessary to build any more school houses we could not float bonds to do so, he declared. It would show much better if we could increase our assessment figures and cut our tax in two.

Selectman Murray was warmly applauded both before he spoke and when he had concluded.

For the supper hour, Earl Taggart was the song leader and C. E. Fitch was at the piano. The inviting menu served included oyster chowder, celery, pickles, rolls, pie, cheese, coffee and cigars.

MRS. HULL'S $300,000 SUITS WITHDRAWN BEFORE TRIAL

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 29—(AP)—Two malicious prosecution actions, brought by Mrs. Ellen Hull, widow of Hadlai Hull, former state attorney for New London county, against Sage, Allen and company, Hartford department store, and Edward N. Allen, president of the company, were withdrawn from the docket today shortly before they came to trial.

Mrs. Hull sought damages of $250,000 from the company, and $50,000 from Allen.

Neither Arthur M. Brown, present state's attorney for New London county and co-counsel with Benjamin D. Winner for Mrs. Hull nor Joseph F. Berry, of Hartford, counsel for the company, would state the terms of the settlement other than that they are satisfactory to all concerned. Although the opinion prevailed that a monetary settlement had been made, counsel refused to confirm this.

The actions were brought as the result of the arrest of Mrs. Hull in the Sage, Allen store and the preferring of charges of shoplifting against her. The charges were subsequently nolled in Hartford police court. According to Mrs. Hull, she had a charge account at the Sage-Allen store, and was shopping in there two years ago, going from counter to counter. She picked up some articles she wished to purchase, it was claimed, and had carried them to another counter, when she was taken into a rear room by operatives and ordered arrested.

The false arrest actions were started in New London county, but were brought here on a change of venue because of apprehension that the prestige of the plaintiff would influence the jury.

CATHOLIC WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS SUCCESSFUL SALE

The Catholic Woman's club of St. Patrick's parish, Mrs. Nelson C. Disco president, held a highly successful holiday sale and lunch, Tuesday from 11:30 to 6, on the second floor of the White Star clothing company store, 147-153 Main street. The space was generously donated by Mrs. Lena I. Rabinovitch, who aided the charitable object of the sale in every way, as this club works for the benefit of the poor of the parish.

Tables were provided for the sale of cake, aprons, useful and novel articles in needlework and home-made candy.

From 11:30 until 2, at tables prettily decorated with red candles, yuletide napkins, etc., the club committee served a lunch of chicken salad, cheese, chicken, ham and tuna-fish sandwiches, pie and coffee. Throughout the afternoon, sandwiches, cake and tea were served. There was a big patronage, the results being very satisfactory.

Mrs. John W. Brassil was general chairman for Mrs. Disco. In charge of the domestic table was Mrs. George H. Roberts, assisted by Mrs. Peter Dansereau, Mrs. Patrick M. Coleman, Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mrs. J. B. Caron. The cake and candy table was under the supervision of Mrs. Mary McCarthy, who was assisted by Mrs. Dennis J. Hayes, Mrs. Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, and Mrs. John C. Cantlin. Serving the lunch were Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, Mrs. James J. Dutton and Mrs. William J. Farrell. The same committee looked after the tea tables during the afternoon.

At the close of the day a handsome football went to Arthur E. Boyer, Jr., of Orchard street and a daintily dressed doll to Catherine O'Neill, of Slater avenue.

The membership of the club co-operated loyally with the president and the chairman of each of the departments, so that the donations were most liberal and the tables were practically sold out early in the afternoon.

PIANO PUPILS HEARD IN INFORMAL RECEPTION

The second of the informal recitals of Miss Margaret Suck's piano class took place Tuesday afternoon at the Norwich private day school. The young players showed a great interest in each other's progress and each one contributed creditably to the pleasure of the little event. Tone and technique showed considerable improvement in each one of the players, who offered technical exercises, scales, studies and various selections by well known composers.

Several pupils had brought a surprise piece to their teacher, being a composition selected and practiced without any help. Little Charlotte Disco surprised with "The Maiden's Prayer."

Those taking part in the recital were Susanne Higgins, Marietta Vignot, Beatrice Eggleton, Evelyn Burbeck, Janet Norton, June Roberts, Mary Elizabeth Pullen, Louise Pullen, Charlotte Disco and Charles Maples.

These recitals are usually exercises for the benefit of the pupils, designed to teach appreciation of music besides the practice they offer for playing before an audience.

The machine at the time Ainsworth, an employe of Rosseau, was driving it bore the registration number SX-3032. Ainsworth was released on bonds of $200 for his appearance in the city court this (Wednesday) morning.

STORRS CONTEST HENS PROMISE GOOD RACE

There seems to be no stopping these pullets entered in the seventeenth Storrs laying contest, and during the third week they stepped on the gas a little harder to hit a 47.9 per cent. production. This is the best third week score ever made at Storrs, and it speaks well for the quality of the birds in competition. White leghorns have already passed the 50 per cent. mark, and the White Rock and Rhode Island Red classes, both of which are hovering around the 47 per cent. post, give every indication of doing 50 or better within a short time. The keener the competition the more interesting the race, a statement that applies equally well to eggs, autos and airplanes. All indications point to the keenest of competition as the present trial goes into its fourth week, competition that is hotter than anything experienced in previous egg races at Storrs. May the good work continue, and may the best pen win is the sentiment of the Storrs contest management.

The 1,400 contest pullets celebrated their third week at Storrs by laying an even 4,700 eggs, which as already mentioned, is a production of approximately 48 per cent. This is 166 eggs more than the lay for the previous week, and 328 eggs more than the production for the corresponding week a year ago. Total eggs laid to the end of the third week are 12,873 in number, which gives an average of nine eggs to each pullet in the contest.

A batting average of 900 is considered fair in any league, and likewise an egg production of 90 per cent. for the third week in November is worthwhile. Those in doubt should ask Harry Burns, of Millington, Mich., whose ten White Leghorns shelled out 63 out of a possible 70 eggs last week to lay at a 90 per cent. rate. Needless to say, these ten pullets from Michigan headed the week's honor roll at Storrs. It was no walkaway, however, for another pen of White Leghorns owned by Alfred J. O'Donovan from Winsted, Conn., trailed right along at close quarters to lay 61 eggs and place second for the week. This pen, incidentally, leads all others at Storrs in the matter of total production. Egg scores of 59, 62 and 61 eggs for the first three weeks, totalling 182 eggs, explains how and why these Connecticut Leghorns are out in front. Another pen of White Leghorns owned by Alfred J. O'donovan from Katonah, N. Y., placed third to the week with a score of 58 eggs. White Rocks entered by E. A. Hirt from South Weymouth, Mass., finished fourth with a production of 55 eggs.

A number of changes took place among the leading pens during the third week. In the White Leghorn division, Harry Burns' entry climbed past several other pens to land in fourth position. The State College of Washington entry from Pullman, Wash., dropped from fourth to fifth place, and the entry of Bournedale Farms, of Millerton, N. Y., moved up to sixth position, passing the pens owned by Charter Bros., of Stafford Springs, Conn., and Tom Barran, of Catforth, Eng. In the Rhode Island Red classification, the entry of Charlescote Farm, of Sherborn, Mass., moved into third position, passing pens owned by Zephraim LaBelle, of Ballouville, Conn., and the Globus Poultry Farm, of Attleboro, Mass.

Father Time has tripped another football season and sent it sprawling into oblivion.

Now is the time for all good men and true to come forward with their All-teams.

The Bulletin presents its selections today from the six leading teams of this section. This unofficial conference, commonly known as the "Big Six" includes Westerly High of Westerly, R. I., Stonington High, Bulkeley High of New London, Chapman Tech of New London, Windham High of Willimantic and Norwich Free Academy.

Five Academy men have been named on the first team with Bulkeley and Stonington placing two and Windham and Westerly one each. The second team is made up of three each from Windham and the Academy, two Westerly men and one each from Stonington, Bulkeley and Chapman Tech. Twelve names are submitted for honorable mention.

Out of some 125 players on the squads of these high schools it is no easy task to single out eleven men and call them the best. The above boys have been chosen after personal observations, scrutiny of records, chats with visiting writers and probably, by the best manner, after obtaining opinions from the yelling side-line crowd, the boys that know their heroes.

In making the selections it was borne in mind that the team or teams were not to be a bunch of good football players that could probably lick anything their weight but which were placed out of position. These choices, as far as possible are for the best quarterback, the best tackle, etc. That is, the above selections are intended more as an honor roll and not as the best eleven men that would be selected to go out and battle for the honor of the "Big Six" this afternoon.

Johnny Greene of the Academy and Ellis of Bulkeley are named for first team ends. Both boys are probably better known for their baseball ability (Greene being pitcher-outfield for the state champions and Ellis a capable outfielder for the Whalers) but when it comes to the grid game we think that they are the class of the "Big Six". Greene, although handicapped by an early season injury had come strong until forced out again in the latter part of the year by illness. He was better than in 1926 and that is saying something. Directly, he won two games for the Red and White, those with Wilby and Windham by receiving forwards while his work in all the rest was spectacular. His down the field play under none too well punts helped the Academy a lot for nine times out of ten it was he who was standing there waiting for the opponent to make the catch. And when he did Greene sent him down to stay. Probably the fleetest football man in this section Greene used this speed to real advantage. Ellis was a bright light in a dull Bulkeley season. Ever alert, this boy was a big factor in keeping the plucky Orange and Black machine in there fighting against the leading teams of the state. He scored 13 of the 13 points that his team manufactured this year.

Kahn, another Academy veteran and Dimock of Stonington, who also has experience under his belt put this experience to good use during the season and they seem practically certain of recognition from all sides for the tackle berths. Both played great games and that about sums up their work.

The guards selections will probably cause great surprise. Two comparative newcomers are named, Mish of the Academy and Hogan of Westerly. Both had their first year of varsity football and both came through with flying colors. Hogan was a large part of that fighting inexperienced Westerly team while Mish was the best guard we have seen this year. His knack at recovering fumbles, added to plenty of hard tackles helped the Red and White greatly during the year.

Cella, the Stonington captain, showed a consistently even game and his work greatly helped the Brown and White to its most successful season in years. Stonington's chief offensive, Cowan's line breaking, was helped along quite a bit by his play.

Saba of Windham is way above the rest of the quarterbacks.

He was good at all things at which a quarter should be good and although not overly spectacular, he seemed to be several touchdowns ahead of the pack.

Harry McGlone and Frank Locke are the favored halfbacks. McGlone left handed forward passes for much of the Academy's offense and his real value was only demonstrated after a broken collar bone cut him down in the Bulkeley game. Since that time, when the McGlone-Greene combination was broken up, the Academy seemed to slump, losing the next and last two games besides getting only a disappointing tie with the Orange and Black. McGlone was also as good an off-tackle dasher that the "Big Six" possessed. Once loose of the scrimmage line it was some job to bring him down. Locke of Bulkeley gets the other halfback post mainly because of his wonderful right toe. His punting formed much of Bulkeley's offensive although his defense play and ball-carrying ability were above the usual run of these high schools this year. Jackie Marks, the Academy captain procured a strangle-hold on the fullback post early in the season and as the games rolled by only seemed to strengthen his hold. He backed a none too formidable line remarkably well while he smashed the line and skirted the ends with almost equal ability.

The second team finds eleven men, for the most part lacking in but some small thing to keep them off the first selection while those receiving honorable mention were not far below these second team boys. A few of the seconds have been shifted about. Heller, a good man had to be placed so that he is at quarter instead of his usual fullback post.

MAY ORGANIZE HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE AT CONFERENCE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The annual midwinter meeting of the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic conference will take place December 17, at the Graduate club in New Haven, it was announced today by Walter B. Spencer, president of the conference and principal of the Commercial High school, New Haven.

A majority of the high schools in the state will be represented at the meeting and dates will be set for the annual swimming and tennis tournaments conducted by the conference. The swimming tourney will be staged in the spring at the Wilby high school in Waterbury, while Dr. Arnolds School, of gymnatics, New Haven, will be the scene of the tennis tournament.

It is also possible that action may be taken at the meeting that will lead to the formation of a Class A High school athletic league.

As in former years it is expected that the conference will maintain its usual "hands off" policy on the annual and perplexing question as to what class a high school in Connecticut on the basis of its record deserves to be given the state scholastic football championship.

LANE ACCEPTS INVITATION TO JOIN ALL-EAST TEAM

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 29—(AP)—Myles Lane, star Dartmouth halfback and leading individual point scorer of intercollegiate ranks, announced tonight that he had accepted the invitation to play with the all-eastern eleven in the contest against an all-western team at San Francisco, December 26.

Lane who is captain of the Dartmouth hockey team, had feared that he would be unable to make the transcontinental trip on account of the McGill game at Madison Square Garden, one of the most important on the Dartmouth hockey schedule, January 4. He has made plans, however, to leave Hanover, December 14, and after playing in the charity game, to depart from San Francisco, December 27, arriving in New York in ample time for the McGill game.

The Dartmouth star will be obliged to forego the Christmas vacation practice of the green hockey squad at Lake Placid. The Dartmouth Christmas vacation will begin Dec. 16, and Lane said he expected the dean's office would make no objection to his departure two days earlier that he might make the trip to California.

NO MAJOR LEAGUE OWNERSHIP IN AM. A.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—(AP)—The American association is going to close the door to major league ownership of its clubs.

President Thomas J. Hickey said tonight the club owners were unanimous in this decision and legislation barring the American or National league clubs from owning or controlling franchises in the American association would be adopted at the meeting to be held in Dallas, Texas, Saturday.

ALL-EASTERN ELEVEN PRACTICALLY COMPLETE

WASHINGTON, Pennsylvania, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Coach Andy Kerr, of Washington and Jefferson college, said here today that nine college football players had accepted invitations to join the All-Eastern eleven for the east-west charity game at San Francisco on Dec. 26. He said two other eastern stars were expected to accept and that others were expected to be heard from within a few days.

Kerr said invitations had been accepted by Bruce Caldwell, Yale halfback, who was declared ineligible for the Yale varsity; Bob Reitsch, captain and center of the Illinois eleven; Glenn Presnell, halfback, Ray Howell, fullback and Ray Rendels, tackle, of Nebraska; Ray Baer, Michigan guard, and Bill Amos, fullback, Frank Pauley, guard, and Jap Douds, tackle, of Washington and Jefferson.

Kerr said Myles Lane, Dartmouth halfback and Dwight Fishwick, Yale end, were "reasonably certain" to join the squad.

The coach of the all-eastern squad he was confident the team would be one of the greatest football teams ever assembled, and much stronger than the one taken to San Francisco in 1926. He said the squad probably would assemble in Chicago and leave for California in the middle of December.

BASEBALL WRITERS NAME ALL-STAR MAJOR TEAM

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A 1927 all-star major league team, based on the votes of 168 members of the Baseball writers' association of America, was announced today by the Sporting News National baseball newspaper published here.

One of the most interesting contests was for second base. Rogers Hornsby, of the Giants, nosed out Frankie Frisch, of the Cardinals, for whom he was traded a year ago, by a close margin. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, and Pie Traynor, of the Pirates, were stand-outs. Ruth gained the majority of votes for both right and left fields but was placed in the latter position, giving Paul Waner, of the Pirates, the right field honors. Here is the team.

Centerfield: Al Harry Simmons, Athletics.

Right field: Paul G. Waner, Pirates.

Third base: Harold Traynor, Pirates.

Shortstop: Travis Jackson, Giants.

Second base: Rogers Hornsby, Giants.

First base: Henry Louis Gehrig, Yankees.

Catcher: Charles Leo Hartnett, Cubs.

Pitchers: Herbert J. Pennock, Yankees; Charles Root, Cubs, and Theodore A. Lyons, White Sox.

A. A. U. GIVES SANCTION FOR PASTIME AMATEURS

Matchmakers Jim Quinn and Jackie Burns for the Pastime A. C. of this city returned Tuesday after a trip to Meriden and Middletown in the interests of the club in putting on an amateur show at the Olympic hall on Friday evening. The recent agitation of the amateurs by Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue of New London and the Amateur Athletic association regarding amateur bouts left the Pastime A. C. without a chance of securing boxers who were members of the A. A. U.

The A. A. U. recently issued an edict saying that all amateur boxers registered with the A. A. U. would be disqualified if they boxed at shows that did not have the A. A. U. sanction. Mr. Burns and Mr. Quinn immediately got busy and saw Mark Dunn of Middletown, representative of the A. A. U. for this district, and secured his sanction of the bouts on Friday night. Many of the local boxers are members of the A. A. U. and would have been unable to box for the local promoters. An A. A. U. inspector will be present at the local bouts to see that everything is conducted along A. A. U. rules.

The Pastime A. C. is anxious to become affiliated with the A. A. U. but it is understood that there is opposition to this from some circles in this district.

TUNNEY SERVED PAPERS IN SUIT OF MAX HOFF

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, world heavyweight champion, has been served with papers in the suit of Max "Boo Boo" Hoff, Philadelphia sportsman, the New York American will say tomorrow. Hoff claims that under a contract entered into with Tunney and his manager, Billy Gibson, on the eve of the Marine's first battle with Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia, he is entitled to 20 per cent. of Tunney's ring earnings.

Hoff's claims, involving a loan said to amount to $50,000, were made the subject of Dempsey's spectacular "open letter" charges shortly before Tunney's title defense against the former champion in Chicago this fall. In a statement published over his signature, Dempsey charged that Hoff's contract called for a 20 per cent. "cut" in Tunney's earnings in case the Marine won the title. Tunney would not be called upon to repay the debt if he lost, Dempsey alleged. Hoff is accepted as a power in Philadelphia boxing circles.

In accordance with legal procedure, Tunney must file an answer to Hoff's complaint within 20 days.

FIVE CHURCHES REPRESENTED AT LEAGUE MEETING

Five churches were represented at the meeting of the Church basketball league planned by the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening. Little business was done as more members are expected at the next meeting to be held Tuesday evening, Dec. 6. The following churches had representatives last night: Central Baptist both for the senior and junior leagues, First Baptist for both leagues, Brothers of Joseph, for both leagues, Park Congregational for the junior league and Taftville Congregational for the senior league.

There is still room for at least two more teams in each league. The schedules are expected to be drawn up at the meeting next week at which time it is expected to be definitely decided as to the proportions of the loops. Lists of players and rules to govern the league are also to be presented on that date.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE TO HOLD MEETING FRIDAY

The second meeting of the Norwich Industrial basketball league has been called for Friday evening, Dec. 2, at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. Managers or captains from the following industries are requested to appear, American Thermos Bottle Co., Martafts of Taftville, Werman Shoe, Richmond Radiator, Aling Rubber, Eastern Conn. Power Co., Corticelli Silk Co. and West Side Silk Co.

With the first game scheduled for Saturday, December 17, but little time remains to complete all details. Such incidentals as player lists, rules to govern the league and the framing of the entire schedule must be made if possible at this week's meeting and it is very important that a full attendance be had. Already there is talk of a post-season series with the winners of the New London league and that should be some drawing card.

OPEN GAME OF 1927 WAS PRODUCTIVE OF MANY THRILLS AS WELL AS UPSETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Wide open play, 1927 style, which sent a running battle of upsets resounding from coast to coast from early September to late November, this year, provided an array of running and passing thrills seldom if ever equalled in the reign of the ruling college sport, King Football.

There is no way of skimming even all the cream of the broken field runs, arching forward passes or touchdown scampers from fumbles and intercepted passes that pulled millions of spectators fro mtheir seats every Saturday afternoon this fall, but November 12 above alone saw nine "big time" backs turn in a total distance of 690 yards on 10 plays, every dash good for a touchdown.

That was the day Dartmouth's sophomore find, Al Marsters, conducted two special tours against Cornell, one for 89 yards and the other for 50. Grim of Ohio State broke Denison's heart and goal line with a 90-yard run and Whitey Lloyd of the Navy turned in an 85-yard dash against Michigan. Gibby Welch, captain of the undefeated Pittsburgh Panthers, galloped 97 yards through Nebraska for a touchdown from the kickoff and his running mate, Hagan, registered another score after traveling 63 yards.

McTigue of Georgia scored from 70 yards out against Clemson while Red Cagle and Bill Nave of the Army were doing their bit against Notre Dame, Cagle with a 43-yard run from scrimmage and Nave with a 68-yard romp after intercepting a pass. Fishwick of Yale finished the day's fun at the expense of Princeton's championship hopes by grabbing a pass from Hoben for 47 yards and the touchdown that led to a startling Eli victory.

Another of the outstanding runs of the season was that of Snider, flashy halfback of the Maryland team who ran 92 yards to a touchdown in the Yale bowl after taking Eddy's kickoff. Snider started on his own 8-yard line and went through the entire Yale team like a flash. It was the first time in the history of the Yale bowl that such a thing had happened.

The season produced its share of freak scoring plays, including runs of better than 100 yards, and many a game was settled by way of the overhead route. In Gerald Mann, Southern Methodist quarterback, the Southwest Conference produced a passer who tossed the ball with either hand. Usually favoring the right he was reputed to put the oval into a barrel consistently anywhere up to 45 yards.

Bill Spears, Vanderbilt sharpshooter, rightly demands mention in dispatches for an afternoon of forward passing that seems to stand alone in the south, if not the country. Against Tennessee he tossed 26 aerials and not one was grounded or intercepted. His longest, thrown without effort, was 50 yards.

Dartmouth's Marsters-to-Lane combination accounted for the Big Green's whirlwind finish against Cornell. Michigan's reversible Gilbert-Oosterbaan combination spelled disaster to Chicago to the tune of two touchdowns and to Ohio State with three. The Buckeyes also succumbed in their final game to two successful overhead thrusts by Illinois.

Flenniken and Schachern gave Geneva, little Pennsylvania college, a passing pair that was good for a 55-yard touchdown play against Bolton college, 52 against Allegheny and 55 against Thiel. They were taught these tricks by "Bo" McMillin, former center college All-American.

Sensational passing figured prominently in both of last Saturday's big battles. Although Navy lost to the Army the Midshipmen furnished the big thrill with a 45-yard pass for a touchdown, Lloyd to Sloane. Out in Chicago, passes were responsible for each touchdown scored by Notre Dame and Southern California.

While passes accounted for many of the longest gains of the year Gibby Welch, th ePitt leader, seems to have covered as much ground on one play as any other one player this season. He picked up a West Virginia kick behind his own goal and scuttled 105 yards for the score. Right behind him comes Al Day, centenary halfback, who intercepted a pass behind his goal and raced 104 yards for a touchdown against Rice. These were two of the greatest dashes on record.

The pass proved a boomerang to Auburn in the south when McElveen, Mississippi A. and M. center, intercepted a toss and ran 95 yards from a touchdown that produced a 7 to 6 victory. A fumble beat the same team in the Stetson game when Chet Freeman picked up an Auburn bobble and ran 95 yards for the score and a 6 to 0 victory. Crabtree, Florida quarterback, returned a kickoff for 95 yards against Alabama and McDowall, North Carolina State halfback, returned a kickoff 60 yards against Duke.

Banker of Tulane ran 90 yards from scrimmage for a touchdown against Georgia Tech and Tuck, Alabama halfback, brought a kickoff back 90 yards for a touchdown against Sewanee. Scoring runs of Mizell, Georgia Tech, of 58 yards from scrimmage against Auburn and Armistead, Vanderbilt fullback, for 67 yards against Sewanee, were other southern thrill producers.

LOU LITTLE PICKS HIS ALL-AMERICAN ELEVEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—West Point's football team gains three places in the nominations for 1927 All-American fame by Lou Little, head coach of Georgetown's high scoring team.

In the selections he gave to the Associated Press today Little picks Morley Drury, Southern California star, as fullback for the first team in preference to Herb Joesting, Minnesota captain and unanimous 1926 All-American.

Here are Little's choices:

First Team

Ends, Oosterbaan, Michigan; and Born, Army.

Tackles, Hibbs, Southern California, and Hake, Pennsylvania.

Guards, Kern, Pittsburgh, and Webster, Yale.

Center, Grigsby, Georgetown.

Quarterback, Connor, New York university.

Halfbacks, Welch, Pittsburgh, and Cagle, Army.

Fullback, Drury, Southern California.

Second Team

Ends, Nash and Shiver, Georgia.

Tackles, Sprague, Army, and Smith, Pennsylvania.

Guards, Raskowski, Ohio State, and Smith, Notre Dame.

Center, Bettencoourt, St. Mary's.

Quarterback, Spears, Vanderbilt.

Halfbacks, Nork, Georgetown, and Marsters, Dartmouth.

Fullback, Joesting, Minnesota.

ANOTHER CHAMPION IS SUSPENDED BY N. Y. BOARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The list of world's champions under suspenson in New York grew to three today when Bud Taylor, the prevailing titleholder of the bantamweight realm, was penalized by the State athletic commission for inability to box Tony Canzoneri here Thursday night.

Taylor, who hails from Terre Haute, Ind., reported an injured hand received in training and the suspension was automatic under the commission's rules. Ignacio Fernandez will substitute for Taylor against Canzoneri.

Recently, Mickey Walker was set down for failure to answer a challenge from George Courtney, of Oklahoma, for a middleweight title bout. Joe Dundee, the welterweight king, was placed under suspension for his part in the Los Angeles fiasco where he refused to go into the ring against Ace Hudkins because of a financial controversy.

Walker, along with his manager, Jack Kearns, was declared ineligible because he is without a New York State license. This was the only action open against Walker when he ignored a challenge from Courtney.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight, Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight, are the only champions in good standing here at the present time. The featherweight and flyweight divisions are without recognized champions in New York.

CONNOR AND GRIGSBY HAVE ACCEPTED INVITATION

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—Jack Connor, quarterback and captain of the 1927 New York University football team, has accepted an invitation to play with Andy Kerr's all-eastern eleven in an east-west charity contest at San Francisco on December 26. Kerr is football coach at Washington and Jefferson.

Claude Grigsby, of Georgetown university, all-eastern center and all-American candidate, also has been invited to play on Kerr's team. Grigsby has received permission from the athletic board to play, provided he does not miss any of his class work.

Added interest is promised if Grigsby plays as it will bring him against Larry Bettencourt, of St. Mary's eleven, another all-American prospect.

TRAVERS WINS TAME FIGHT FROM ROSEN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 29—(AP)—Tony Travers, New Haven, won the decision in a colorless 10-round professional bout over Charlie Rosen, New York, at the Arena here tonight. Both men were tied up most of the time, with Travers gaining a slight lead over Rosen by occasional flurries. Both men weighed 143 pounds.

In a fast six round semi-final Art De Champlain, Wallingford, 124, kayoed Joe Curry, New York, 128, with one minute to go in the final stanza.

The preliminaries:

Johnny Scalzi, Bridgeport, 127, won from Young Ciccone, New Haven, 130. Pete Martin, New York, 137, knocked out Willie Hussey, Bridgeport, 141, fifth. Pete August, Bridgeport, 150, won from Joe Marino, New York, 153.

Yanks Beat Pirates.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The New York Americans defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 1 to 0, tonight in a brilliant National league hockey struggle before 6,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden.

PLAINFIELD PROS PLAY MERIDEN TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 29.—The Plainfield Pros and the Meriden Insilcos clash at the Community house here Wednesday evening in what is anticipated will be a fast contest. Plainfield was scheduled to play the Meriden Endees but a last minute switch of the State league schedule made it impossible for the Endees to appear on that date. However there is little to choose from in the calibre of the two Meriden teams as both are on a par. Last year the Insilcos and Endees played a three game series and although the Endees won their margin of victory in the series was less than five points.

Meriden boasts such players as Hurwitz, McCarthy, Druehl, Evans and Warner, all known in state basketball circles as five of the best players in the game. This combination has been bowling along at a great speed in the early season games and the improvement over last season is marked. Plainfield has been playing some mighty close basketball and although losing four of the five games played four of them have been lost by less than four points and only in the last minutes of play. Not to alibi the Plainfield team the breaks of the game have gone against them with the exception of the opening contest against Fall River. They have never been really outclassed. Manager Salisbury will use Normandin and Dissinger at forwards, Stavinitsky center and Bernot and Madden at guards against Meriden. Bill Schofield and Eddie Nichols will be held in reserve.

For the preliminary at 8 o'clock the Plainfield Buddies will clash with the Willimantic Independents.

Archie Moulier will be the referee.

New Britain Wins Opener

HARTFORD, Nov. 29—(AP)—The Connecticut State Basketball league opened its season here tonight with New Britain winning an exciting 28 to 23 victory over the Hartford Yankees after a five minute overtime period had been played. DANIELSON

FORMER TAFTVILLE PRIEST LODGE OF SORROW SPEAKER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 29.—Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks—and there are many of them—will be in Putnam Sunday for the annual lodge of sorrow of the organization. With them will go relatives and friends. It so happens that the necrology list of Putnam lodge includes the names of a considerable number of Danielson men who were members, some of them charter members. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church at Putnam, is to deliver the address. A very special musical program has been arranged. A feature of the service will be the unveiling of the new bronze memorial tablet to the deceased members, an old arrangement of the lodge for tabulating the names of the brothers who have passed on having some time since proved inadequate.

BRIGHT HOLIDAY ILLUMINATION FOR DANIELSON STREETS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 29.—Danielson will be aglow with light in its business section during the fortnight preceding Christmas under an arrangement that is being worked out by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the Eastern Connecticut Power company. Up to this afternoon the precise manner of arranging the special illumination had not been worked out, but a suggestion from the lighting company was that the bulbs in the street lights through the business section be changed from 400's to 600's, an arrangement that would turn the business streets into a miniature white way, and that some of the lights be colored to add the holiday and festival effect. The cost of the lighting will be distributed by the Chamber of Commerce.

CITIZENS WARNED AGAINST CUTTING CHRISTMAS TREES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 29.—Town officials are again warning that it is a violation of the law to enter upon anyon's land without permission for the purpose of cutting a Christmas tree. This is stressed because the practice has grown by leaps and bounds with the multiplication of the number of motor vehicles on the highways, many of them from not distant cities in neighboring states, but the rule against cutting trees applies to all.

The wilful manner in which young pines, hemlocks and other such growths have been raided hereabouts in the past few years is the basis of the timely warning that it cannot be done this year without danger of prosecution. Not only have trees been taken for the use of an individual, but instances have been reported where dozens of them have been cut down and carried off by persons who afterwards offered them for sale at $1 each and more, depending on size, in Providence. Many owners of land will grant the cutting of a Christmas tree to a friend. Failure to ask permission, invites a court appearance and fines and costs much exceeding the price at which a tree can be purchased. It has been suggested that much of the tree raiding co ld be stopped if an alert list of merchants in communities hereabouts would procure trees in a legitimate way and offer them for sale, a plan that presupposes a reasonable and worth having profit.

As its end drew near, November continued to be capricious today. This 29th of the month was as balmy as a late April day. The prevailing wind direction was from the southwest and, behold the miracle, the maximum temperature in the early afternoon was 70 degrees.

That's unseasonable weather, without reservation. To business interests it was unwelcome. To the individual, especially the fortunate who could be out of doors, it appeared a blessing. Heater doors were swinging wide open in Danielson homes today in an effort to keep indoor temperatures within bounds. Observers reported seeing farmers in adjacent territory engaged with plowing in advance of the coming of spring. A pleasant picture, likely soon to be ruined by an icy blast from cold winter, lurking just in the background.

This morning's grist of business for the town court, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding, was made up of three cases in which violations of the motor vehicle laws were alleged against the accused, picked up by state officers last night for having no taillight and no windshield cleaner. In each instance the fine was $1, with actual costs, making the total payment in each case $5.27. Danielson, Dayville and Putnam men furnished the cases. Other arrests for poor lighting equipment were made in Brooklyn last night, and prosecutions carried out today.

Though the season is not the best for the purpose, there is real activity now in what is strictly a seasonal industry in this territory—trapping. Fur prices are good this fall, too, a bit higher than they were a year ago. Mink, few of which have come into the local market as yet, are bringing $20 to $25, according to size and quality. Pelts of the once lowly muskrat are bringing $1.50 to $1.75 each. The man who is a successful hunter of raccoons has the prospect of good money as well as good sport to count out. Minnesota and some other states out in that section of the country have prohibited the killing of raccoons. That makes prices better out east and the New York market is taking all the 'coon pelts offered. They are worth $10 if average and up to $12 and $12.50 if extra good. The odiferious skunk also offers a potential source of abundant revenue to the man who hunts him, and skunks are very plentiful this fall. These pelts are worth 75 cents to $3, depending on color and quality. Because of the exceptionally warm weather all through the fall, dealers say that the "prime" season will be at least two weeks later than usual. Trappers are very active just now and will continue to be for the greater part of the winter. The value of furs taken in this immediate vicinity every winter runs into thousands of dollars.

Treasurer Sidney W. Bard, of the Brooklyn Savings bank, left this afternoon for Boston to inspect bank buildings in that territory, with a view to observing ideas that might be incorporated in the new building to be erected here by the institution he represents.

Mrs. Sarah Penfield has not yet recovered from an illness that has kept he reconfined to her home on Broad street for the past month.

James Boss, of Wollaston, Mass., was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Additions to the line of chain stores already doing business here are forecast for the late winter or early spring season. It appears that Danielson looks good to these great concerns.

James C. Manlin, of Springfield, was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Hunters relate that there appears to be an abundant supply of foxes in this territory this fall, and early kills by various hunters seems to bear out this impression.

There is the promise that the state highway between Danielson and Brooklyn, part of the Danielson-Willimantic-Hartford trunk line, is to be rebuilt in the not distant future.

Mrs. George Dunn, of Hartford, has been visiting with relatives in Danielson, where she formerly was a resident.

It may be suggested to those who are going to mail Christmas gifts to relatives or friends in foreign lands that the time for doing this is at hand. This group must be the first to hold the "mail early" order if they are to escape the real rush of the holiday season.

The New Idea of Cancer

Many Cases Can Be Cured If Reported Promptly

BULLETIN NO. 2

WHAT IS CANCER?

According to Prof. James Ewing, one of the best known authorities on the subject, cancer is a large group of diseases and not one particular disease. All resemble one another in a single important respect. They are characterized by an unrestrained and unrestrainable local lump or sore and most of them extend by becoming larger and sending off to other parts of the body minute particles which start new growths.

Very few well informed students of cancer now hold the opinion that cancer is a general, or constitutional, disease. It is held that the trouble is local at first. Something goes wrong with the regulating mechanism of the body, with the result that the unwholesome persistent growth begins and, once begun, it cannot stop itself, but must be destroyed or removed.

Cancer may occur anywhere on the outside or inside of the body. It is always little to begin with. When it occurs on the outside it is much easier to discover in its early stages. It is at this time that effective action against the growth is most likely to result in a cure. As has frequently been said, the trouble is then no more serious than a splinter. After particles of the cancer have found their way to other parts of the body and given rise to new cancers the situat'on is much more serious. For to cure the patient it is necessary to find out where these new centers are and then they must all be removed.—American Society for Control of Cancer, 25 West 43rd Street, New York City.

DRIVE OF SANITARY CORPS—NOW STARTING 11TH YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 29—The Westerly Sanitary Corps, Inc., at the beginning of its annual drive for ambulance membership Monday, received over a hundred applications in renewal of membership subscriptions. A signed card is returned the subscriber which entitles the holder to ambulance service through the call of any physician. The work of the Westerly Sanitary Corps will continue throughout the year, as an independent ambulance service, taking patients anywhere with their consent under any physician's orders, and as in the past this is the only conveyance for patients to other than Westerly hospitals.

Concerning the drive Secretary and Treasurer Charles D. Maxson states that within the next few days places will be designated in Bradford, Potter Hill, North Stonington and Ashaway, where membership certificates will be issued and moneys accepted. The drive will continue until Jan. 1. The corps is now in its 11th year. Its records reveal a steady increase in the services it has rendered both in Westerly and adjacent villages. Last year its ambulance answered 98 calls, many for trips as long as to Providence, Norwich and New London. The corps turned out to one emergency call, the big fire of April 30. The corps has a membership of 40, commanded by Dr. John Champlin, Jr. Each member is trained in first aid work, sanitation and in the rudiments of nursing. The members receive no pay for services rendered. The ambulance service was inaugurated several years before Westerly had a hospital and has been continued because of the need. A subscription of $2.50 for one year entitled any member of the subscriber's family to ambulance service, with driver and attendants, without additional cost. There is no limit to the number of calls that may be made or the distances travelled. The same service is available to non-subscribers, but at charges depending on distances travelled.

MYSTIC

WRECK OF STR. VANDERBILT RECALLED AFTER 70 YEARS

The Woman's Bible class of the Union Baptist church met in the vestry Monday evening. Eight were present. The meeting opened with singing All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name, and prayer by Mrs. B. P. Davis, who welcomed one new member since the last meeting and tow visitors. The secretary and treasurer gave reports, also the various committees. The class contributes $25 every quarter to the church and a food sale will be held in January. Many calls have been made on the sick. After the business session, there was a piano duet, Mrs. Gremley and Mrs. O'Brien, with encore, singing by Mrs. Alden Fish, Amy Williams, Mrs. Henry Chegwiro, Mrs. Elmer Hall and Mrs. Harold Williams, entitled "I'm a Pilgrim, I'm a Stranger," with Mrs. Gremley accompanist. Mrs. Davis, teacher of the class, told the true story of the wreck of the steamer Vanderbilt with over 100 passengers, nearly seventy years ago, near Fishers Island. Her father carried on farming on a large scale at that time. All the passengers were saved and all went to the farmhouse and were fed ham and eggs with corn bread and biscuits. Then her father took his boat and went to Stonington and later a tug boat came and carried the passengers to Stonington, whence they were sent on to New York. The captain and two men were the last to leave the ship on the rocks. Just before the captain reached the farm house, he fell, and was carried in and put to bed and remained there for two weeks when he was able to return to Boston. GENERAL AVERAGE OF INDUSTRIAL STOCK PRICES AT NEW HIGH RECORD

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—Renewal of speculative operations for the advance, synchronizing with a lowering of the call money rate from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent. today carried the general average of industrial stock prices to a new high record for all time. Gains of 1 to 5 points were distributed over a fairly broad list, but there were a few much larger, Midland Steel Products preferred soaring 23 points to a new high record at 235.

Although several commission houses urged caution in the making of new commitments on the theory that a further correction of the market's technical position was likely, pools resumed their operations with confidence, acting on the theory that much of the $300,000,000 to be distributed in the form of interest and dividends this month, would find its way into the market. The decision to make the lower corporate tax schedule applicable to 1927 earnings and the announcement of several special dividends, also were construed as bull factors.

Speculation was quite pronounced in the shares of companies likely to benefit from Henry Ford's business. The Briggs Body shares advanced nearly three points on a turnover of 80,000 shares, on reports that the company was to construct 500,000 bodies for the new Ford models. Timken Roller Bearing and Transue Williams Steel each added 2 more points to yesterday's sharp gains and Stewart-Warner Speedometer climbed 4 points to a new peak at 54 1-2. General Motors which was heavy yesterday, closed a point higher at 126 1-2, although it had sold above 127 in the early trading. Most of the other motors showed mixed fractional changes.

Radio Corporation was again heavily bought, climbing nearly 5 points to a new high record at 98 3-8, as against a low of 41 1-8 earlier in the year. New peak prices also were attained by Montgomery Ward, New York Dock, Green Cananea Copper, American Bank Note, Congoleum, Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, American Republics and a few others.

Heavy buying of Transcontinental Oil was based on reports that discussions are in progress for a merger of that company with California Petroleum. U. S. Steel common closed nearly 2 points higher at 147. Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Commercial Solvents, Electric Storage Battery, National Biscuit, Pacific Coats issues, and Warren Bros. all closed 4 to 15 points higher.

Heavy buying of the St. Paul issues, based on expectations of early approval of the recapitalization plan by the interstate commerce commission, was one of the features of the rail group.

Union Pacific, one of the few large systems to show good October earnings as compared with same month last year, advanced more than a point. Western Maryland advanced nearly 2 points on reports that a deal of some kind was in progress, involving that road, Wabash and Pittsburgh & West Virginia.

A plentiful supply of call money came into the market when the renewal rate was fixed at 4 1-2 per cent and a shading to the 4 per cent level took place around noon. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Belgian francs touched a new high just under 14 cents and demand sterling again advanced to $4.87 1-2, but Japanese yen broke nearly 10 points to around 45.70 cents and Spanish pesetas fell 13 points to 13.60 cents.

Leading commodity markets moved within rather narrow and irregular limits, near month cotton options again closing below the 19 cent level.

SIMENOWITZ DEATH AT NEW LONDON TO BE INVESTIGATED BY CORONER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 29—By the death at Home Memorial hospital Sunday of Meyer Simenowitz, 67, Uncasville farmer, it is revealed today that Coroner J. J. Desmond, of Norwich, will conduct an investigation into Simenowitz's death. The case was one that should have been investigated by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman and his finding should have been reported to Coroner Desmond. It is further disclosed that Simenowitz's death was not reported to the medical examiner and that the body was buried in the Hebrew cemetery, Jordan before Medical Examiner Kaufman had any knowledge whatsoever of Simenowitz's death. Coroner Desmond said today that he would personally take charge of the investigation and but for the fact that he was engaged today on an important matter he would have come to New London and questioned physicians and nurses, and in fact, anyone having knowledge of the circumstances attending the Uncasville man's death. Coroner Desmond will come to New London within a day or two and start his investigation; it is probable that he will have the body of Simenowitz exhumed and an autopsy held.

Simenowitz was sent to the hospital Sunday afternoon by Dr. Thomas Soltz, who was called to the Simenowitz home to attend the farmer. An examination of Simenowitz showed that the man was suffering from internal injuries and was in immediate need of surgical treatment. The ambulance was summoned and while Simenowitz was being prepared to be operated on he expired in the hospital operating room. The death should have been reported to Medical Examiner Kaufman, but that official did not have knowledge of Simenowitz's death until yesterday afternoon and by that time the farmer had been buried. It was said at the Simenowitz residence Sunday that the farmer received his injury when he went to a pasture and was attacked by a cow, the animal forcing Simenowitz against a fence, which collapsed and caused the farmer to fall to the ground with the enraged cow upon his body. He was not attended by a physician that day, but Sunday when he experienced severe pains in the region of the abdomen, Dr. Soltz was called.

The auto is registered in the name of Harriet Watrous, 52 Courtland street, Westerly. Menzie said that he was walking to his work and at Hempstead and Broad streets, he started to cross the street. In the case of William Peltz, United States Coast Guard, a fine of $100 and costs was imposed. Peltz was driving on Williams street last night when he was given a signal to stop by State Police Officer Johnson, Groton barracks, for the officer wished to see if the auto was properly equipped with brakes and lights. Instead of stopping, Peltz continued through Williams street. Johnson entered his automobile and started after Peltz. When the officer again ordered Peltz to stop his car, Peltz alighted, but he displayed signs of fight. Peltz was hustled off to police headquarters.

The other case that of Leo Murray, 75 Howard street, was continued until Dec. 6. He furnished a bond of $100 for appearance on the latter date. Murray was driving his auto on Pequot avenue, near the Pequot Laundry last evening and lost control of the steering wheel with the result that the auto crashed against the car of Mrs. Mary McPartland, of Sherman street, which was motionless beside the curb. The Murray auto struck the McPartland car with such force that the front wheels of the former ascended to the hood of the parked auto. Sergeants Patrick Murphy and John Cavanaugh investigated the accident. It was plain that Murray was intoxicated, so he was arrested.

Henry Brooks, 5 Mitchell court, was charged with violation of the city's motor vehicle laws in failing to stop when given a signal to do so. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. Brooks was driving his car in an easterly direction on Bank street last night and at the corner of Howard street where Traffic Officer John Sullivan was on duty he failed to obey a signal to stop. The auto barely escaped running down the officer. Sullivan then sounded his whistle for Brooks to stop and instead of doing so, Brooks looked back at the officer and speeded away. Sullivan commandeered an automobile and gave chase to Brooks, but did not overtake him until he was stopped in traffic at the corner of State and Main streets.

William T. Nisson, of Quaker Hill, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws in driving his truck without a tail light. He was fined the costs of court. Nisson was arrested last night by State Police Officer Donald Brown.

Broadway Theater.

The Shuberts who have produced more musical shows than perhaps any other theatrical organization, were responsible for "The Last Waltz" which played at the Century Opera house for a long run. This delightful operetta was written by Julius Brammer and Alfred Grunwald. The music was composed by Oscar Strauss who is famous for his Viennese melodies.

The cast of this musical gem was made up of such stars as Jimmie Barton, Eleanor Painter and Walter Woolf. So excellent was the story that it was thought it could make an ideal romantic moving picture. UFA of Berlin set out to make an exceptional cinema and they have accomplished just that.

The actors and actresses who were chosen for the parts come from nearly every country on the continent. The supervisor is an Englishman, the director, an American. Willy Fritsch who is the male lead is German and the girl who plays opposite him is Suzy Vernon, whose allegiance is to France.

Now the picture is being released by Paramount under its original name "The Last Waltz." It will be shown on the screen of the Broadway theater for the last times today.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, one of the best double feature bills ever presented in Norwich will be the attraction at the broadway. Zane Grey's "Nevada," with Gary Cooper in the leading role is sure to please all lovers of Zane Grey stories, and Marie Prevost in the Night Bride will give every one a hearty laugh.

"Convoy," Robert Kane's superspecial of the navy, which was four months in production and cost more than a million dollars, will be the featured film at the Breed theater the last half of this week.

Excelsior

The shades of night were falling fast,
As through an Alpine village passed
A youth, who bore, 'mid snow and ice,
A banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!

His brow was sad; his eye beneath
Flashed like a falchion from its sheath,
And like a silver clarion rung
The accents of that unknown tongue,
Excelsior!

In happy homes he saw the light
Of household fires gleam warm and bright;
Above, the spectral glaciers shone,
And from his lips escaped a groan,
Excelsior!

"Try not the Pass!" the old man said;
"Dark lowers the tempest overhead,
The roaring torrent is deep and wide!"
And loud that clarion voice replied:
Excelsior!

"Oh, stay," the maiden said, "and rest
Thy weary head upon this breast!"
A tear stood in his bright blue eye,
But still he answered with a sigh:
Excelsior!

"Beware the pine-tree's withered branch!
Beware the awful avalanche!"
This was the peasant's last Goodnight,
A voice replied, far up the height:
Excelsior!

At break of day, as Heavenward
The pious monks of Saint Bernard
Uttered the oft-repeated prayer,
A voice cried through the startled air:
Excelsior!

A traveler, by the faithful hound,
Half-buried in the snow was found,
Still grasping in his hand of ice
That banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!

There in the twilight cold and gray,
Lifeless, but beautiful, he lay,
And from the sky, serene and far,
A voice fell, like a falling star:
Excelsior!

—Henry W. Longfellow.

The Happy Garden

There is a happy garden that I know
Jasmine and thyme and mignonette are there.
There rosemary and honeysuckle grow,
With all such fragrant and familiar things.
Nor is it too immaculately fair
To suffer the oft flutter of soft wings.

And as the rocks at even time repair
To the great alms that neighbor it below,
So those gone forth of it return to share
Its quaint felicities again, as though
It radiated idly, year by year,
A blessing upon all that come and go.

—Edgar Newgass in The Christian Science Monitor.

JURY GIVES VERDICT FOR $5,000 FOR INJURED MOTORCYCLE RIDER

John F. McGourty of Waterford, a motorcycle rider, who sued Philip Adel of New London for $10,000, was given a verdict for $5,000 damages by a jury in the superior court here late Tuesday afternoon. After hearing the charge by Judge John Rufus Booth, which occupied about three quarters of an hour, the twelve men retired to the jury room a little after four o'clock and were out for over an hour before they returned with the verdict for McGourty. Attorney G. Curtis Morgan appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney Arthur T. Keefe for the defendant.

McGourty, who was riding a motorcycle from his home in Waterford to New London about 7.30 on the evening of March 10, 1927 on his way to attend a motorcycle club meeting in this city, sued Adel for the injuries he received when the automobile driven by Adel was in collision with the motorcycle at the traffic beacon at Bank and Ocean avenue, New London. McGourty had his left leg broken in three places. He claimed that the automobile hit his motorcycle when the automobile was driven to the left of the beacon in making a left turn from Bank street to Ocean avenue and was driven on the left of the intersection of the two streets and of the beacon.

Adel denied that he was operating his car in the manner described by the plaintiff, but testified that he had slowed up to let another car pass before he reached the beacon, had shifted into second speed and was proceeding at about 8 miles an hour when the motorcycle suddenly flashed into sight in front of him. He claimed that he pulled his car sharply to the left and struck the beacon, which was pushed about two feet by the force of the blow.

Testimony for the plaintiff was given Tuesday by Florence A. Northrop, Viola B. LaChapelle and William T. Daniels, all of New London.

For the defendant a plan of the location was shown and explained by George K. Crandall, civil engineer, and testimony was given by Maurice Wein, who was riding with Adel in the automobile at the time of the accident.

Besides his claim for injuries, McGourty made a claim for $800 lost in wages while he was incapacitated and $200 damages to the motorcycle.

The jury in the case comprised the following:

Norwich, Henry Gebrath, Ashley T. Boon; Preston, Erva L. Barnes, Chas. M. Geisthardt, William W. Service; Colchester, Henry S. Parks; Griswold, Joseph Roode, Otto Anderson; Lebanon, William G. Totten; Franklin, G. A. Miller; Lisbon, Clarence Fitch; Voluntown, John H. Herbert.

The postmaster-general, himself an ardent sportsman, says "If the wild life of the United States is not to be destroyed within the next few years, it will be due to the interest taken in its conservation by the sportsmen of the country acting together and with intelligent direction through such agencies as the American Game Protective association. In the term 'sportsman' I include all those who are interested in the wild life of the woods, fields and streams., whether they seek it with rod and gun, with the camera or for the enjoyment derived from merely seeing it in its native environment. The rapid development of the country and the consequent destruction of the natural refuges, will of itself bring about the extinction of its wild life unless intelligent effort is made by those who, from actual observation and experience, have some knowledge of the steps necessary to its preservation and respond to the inspiration entertained by every true sportsman, to see that those steps are taken." The local club is planning to have reported, in detail the results of the Fourteenth National Game conference which is to be held December 5 and 6 at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York.
